THE YEAR JUST PAST

IN

Real Estate and Building

A RADICAL change has overtaken the real estate and building market of this city during the past year. Throughout the early months the conditions which prevailed during 1905 continued to prevail with increasing rather than decreasing emphasis. Week by week the total number of conveyances recorded exceeded the large totals of the year preceding, while at the same time the estimated cost of the buildings projected were promising to be larger than ever before in the history of the city. But these conditions did not continue. Early in the summer the figures, instead of continuing to increase, began to remain about stationary, and by the time that the leaves were falling the totals for the current year were running perceptibly behind those of 1905. For the first time since 1900, the real estate market of New York had to be characterized as a retrogressive rather than as a progressive market, and it is a matter of some importance that the meaning and the extent of this retrogression should be clearly understood.

Between 1900 and 1905 the number of conveyances of real estate situated in the county of New York recorded in one year increased from about 14,600 to about 35,000. An increase so voluminous as this was unexampled in the history of the city, and it was due to very exceptional causes. It was not due directly to the growth of New York in business or in population, because the increase in the number of conveyances in these few years was far greater than would have been justified by the substantial growth of the city. Neither can it be traced to the increasingly general speculation in real estate, although it is undoubtedly true that the speculative element in the real estate market was enormously enlarged during these years. If no other causes had been operating except those of a period of an unusual expansion in business, population and real estate speculation, the number of conveyances would not have augmented any more quickly than they did between 1900 and 1903, during which period the average yearly increase was about 10%. The enlargement in the number of conveyances did not become unprecedented and extraordinary until in 1904 and 1905. In the first of these years the increase was 33% over the preceding year, while in the second it was over 40%. This sudden jump in the totals was due to a combination of causes as exceptional as the volume of the resulting increase—a combination of causes which resulted in a tolerably radical transformation in the economic aspect of the domestic life of New York. During 1902 and 1903 there had been an under-production of tenement houses all over New York City, owing to the new tenement-house law; and this under-production of tenements was co-incident with an unusually large increase in the alien population. The over-crowded lower East Side overflowed into the upper East Side, whose existing population was pushed farther west, while at the same time Harlem and the West Side were feeling the local effects of the under-production of new habitations. This suddenly increasing demand for all kinds of tenements raised rents in the different parts of Manhattan and galvanized into life a class of building which had been dead for some years. It raised the value of the old five-story tenements and flats and justified the wide-spread speculation which sprang up in these old houses. It was the buying and selling of these old buildings which constituted the bulk of the unprecedented increase in the volume of real estate transactions, but, of course, part of it was also due to the constant demand for new tenement-houses and for the land on which to build them. It so happened that the new subway was opened for traffic just about this time, and the land to which it gave access on Washington Heights and the Bronx suddenly became available for improvement. The speculation in this vacant land, and the sales incident to a large volume of new building enterprise also contributed to swell the already swollen totals.

The decreased volume of the real estate transactions recorded in 1906 means simply that the speculation based on this exceptional alteration in housing conditions is now at an end. The values of these old flats and tenement-houses have been pushed as high as is safe. In many cases doubtless they have been pushed too high. At any rate the speculation is subsiding and during the coming year it will still further subside. The conditions which underlay the speculation have changed. Instead of the under-building of 1902 and 1903, New York City has during 1905 and 1906 been over-building. Its operators have been erecting enough tenements and dwellings to accommodate twice the actual increase in population, and the consequence has been a noticeable decrease of tenement-house building during the last five months of 1906. At the same time there has been a considerable shifting of population from Manhattan to Brooklyn and Queens, owing to the increasing rents which have to be paid in the central borough. This shifting has been very much hampered by the miserable travelling conditions between the boroughs, and it will undoubtedly become very much larger as soon as some of the new bridges and tunnels actually come into operation. Peculiar conditions in the building material and in the money markets have also contributed to the decreasing activity of the past year. Some of the previous speculation in old-law tenements was traceable to increased cost of building materials, which made it impossible to duplicate the old buildings at anything like the same cost. But the fall in the price of brick which took place early in the summer changed all this and it tended in different and opposite ways both to lessen speculation in old tenements and to hinder the erection of new ones. By making the building of new tenements cheaper it diminished the opportunities for speculation, while it hampered the operations of builders by preventing them from obtaining permanent loans as large as they expected on their recently-constructed buildings. The money market also in spite of the beneficial effect of the change in the mortgage tax law has also acted as a check upon building and real estate transactions.

In spite, however, of the many causes which served to check real estate activity during the last half of 1906, the total decrease from the figures of the preceding year was not very large. Thus the number of conveyances of real property situated in New York county recorded in 1906 was 32,277, while in 1905 the corresponding number was 34,853, in 1904 just 24,601 and in 1903 only 18,649. The decrease which has taken place in 1906 compared to 1905 was only about one-fifth of the increase which had taken place in 1905, compared to 1904. This comparison does not, however, tell the whole story. During the last few months of 1906 the decrease from the figures of the preceding year amounted to fully 20%; and it may be expected that this decrease will continue throughout 1907. Probably the total number of conveyances recorded in 1907 will be nearer 25,000 than 30,000, but there is no reason to be alarmed by this prospective decrease. It will mean that the causes which have brought about the decrease of 1906 will continue to be effective, and that during the current year the real estate market will in this respect be restored to its normal condition. That normal condition will mean the regular transaction of a considerably larger volume of real estate business than that to which New York was accustomed before 1905. In spite of certain weak spots and of the strain which results from the high prevailing rates for money the real estate market in Manhattan and the Bronx is in a very wholesome condition. It may be confidently anticipated that during the year the conditions on Washington Heights will improve and building to a certain extent be resumed. Everything, also, points to a large volume of transactions and improvements in the whole central part of Manhattan—in the district bounded by 14th and 59th sts and 4th and 9th avs. That is the region in which speculation continues to be most active and is most justified. That is the district which will be most benefited by the growth of the whole city in population and wealth, and by the rapid transit improvements, no matter in what direction they run, and every new bridge, subway and tunnel will make this Manhattan tenderloin more available to the population of the whole city, both for business and pleasure, and values in this district are sure to improve steadily, no matter what may be taking place in other parts of the city. It is no wonder, consequently, that speculators are buying in this region persistently, and that it is and promises to remain for the present the centre of active and profitable real estate speculation. The activity in general business promises to continue throughout the coming year, and large numbers of new loft and office buildings will be erected. Moreover, even after the inevitable reaction comes in general business, local causes will continue to justify activity in this central core of the borough of Manhattan. During the next few years one important transit improvement after another will begin to have its effect, and these effects will look in the direction of more and better employment for real estate in the central district.

THE MORTGAGE MARKET.

The totals respecting the lending of money on real estate compiled in the usual manner from the records are not for the past two years very illuminating. During 1905 these totals were swollen by the enormous number of mortgages recorded prior to the mortgage tax law, which took effect on July 1, and after that date they were from the same cause unnaturally diminished. This diminution continued until July 1, 1906, when the mortgage recording tax was substituted, and since the first of July the amount of money loaned on real estate all over the city has been much larger than during the corresponding period last year, in spite of the fact that money has been exceptionally hard to borrow. Thus during the month of December, 1906, alone, almost $50,000,000 was loaned on real estate in Manhattan against less than $24,000,000 during the corresponding month of 1905. On the whole, the amount of money loaned on real estate situated in Manhattan and the Bronx was about $450,000,000 in 1906, compared to about $565,000,000 in 1905; and the dimunition is not very large, considering the abnormal condition of the mortgage and money market. It looks as if the stringency in the money market would continue during the current year, for the demands upon the resources of the country for fresh supplies of floating capital will be enormous. Prospective borrowers on real estate for some time to come will have to pay dear for the money they need; but the experience of the year clearly shows that in the long run the new mortgage recording tax will constitute a great boon to borrowers upon real estate security. When the money market returns to its normal condition it is probable that mortgages will be in better demand than they ever have previously been during the history of the city, and that the average rate of interest will be correspondingly lower. If it is necessary, as Mr. James J. Hill asserts, for the railroads of the country to spend $1,000,000,000 a year for the next five years on new tracks and terminals, the day of cheap money may be postponed for a long while, but it cannot be postponed forever. In the meantime New York City is to be congratulated on the existing organization of its system of real estate credits. The title companies are rich and strong enough to accommodate borrowers with good security even during a period of tight money, while at the same time they exercise a valuable conservative influence during a period of speculation.

BUILDING IN 1906.

As usual, the amount of new building projected in 1906 has been dependent chiefly on conditions in the real estate market. During the first half of the year the estimated cost of the projected buildings was greater than it was during the corresponding period of 1905, but when the diminution began during the summer time, it gained headway more rapidly than did the decrease in the conveyances of real estate. During the past few months the plans for new buildings filed with the department have been unusually scarce; and the total result is that the decrease in the number of new buildings projected is proportionately greater than the decrease in transfers. In the latter case it amounts to only about 7%, whereas in the former it is not less than 15%. The aggregate estimated cost of new Manhattan and Bronx buildings was over $160,000,000 in 1905, and only $136,000,000 in 1906. In Brooklyn the decrease was proportionately less, the total being over $66,000,000 in the first year and over $63,000,000 in the second. Queens and Richmond, on the other hand, have been more prosperous in 1906 than they were in 1905. The estimated cost of the buildings projected in the former borough increased from $12,000,000 in the first year to $18,000,000 in the second, and this increase shows that with the better means of communication soon to be obtained Queens will be a close competitor with the Bronx. In spite of all deductions, however, the year 1906 has been the largest building year in the history of the city, 1905 alone excepted. The new buildings projected in New York City called for an expenditure of about $225,000,000 and the projected alterations must have cost $20,000,000 more. The builders of New York will be fortunate in case they do as well in 1907.

The diminished activity in building in the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx can all be traced to two sources—viz., to the decreased number of tenements and hotels which were projected. The decline in the construction of apartment hotels is one of the most remarkable somersaults ever observed in the building market of this city. Four years ago about $20,000,000 was being spent each year in hotels either for residents or transients. Even last year 13 new buildings of this class were projected to cost over $5,000,000. But in 1906 only one small hotel appears in the building records of Manhattan. The apartment house, which was at one time by way of being eclipsed by the apartment hotel, has again come into its own, and completely dominates the situation. It may be expected that in time the building of apartment hotels will be resumed, but for the present New York has more of them than it needs. A decisive decrease also took place in the number of tenements of all classes projected, owing to causes already outlined in our real estate review. Thus in 1905 the new tenements projected call for an expenditure of about $73,000,000, whereas during the past year the corresponding total was only about $57,000,000. This total of $57,000,000 compares, however, with a corresponding total of $45,000,000 in 1904, $23,000,000 in 1903 and $15,000,000 in 1902. The number of private dwellings for which plans were filed was also much smaller in 1906 than in 1905. Indeed, so far as Manhattan is concerned, 1906 with its $2,000,000 invested in private residences represents the low-water mark in this class of structure, although in the Bronx the figures tell a different story. When we turn, however, to the figures covering the erection in 1906 of buildings devoted to business purposes, the inferences are very different. More money was planned to be spent on buildings of this class in 1906 than in 1905. In the latter these plans called for an expenditure of about $28,000,000, whereas in 1906 they call for an expenditure of $32,000,000. This last total was larger than during any previous year in the history of the city, larger, probably, than it will be for a number of years to come. Yet this great mass of business building projected is also prophetic of the future, because the tendency hereafter will be to distribute population throughout the other boroughs, but to concentrate business.

Real Estate Investments

Views of the President of the Mutual Life Insurance Company

CHARLES A. PEABODY, Esq., as president of one of the largest institutions lending money on real estate, consenting to give his views concerning the standing of mortgage loans, was asked to say what from his point of view is the comparative safety and attractiveness of real estate investments, mortgages and building loans in Greater New York. Mr. Peabody answered:

"The question as to what may be thought of the safety and attractiveness of New York City real estate, by way of investment, covers a broad field. There can be, however, but one opinion as to its safety if due judgment is used in making the investment. I do not think that there is any real estate in the world that holds firmer to its value and that is so satisfactory and practically certain of advance under normal conditions as the real estate of New York City. Of course, you are aware that insurance companies may not invest in the purchase of real estate. So far as real estate is concerned, we are limited to mortgages, and what I have said as to real estate, answers, of course, the question as to mortgages.

"From the point of view of the insurance company, the first consideration must be security. That means that the companies must be conservative in appraising real estate. They must not follow to the limit the occasional movements which seize upon localities under the stimulus of special causes, because these so-called booms invariably flatten out when the special causes are removed. Several of these movements have been seen within the last few years; in fact, the real estate history of New York includes a long series of such movements, but to one who studies such history and uses intelligent judgment in considering the general trend of development, and the lines upon which New York is likely to grow in the evolution of the years to come, investment in first mortgages within the limits allowed by law ought to be, in the long run, as good as any investments that an insurance company could make."

"Ought New York City real estate to receive preferential consideration from insurance companies, and, if so, why?"

"I find this question rather hard to answer," said Mr. Peabody. "It should not receive preferential consideration as compared with other cities having the same prospects for the future and the same reasons for firm maintenance of values. All should be treated alike which offer like conditions, but I think we can all agree that there are few cities in which the market for real estate is so steady and so strong as in the City of New York; and, of course, steadiness and strength in the market are what make safety and stability in the investment."

"What rate of interest might be deemed fair and equitable on loans that the insurance companies may pass upon as safe and attractive?" Mr. Peabody was further asked.

"As I have stated already," replied Mr. Peabody, "the first consideration from the company's standpoint must be security. The next consideration must be the duty of the company to obtain for its policy holders as high a rate of return as can be obtained with due regard to security. Of course, the rate that might be deemed fair, varies. It involves questions of the value of money at a given time, and is based more upon the general conditions of the country and the country's business, or, indeed, the general condition of the world and the world's business than upon local and passing causes. I should say, in a general way, that it is the duty of the company to obtain all it can for its policy holders, always having a due regard to their security. In New York City, within my memory, the rate has been as low as 3½ per cent. for the highest grade mortgages, and it has within my memory been as high as 7 per cent. It is safe to say it will never reach such a figure again, and seems to be now running between 4½ and 5 per cent."

"What apparent reasons exist, if any, for preferring other investments than mortgage loans?"

"A good reason for preferring other investments than mortgage loans will exist if the company can obtain for its policy holders a higher rate of return on their capital without depriving them of safety. If by the purchase of other securities which are allowed by law the company can obtain more in interest it is undoubtedly the company's duty to do so. There are times when such investments pay better at their market prices than real estate mortgages; there are other times when they do not pay so well. It is the practice of the Mutual Life Insurance Company to follow both forms of investment, being guided by the prevailing rates of interest as to the preponderance of one form of investment over another, and, in a general way, to lose no chance to invest as may seem best for the company when the company has any available funds awaiting investment.

"Since January 1, 1906, this company has accepted loans on real estate mortgages aggregating more than $25,000,000. During that time loans have been paid off to the amount of $11,000,000 or more, and the total amount of bonds nad mortgages now held by this company exceeds that held a year ago by about $13,000,000."

Wall Street and the Money Market.

THE GREAT PUBLIC KEPT OUT OF THE STOCK MARKET LAST YEAR, IN SPITE OF THE LARGEST VOLUME OF BUSINESS IN THE HISTORY OF THE EXCHANGE.

SOME very striking features of the financial situation which have been strongly emphasized towards the close of 1906 have been the extensive advance in wages consequent on the great scarcity of labor. Then there have been tremendous freight congestion and extraordinary scarcity of railroad equipment. This assuredly implies great prosperity, but the curious and anomalous result is that neither the congestion nor the scarcity of cars and equipment has had any important influence on prices throughout the year 1906. The beginning of the year 1906 found Wall Street, whatever was said to the contrary, in a hopeful mood. Unusual strain and difficulties had been overcome, banking interests were cautious, but it soon developed that an era of speculation had started again and was prepared to run riot in spite of a decidedly unsatisfactory banking position.

It is a matter of history and scarcely necessary to comment on in the Record and Guide's review of the money market that at that time, time money was exceedingly scare and commanded very high rates. As to call money it went up, or rather touched the unprecedented figure of 125 per cent. In ordinary circumstances this would have forced liquidation, but mirabile dictu it did not do so, Wall Street prices continuing to soar as money advanced. There was renewed confidence, and it was said that a market which could stand up against abnormal rates for money and bank deficits must have the strength of Gibraltar. Without calling into question the soundness or unsoundness of this reasoning, certain it is that for a long time the stock market was very strong. It was not, however, strength combined with healthfulness, and succeeding months of the year demonstrated that the market could go down as well as go up. On the whole, the result of the year has not been satisfactory to the least optimistic and the repeated predictions that the greatest bull market ever known in Wall Street failed to materialize. A few stocks have advanced materially, but the general list has remained in statu quo. To look for the cause it may be summed up in one word—manipulation. It became manifest that the high range of prices was not the result of investment of purchases, but of "deals" or rumors of deals. The real investment market has had a reactionary tendency. While 1906 was the biggest year in stocks the transactions in bonds with the exception of Governments were far behind 1905. Dealings in listed stocks amounted to 220,345,977 shares as against 211,859,800 in 1905, and in unlisted stocks to 59,253,878 shares, as compared with 48,360,457 in 1905. State and railroad bonds to the amount of $833,802,700 were dealt in in 1905, but only $633,638,500 in 1906. In unlisted bonds the transactions aggregated but $38,628,380, as against $180,598,200 in 1905. Railway earnings in 1906 increased remarkably and dividends increased with them. The community has prospered, but the great public have not come into the stock market. The stock commission houses have suffered in spite of the enormous volume of business, the largest in the history of the exchange.

TREASURY RELIEF INEFFECTIVE.

Again must we go back to this money question and the money market in this review. Real estate and building interests are naturally more interested in the action of this commodity than any other. The year 1906 has taught us that anything that the Secretary of the Treasury may do in aiding the money market is futile. Help from the Treasury is simply a palliative and does not touch the seat of the disease. Treasury relief has simply prevented liquidation by upholding or broadening credit, but the result of the remedy may be worse than the malady itself. There must be a real curative, going to the foundation of things, and that can only come about by legislation in Congress, which will give us a rational elastic currency, with enough money to "go round." Foreign countries and other great financial centres do not suffer as we do. Of course, conditions in Europe differ widely from those in this country, which are, it is almost trite to say, unprecedented.

CURRENCY REFORM IMPERATIVE.

As to the distribution of "rights," the increase in dividends and the great stock watering deals there is little to say. Wall Street is not overflowing with enthusiasm at these things because the money is the dominating factor. Currency reform is no longer an academic question—it is imperative without delay.

As to the bearing of the money question on real estate it is generally conceded that the real estate market is in sound condition. In spite of tight money there have been few foreclosure sales. Interest rates still continue high, and there is much indisposition to loan even on the best of realty security. To sum up, there should be easier money in the early part of this year, as the demand for legislation with that end in view from all over the country is so general and acute. If this be done, the year 1907 may be more notable in the development of the country in all respects than any previous year.

Lower Interest Rate Near.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE TITLE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK.

THE present situation in real estate is not unlike that which seems to confront the stock market. A long period of prosperity, with steadily enhancing values, has on the one hand predisposed the public toward a chronically optimistic view of the future. Indeed of real estate, which, unlike stocks, cannot be "sold short," it may be said that there cannot be found any widely expressed bearish sentiment. Nevertheless, certain unfavorable elements in the present situation have caused the judicious to proceed carefully in regard to future commitments, and have led to a waiting policy on the part of many conservative operators, with the view of ascertaining what will be the developments of the next few months. While there is no connection between real estate values and the temporary movements of the Stock Exchange, any widespread change in the prosperity of the country cannot be without its effect upon real estate prices. General business conditions throughout the country to-day are unquestionably on an unexampled plane of prosperity. Money conditions, however, not only throughout the United States, but in almost the entire civilized world, exhibit symptoms of strain which it would be folly to ignore.

EDGAR J. LEVEY.

To speak with more particular reference to the New York City real estate market, it may perhaps be said that the most acute factor in the existing situation, the overbuilding of tenements, is largely a local condition. While new building operations have for some years past been extremely active throughout the whole country, it may be doubted whether such excesses can be found in any other large city as those which in New York during 1905 and 1906 led to the production of more than double the new housing accommodations required by the increase of population. Nevertheless, even this threatening crisis now seems likely to be safely passed. Mortgagors, building loan operators and creditors of builders generally have exhibited a tolerance and forbearance toward their debtors unheard of in the older days of speculative building. Foreclosures have been comparatively few, and while the strain is still severe, it now seems more than possible that anything in the nature of an acute panic in tenement holdings will be averted. If so, the underlying virtues of New York City real estate and the phenomenal growth of our population may yet bring profits in instances where they are not now expected.

Despite the stringency of the money market, the beneficent effects of the mortgage recording tax law are making themselves felt. Institutional lending still remains disappointing, but an ever-increasing amount of money seems to be coming into the mortgage market from trustees, estates and individual investors. Signs of this are so abundant that the day of lower interest rates on mortgages cannot be postponed to a far distant future. One of the most lamentable features of the present money stringency has been the enforced tying up of investment property with mortgages bearing directly or indirectly the extreme legal rate of interest. Nothing short of absolute necessity should induce such a course, in view of the likelihood of easier mortgage rates before the close of another year.

The one supreme problem which confronts the future of New York realty to-day is that of transportation; and in that problem is bound up not merely questions of material wealth, but in a large sense the betterment of our standard of living and social conditions generally. The outlook in this respect is not replete with encouragement. Between the impracticability of the Legislature and the ineptitude of the Rapid Transit Commission the situation now approaches an impasse. Nor has the press shown that grasp of essential facts which must precede any intelligent moulding of public opinion. The more or less extreme views of impracticable doctrinaires are not likely in the long run to save the city from the designs of corporate monopoly. There could be at present no greater contribution to the cause of civic betterment than the most earnest, intelligent and unprejudiced effort to solve this problem on the part of our foremost citizens. We have been forehanded in our handling of the subject of increased water supply, we should be none the less so in the matter of transportation. A few more years of aimless discussion and haphazard drift will produce a situation which will become intolerable, not merely to some, but to all New Yorkers.

Progress in Taxation.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TAX COMMISSIONERS, CITY OF NEW YORK.

THE efforts of the simplified spellers seem likely to have at least one good result, even though they do make us go to spelling school again. There are evidences of a new public interest in our language both spoken and written. It seems generally conceded that, as a nation, we are ready of speech but that our pronunciation is slovenly. We are careless in the use of words and have a tendency to write artificially rather than simply and plainly. The highest function of the language is to convey thought with absolute precision; and careless thinking may be responsible in part for careless speech.

HON. LAWSON PURDY.

Of late years we have heard much of constructive criticism, probably more than would be at all necessary if we were not in a fair way to lose the proper historical significance of the word criticism. As commonly used, the word criticism is almost synonymous with fault-finding whereas, in truth, it is derived from the Greek word "Krino," to judge. A critic then may praise as well as blame and in his judgment, by pointing out the mistakes to be avoided and the work well done, may show the way toward better things. Indiscriminate eulogy is as misleading as useless and indiscriminate blame.

This is the season for thanksgiving and we in the State of New York have much to be thankful for, even in our condemned and despised tax laws. If we regard them critically and with the optimistic temperament, it will not be difficult to see how much better off we are than many of our sister States. We should not give thanks in the spirit of the Pharisee that we are not as other men are, but with due humility confess that what we have we owe more to our ancestors who left us free from the constitutional restraints which tie the hands and check the progress of most of the western States.

CONSTITUTION'S ADVANTAGES IN NEW YORK.

The Constitution of New York is practically silent as to taxation. In Ohio the Constitution provides that all property real and personal shall be taxed uniformly at its true value in money and many other States are similarly restrained or have identical provisions copied from the Ohio Constitution.

I have recently visited the States of Ohio, Kentucky and Missouri, making some special study of their tax conditions. If those who grumble about the New York Tax Laws could be forced to live a year in St. Louis, Louisville or Cincinnati, they would return chastened in spirit and ready to give thanks for all that is good in our native State. In Kentucky every man is under obligations, which can be enforced, to make out a list of his property under more than fifty separate headings, to the accuracy of which he must make oath. Ohio and Missouri have similar laws and in St. Louis a man is not allowed to deduct from the aggregate of his possessions any indebtedness contracted for their purchase. More than this, if he owns stock in a corporation incorporated under the laws of another State, he must pay taxes on the value of that stock although the property which it represents is actually taxed elsewhere.

The State of Minnesota is rejoicing because after a five years struggle they have succeeded in freeing themselves from the identical restraints of the Ohio Constitution which they copied fifty years ago. This clears the way for progress and improvement in Minnesota. In all these States I have mentioned the local tax system so far as it affects personal property is hopelessly ineffective. They have attempted the impossible and, according to the habits Nature has, natural laws suspend the operation of the foolishly-devised, man-made laws.

PROGRESS IN NEW YORK.

We have not wholly escaped from the vices of ineffective taxation, but we have advanced a long distance beyond those typical States of the middle west. There are economic objections to the taxation of many of the subjects taxable there and here but ineffectiveness is a sufficient objection always to condemn any provision of a tax system. When a law is ineffective it bears unequally on persons similarly situated and this in practice confers favors on some and confiscates the property of others. Prior to 1901 this was the situation in New York with reference to the taxation of Banks and Trust Companies and is now the case in most of the middle western States. In 1901 an effective law was passed for the taxation of Banks and Trust Companies under which there is no excuse for any discrimination and under which there practically is no discrimination. Every bank and trust company pays one per cent. on the book value of its assets. Before 1901 banks paid on the market value of their stock at the local tax rate. Sometimes the assessment exceeded the book value and sometimes it was not half so great, while the tax rate varied from 1 to 3 .

The revenue from trust companies is improperly diverted, but that presents a different issue from the effectiveness of the tax, to which no objection can be made.

In regard to the taxation of mortgages, the States I have mentioned are in even a worse position than the State of New York was before the law of 1905. The tax keeps up the rate of interest and falls with distressing inequality upon those least able to bear it. The inability in Missouri to deduct debts from credits renders the situation so impossible that good citizens of St. Louis say that lying in regard to this matter is no longer considered an evidence of dishonesty.

The mortgage tax law of 1905 was really a blessing in disguise for people's eyes were opened to the real effect of mortgage taxation and for the first time were ready to believe that the borrowers are the principal sufferers. It was possible then for the first time to obtain comparative statistics showing the effect of mortgage taxation on the rate of interest under the general property tax and the effect of a one-half per cent. per annum tax, as compared with Massachusetts, where mortgages have been exempt since 1881. This experiment was probably worth all it cost for us alone but beside that it has furnished an object lesson for all the States of the country. Without the law of 1905, we might not have succeeded in obtaining the law of 1906, which puts New York in the best position of any State in the Union in which mortgages are subject to any taxation at all. Total exemption is best, but this tax falls equally on all who are similarly situated, and is in the highest degree effective.

Effective taxation in the State of New York is now only a matter of keeping on. What we have left of the old general property tax on personal property amounts to little in revenue and can more easily be ended than mended. Beside, the injustice it creates and the check to our commercial advancement that it imposes, it is seriously disturbing the financial administration of the municipalities of the State.

ARREARS OF TAXES IN NEW YORK.

When the Advisory Commission appointed by the Mayor took up the question of uncollectible arrears of taxes, they found that nearly $35,000,000 had been lost to the city on account of personal taxes and that under the Charter there was no way to prevent a continuing deficiency to the amount of $3,000,000 a year.

Amendments to the Charter devised by that Commission were enacted last winter which relieved the Finance Department by funding the deficiency and which gave the Board of Estimate the power and imposed it upon the Board as a duty, to provide in the Budget hereafter an amount sufficient to make good annually the deficiency not previously provided for. For the first time, the city will now pay its current expenses from its current income and will no longer run in debt because of deficiency in current revenues. We may expect that our example will be a help to other cities of the State.

The New Hoffman House.

Madison Square is being presented with another notable building—to be erected in connection with the Hoffman House, at the northwest corner of Broadway and 24th st by Francis S. Kinney, of No. 135 Broadway, president of the Hotel de Luxe Co., and owner of the Hoffman House in Madison Square. The scheme first is to erect an L-shape building fronting 49.3 ft. on Broadway, with a wing in 24th st, having a frontage of 47.2½ ft. in that street. Later on the present corner building (as soon as possession can be secured), having a year's lease yet to run, will be demolished and the entire plot will be replaced with this handsome edifice. The exterior will be of granite and limestone, with limestone coping, stone cornices, terra cotta flat arch floors, copper skylights, etc. It will have twelve stories and the most modern and elaborate equipment known to metropolitan hotels. The Broadway ground floor has been planned for store purposes. Altogether, the project is estimated to cost nearly $2,000,000. The Thompson-Starrett Co., 49 Wall st, is general contractor, and R. L. Daus, 130 Fulton st, is architect. Two other great works are also in progress on the square, namely the Brunswick Building and the Metropolitan Tower, to add to the architectural magnificence of the most beautiful public place in the world.

The Mortgage Market in 1906

By RICHARD M. HURD
President Lawyers Mortgage Company

THE mortgage market opened in 1906 with rates ½% higher than prior to July 1, 1905, owing to the Mortgage Tax Law of 1905 imposing an annual tax of ½%. As a counteracting advantage all such mortgages were tax exempt and hence attracted many millions of trust funds which were hitherto invested in Government or New York City bonds to avoid taxation. Thus while money was in demand and working steadily tighter, borrowers were able to obtain funds by paying ½% higher rates than in previous years. About this time a study of the figures of new buildings in New York led the most conservative lenders to the opinion that at the existing rate of progress there was decided danger of over building in New York, and the Lawyers' Title Insurance and Trust Company and some others stopped making building loans. The volume of mortgage business, as shown by the weekly mortgage records of the Record and Guide, while large, continued to fall further behind the record-breaking figures of 1905.

During this time, interest rates on loans on securities mounted to abnormal figures, such as for call money in New York, 60% in January and 30% in April. At Albany a hard and successful fight was being waged by the Allied Real Estate Interests, under the able leadership of Mr. B. Aymar Sands, against the annual ½% mortgage tax and in favor of a recording tax of ½% paid by the borrower, under which a mortgage would be thenceforth tax exempt. The first effect of the passage of this law was to cause lenders to delay the closing of loans till after July 1, when the new law went into effect. On that date interest rates dropped automatically ½%, although borrowers had to pay the ½% recording tax. The constant pressure of demand for money due in the United States to the extraordinary business activity and the obstinate holding up of prices for stocks on the New York Stock Exchange by large speculators, in defiance of all the steadily accumulating factors adverse to a bull position, and due in Europe to the after effects of the Russo-Japanese and Boer Wars, began to have some influence on mortgage rates. This showed itself chiefly at the two extremes of the security scale, both on the highest grade of mortgage loans by raising interest rates from a minimum of 4% to a minimum of 4½%, and on loans in the newer outlying districts or on those exceeding 70% of the value of the property, by raising rates from 5% to 5½%. It is beyond dispute, however, that the change in the Mortgage Tax Law from the annual ½% charge of 1905 to the single recording ½% charge of 1906 worked an annual benefit of nearly ½% to borrowers. In fact if any feature of mortgage interest rates should arouse surprise, it is that with call rates in New York, the last half of the year at 40% in September, 27% in November and 45% in December, with time money at 6% and the German Imperial Bank rate 7%, that New York City mortgage rates have kept along at 4½%, 5% and 5½%, varying only according to the grade of the security. The least desirable loans have had to pay 6%, but this is not entirely abnormal, as there are always loans offered which are so undesirable as to be unobtainable except at 6%.

While the total mortgage loans made in New York dropped from $757,675,075 in 1905 to $608,544,826 in 1906, or a decrease of 19%, some companies dealing only in the higher grade mortgages, such as the Lawyers Mortgage Company, did a larger business in 1906 than in 1905. It may throw some light on the gradual change in interest rates to note that of this company's mortgage sales in 1905, 21% netted 4% and 79% netted 4½%, while in 1906 12% netted 4%, 85% netted 4½%, and 3% netted 5%, the average interest rate netted by investors rising from 4.39% in 1905 to 4.63% in 1906.

In general it is true that mortgage interest rates, while they do not fluctuate as violently as rates in other financial markets, are necessarily affected by them, as capital flows from one market to another. Interest rates all over the world are now on an almost unprecedently high level, but as far as the United States is concerned, I cannot see any signs of lower rates until liquidation and lower prices rule in the stock market, until the floating debt of Wall Street to London, estimated at $900,000,000, is paid off, and until a lull in business activity occurs, Further, it is difficult to see why there should be any great drop in interest rates until after the next great industrial and commercial panic. When this will come it is impossible to say, but the foundations for it are already being laid by the widespread extravagance and luxurious living, and by the colossal expenditures converting floating into fixed capital.

It is said that in the event of the erecting of the new court house on Union sq, many buildings in that vicinity will be altered for office purposes. It is understood that the Parker Bldg., southeast corner of 4th av and 19th st, will probably be converted into an office structure should the city conclude arrangements to acquire the proposed court house site.

MANHATTAN VALUES HIGH

President Morton, of the Equitable, Thinks There Are Good Reasons to Believe That There Is Some Inflation.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

I have yours of the 28th, making the following inquiries:

(1) What, from the point of view of the big insurance companies, is the comparative safety and attraction of real estate investments, mortgages and building loans in Greater New York at the present time?

(2) Ought New York City real estate to receive preferential consideration from insurance companies? If yes, why? If no, why?

(3) What interest might be deemed fair and equitable, on loans that the insurance companies may pass upon as safe, and attractive?

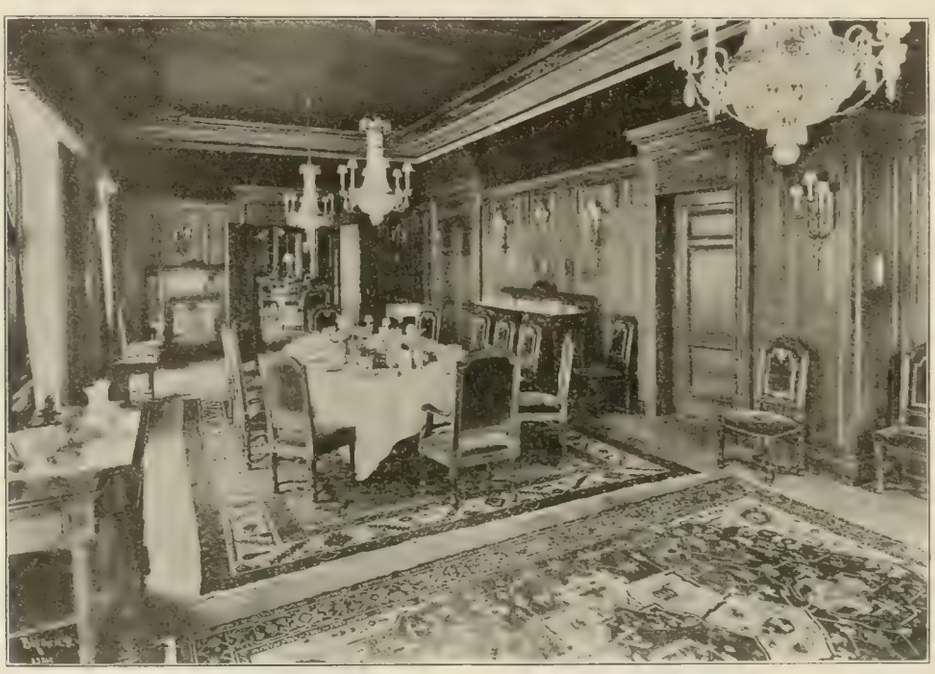
(4) What apparent reasons exist, if any, for preferring other investments than mortgage loans?

In answer to inquiry No. 1, I have to say that from our point of view there is nothing safer or more attractive in the way of real estate mortgages than good business property, well selected on fair valuations, in Greater New York at the present time.

In answer to your second question, I think New York City real estate should receive preferential consideration from insurance companies only on account of its quality, but I see no reason why New York City real estate should receive preference for any other reason. I think the fair way for the big insurance companies to place their money on real estate mortgages, so far as it is possible to do so conservatively, is in those sections of the country which produce the insurance premiums. I can conceive of no good reason why New York should have any especial preference.

3. The question of interest depends entirely upon the money market. The relation of supply to demand is the sole regulator of value, and applies to interest rates as well as to everything else.

4. I do not know of any good reasons why we should prefer other investments to mortgage loans. The first thing that insurance companies must require in their investments is security, and, second, is income. Good railroad bonds are now being sold at prices that yield a good income, and in addition there is a chance at present for an advance in the price of these securities, which does not obtain in real estate mortgages.



Personally, I am of the opinion that values on Manhattan Island at the present time are high. Many people say there is no boom, but I think there are good reasons to believe that there is some inflation. It will be unfortunate to have values increase too rapidly. Very truly yours,

PAUL MORTON.

A Healthy Reaction From Abnormal Conditions.

(By the President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co.)

THE real estate market has been for six months in a healthy reaction from the abnormal activity that had prevailed for the preceding year. The speculation in suburban acreage, particularly, had gone too far and thousands of lots were being offered to the public that would certainly disappoint the buyers if any were found for them. The healthy condition of the real estate market as a whole has been amply proven. A rest of a few months in the production of new houses to enable the builders to dispose of their product which outran the immediate demand, will clear the market and a new and wholesome activity is bound to follow. The factors which make this certain are not at all obscure. The effect of the new transit facilities nearing completion will be very great, and the growth of the greater city will continue along sounder lines than ever. The drift of business and population from all over the country to this great city was never more pronounced than now, and with the new bridges and tunnels to Brooklyn completed, that city of homes will show a growth that will surprise those who have not carefully watched the conditions surrounding it. The effect of all this on business property in the heart of New York will be very great, and now, while the market is not particularly good in many other lines, it is better than ever in business property.

The mortgage situation for the moment is very unfortunate, in that the expected advantages to the borrower from the new recording tax law have been entirely postponed because of the conditions prevailing in the general money market and the dearth of money for investment either in mortgages or railroad bonds or any similar security. That the law will ultimately have the effect of reducing the rate to the borrower, there can be no doubt. The Title Guarantee and Trust Co. is the largest dealer in mortgages in the country, and while it does not make the rate, for its customers do that, it knows thoroughly what the rate is and it sees, already, decided effects arising from the new law and that investors are ready to take a tax exempt mortgage at a rate at least one-half of 1% lower than one that is not exempt. It further sees a marked tendency on the part of trustees and other taxable individuals to seek exempt mortgages as the best paying investments open to them. Such investors have been selling their railroad bonds and entering the mortgage market and were very numerous during the last few weeks preceding the second Monday in January in order to be in shape on tax day. There are many who are not yet alive to their opportunities, but no one can doubt their action when they are. The result is going to be that when money conditions become normal there will be a great influx of money into the mortgage market, and 4% tax free will be a rate satisfactory to the lender, and ultimately 3½%. That rate has prevailed in Boston for years under similar conditions and certainly New York borrowers will fare as well in due time.

Tenement Houses as an Investment.

NO one can or will care to deny that the year ending July 1, 1906, witnessed the most remarkable and continued speculation in tenements and flats and the largest production of new buildings of this character that New York or any other city has ever experienced. The rise in their value was as unparalleled as it was phenomenal. That in such a runaway market men's speculative temperament should get the better of their sober judgment and that a state bordering on intoxication should result from a too free and full indulgence in such tempting, though reckless, speculation is not at all surprising. It required a sobering tonic like the present continued and severe stringency in the money market to call a halt and to exert a steadying influence. And now with the end of 1906 in sight and the approach of the new year, the question uppermost in real estate men's minds is, "What will the year 1907 bring forth? Is the present quiet condition of the market—and more especially the market for tenements and flats and lots suitable for tenements and flats—but the lull before the storm, or is it only a breathing spell before another spurt in rising values?"

J. L. BUTTENWIESER.

Those who were most intoxicated by their success in wild speculation are naturally in a condition bordering on delirium tremens superinduced by the heavy load of debts they still have to carry. That "in the cold gray dawn of the morning after" these operators should take a dark view of the future is to be expected. I have always found that those who are most daring and loudly optimistic in times of prosperity, who ridicule all danger signals and notes of warning, become the most disheartened and pessimistic, the very moment the first cloud appears above the horizon. Personally I could never share their fantastic dreams, nor can I now share their deep gloom.

The present lull in the real estate market is due to perfectly natural causes and should and probably will disappear with their disappearance. The first and direct cause is the long-continued and severe stringency in the money market, which makes it difficult to obtain first mortgages on finished buildings except at higher rates of interest and in smaller amounts, and which at the same time makes it well-nigh impossible to secure building loans for new ventures in tenements and flats except at a prohibitive cost. The remote but more serious cause is the slight overproduction of tenements and flats in the Bronx, on Washington Heights, in the outlying boroughs and in the upper end of Manhattan. By a very natural but fortunate circumstance these two causes, though operating together, prove a corrective of each other. The stringency in the money market turns out to be a blessing in disguise for the investor in tenements and flats, since it is absolutely preventing a continuance of the building fever. This fact, together with the continued flow of immigration to our shores, will soon correct any of the possible dangers of overproduction.

When we stop to consider that the population of our city is growing at the rate of fully 200,000 a year, that the country at large is in a most prosperous condition, that all branches of trade are alike active and profitable, that mill, workshop and foundry are crowded to their utmost capacity and that in spite of this unprecedented activity in every line of business and of manufacture, there is, according to Bradstreet and Dun, no overproduction, when we remember that the laborer, both skilled and unskilled, has steady and remunerative employment, we need not fear that tenements and the cheaper grade of flats will not continue to be in the future, as they have been in the past, one of the very best forms of investment for the man of moderate means.

I do not mean to say, nor do I wish to be understood as prophesying that during the coming year we will see a repetition of the speculative activity which prevailed last year. This is neither likely nor desirable. I think, however, it is reasonable to expect that there will be a continually increasing demand for this class of real estate from small investors, merchants and manufacturers, who wish to lay by part of their profits in some safe field outside of their business. They will continue, if they are wise and conservative, to look with favor on centrally located tenement and flat property, which, come what may, will ever prove a sound and profitable source of income and will in all likelihood grow more valuable as the city continues to increase in size and in importance. No man who invests in this kind of property situated in the heart of Manhattan, within easy access of the main avenues and arteries of trade, need be alarmed that his investment or ultimate prospects will suffer materially from any temporary cessation of speculation. The supply of centrally located property of this class, instead of increasing, must ever grow less and less, as bridge approaches, railroad and tunnel terminals, parks, business houses, factories, stables, storage and warehouses require the demolition of row upon row of existing tenements and flats and at the same time cause the value of the land to rise beyond the point where it can possibly pay to erect new tenements.

Those who are more daring and who still have a desire to combine more of speculation with their investment will be tempted to purchase less favorably located tenements in the extreme end of Manhattan and in the outlying boroughs. If they buy them cheap enough, if they have a substantial equity in their purchase and if they will have the patience to stand a year or two of comparatively meagre returns upon their investment and to overcome the troubles that are always attendant upon securing desirable, steady tenants in newly-settled districts, they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they own a piece of property at a price below its cost of production, and the future ought, and I think will, realize for them their hopes for better rental returns and increased fee values.

Of course prophecy is both a safe and a dangerous thing—safe because no one can at the moment authoritatively contradict it—dangerous, because events may quickly prove its fallacy. None the less I feel safe in prophesying that, if business conditions in general fulfill their promise of continued prosperity, we may look forward to a gradual, steady, healthful return to normal activity in this as well as in every other branch of the real estate business.

Successful Management OF A Modern Office Building

By J. S. DeSELDING

IN response to the request of the Record and Guide that I write an article on the successful management of the modern office building, I feel that in no better way can I comply with such invitation than by giving the results of my own firm's experience with down-town office buildings during the past ten years.

J. S. DE SELDING.

The requisites for a successful office building are, first, suitable location, preferably a corner; second, design, to give best light and air to each office; third, floors, so arranged that small offices can be readily combined into large suites to suit the demand of tenants who need additional space. The building should be at least twenty to thirty stories in height and have all modern appliances and conveniences, such as rapid elevators, pneumatic cleaners, filter and cooled water systems, etc.

Assuming that we have such modern office building to care for and to fill with the best class of tenants who will pay top prices for their offices, we now arrive at the serious consideration of its management. The management of a modern office building has become of necessity a science, since the high values of land and the cost of constructing a skyscraper to meet the competition of the present renting market require the most careful attention to all details, both small and large.

The first thing to be secured is a responsible and efficient agent, having suitable offices, convenient for tenants, and a sufficient and capable office force to handle the business. Such offices are divided into departments, whose representatives look after their special branches, as follows:

(a) The agent or manager, who has the general supervision and looks after the preparation of renting plans, schedules, character of tenants, drawing leases and other necessary papers, prepares circulars, letters, etc., and passes upon all important questions that may come up. Purchasing supplies and the general care of the building are among the duties of the agent, and require honesty, ability and much time to be devoted to them.

(b) Cashier's Department—Should contain an exact method of keeping records of leases, renting plans, references of tenants, payment of rent, etc., etc.

(c) Collectors, who must keep after tenants for prompt payment of rent.

(d) Renting clerks, who canvass for new tenants personally and by letter. Should be persistent in their effort to effect leases and in following up inquiries, their motto being "Vigilance is the price of success." Arranging for changes in layout of offices, looking up tenants' references as to responsibility and desirability.

The making of sub-leases, where tenants fail, leave town, need more space, or for other causes, is often a source of trouble (in case of dispossess proceedings), and should be avoided as much as possible.

All complaints of tenants should come to the office and be referred to the proper department. Great care is needed in handling these complaints in order to avoid friction between landlord and tenant, as polite but firm conduct on the part of the management will often save the landlord considerable money and at the same time put the tenant in good humor.

Next to the office management comes the superintendent, whom we will consider for the present as the chief engineer, whose duties are to look after the engine room and entire steam, electric and machinery plant, and also to inspect all work done in care of the building. Cleanliness is a matter of first consideration, not only on account of health, but as adding to the general appearance of the building.

The engine room of a modern office building is located far below the street level, and resembles that of a large ocean steamship in its size and number and varities of pumps, boilers, engines, dynamos, etc. A pneumatic cleaning plant, water filter and cooling system, carpenter shop and storeroom for supplies and extra partitions, etc., are all part of a complete plant. The question of coal supply is a most important one in winter weather, as few buildings have sufficient space to store more than enough for one week's consumption. Light, heat and power are generally supplied from the building's own plant, though some take theirs from outside lines of steam and electric companies.

The great amount of space necessary to accommodate this department takes away from what was formerly known as the "basements" of stores, and to this extent is driving out of office buildings the retail stores. It is probable that in the near future this class of trade will be found located exclusively on the side streets.

The engine room force consists of assistant engineers (night and day), firemen (night and day), oiler, plumber and electrician; the number depending upon the size and character of the plant. Chief engineers often have their apartments in the building, generally a deck-house on the roof, so as to be always on hand in case of necessity. They also look after the fire hose and connections, and some instruct the porters in "fire drill."

The care and up-keep of the elevator system requires constant attention, as no other branch of the "service" of a building comes in for so much complaint and criticism as this one. Elevator runners are a source of worry and annoyance, as they must be polite and efficient and have good memories for names of tenants and come in contact with many varieties of passengers in their cars. Their hours on duty vary, but are on the average about ten hours per day. When one is sick or away for any cause a porter or extra elevator man is put on the car to take his place. "Breaking in" of a porter as elevator man is one of the disagreeable features, as he requires a "regular" man to instruct him, and often leaves the building as soon as he knows a little of the duties of the position to engage somewhere else as an "experienced elevator man."

Hallmen, or starters, are also watchmen, and patrol the building day and night. Porters and scrub women are under the direct supervision of the janitor, or head porter. A carpenter also is kept as one of the force in some of the larger buildings. The porters are in the building all day; the scrub women from 6 to 9 a. m. and 5 to 9 p. m.

From the foregoing it will be seen that there are four objects to be accomplished by the agent before he can rest contented—first, he must have a successful location commercially; second, a successful building architecturally; third, tenants for all the offices who pay their rent promptly and have no complaints to make either in winter or summer; fourth, an owner who is satisfied as to the net income returned upon his investment.

Then only may he say "I have demonstrated the successful management of the modern office building."

The Upper West Side

Present Era Finds Builders With No Lots Upon Which to Increase the Supply of Dwellings.

EDWARD CLARK, "pioneer" of the West Side, before a meeting of the West Side Association on December 20, 1879, read a paper entitled "The City of the Future." In this paper Mr. Clark illustrated the lack of foresight by the original founders of the City of New York, the inadequacy of conditions for both commercial and residential purposes, and the importance of planning a city which would be appropriate 100 years hence. He referred particularly to the necessity of constructing apartment houses and dwellings adapted to the requirements of elegant housekeeping, which should be "Some splendidly, many elegantly, and all comfortably; that the architecture should be ornate, solid and permanent, and that the principle of economic combination should be employed to the greatest possible extent." He pointed out that the strip of land lying north of 59th street and west of Central Park afforded an excellent opportunity for the prosecution of such work. The same year Mr. Clark began to improve the north side of 73d street, Columbus avenue to Amsterdam avenue, with private dwellings, and the Columbus avenue corner with an apartment and store. A few months previous John D. Crimmins had begun the erection of some tenements at Ninth avenue and 63d street, and H. H. Cammann, the erection of similar buildings at Tenth avenue and 82d street. These three operations, the first of the kind on the West Side, permanently stamped the character of their respective localities, and right here we may place the real beginning of the West Side. The progress of improvement, however, was retarded by the hesitancy of builders. But this is not at all surprising when we recall that comparatively few crosstown streets had yet been opened; public improvements, such as grading, paving, flagging, water and gas mains were progressing slowly; on all sides were shanties and market gardens; transit facilities consisted of the Eighth avenue horse car line and the elevated railroad, which, prior to December, 1879, terminated at 104th street.

GEORGE L. SLAWSON.

1880—THE BUILDING MOVEMENT STARTED.

In the latter part of 1880 the work of improvement was again taken up. During that year, besides the construction of some twenty-seven dwellings on the north side of 73d street, west of Columbus avenue, Mr. Clark, despite assurances from all sides of the fallacy of such an enterprise, began the erection of his long-heralded apartment house, the "Dakota," which at its completion in the latter part of 1884, was the largest apartment house of the character in this country, and which to-day is a creditable monument to its founder. The success attending this and other immediate undertakings, soon attracted the attention of builders and operators throughout the city, and, beginning with the year 1881, there was a gradual increase in the construction of dwellings, the production being most prolific in the years 1886, 1887 and 1889. The filling up of the East Side and the high prices established there, soon obliged residence seekers to look elsewhere and they were quick to recognize the attractions of the West Side, with its broad avenues and boulevards, its unrivalled natural beauty, the novel styles of architecture adopted, the superiority of the interior arrangements over the old-style house, and the many modern conveniences introduced. Thus houses met with rapid sale. Builders made substantial profits and went into one operation after another. Of great importance at that time was the liberality of financial institutions in making loans. Money was always forthcoming for any suitable improvement. During this period of construction had the financial institutions withdrawn their support or become more conservative in the amount of money which they were willing to advance in so new a section, it is questionable whether the high character of the improvements could ever have been maintained.

While the side streets were being improved with dwellings, Columbus and Amsterdam avenues were being improved with 5-sty corner and inside apartments with stores, the character of which was so vastly superior to any offered to the tenant in other sections of the city at the same rental, that they were soon fully occupied. This class of property was quickly taken up by investors and its production thereby augmented. Thus followed a period of great activity in the building of dwellings and apartments until just at the time when the section threatened to outgrow its transit facilities—about 1901—new surface lines were constructed and the motive power of existing surface lines changed and great advantage gained in carrying capacity and running time, and the West-sider found himself in touch with every possible business or social center of the city by means of four surface trolley lines with their many connections together with the Sixth and Ninth avenue elevated systems.

BROADWAY REVIVAL.

Although there was active building in progress all over the section, Broadway, as late as 1898, had been severely left alone. The erection of handsome residences along this avenue as first contemplated, was found to be impracticable. About this time there appeared in one of our leading newspapers an article which maintained that the 5-sty apartment must go, and that on the West Side the 7-sty apartment would supplant the 5-sty flat, as did the skyscraper the old office building in commercial districts. This article aroused considerable interest and had a powerful effect upon determining the future of Broadway, for builders and operators now turned their attention to that avenue, and apartments began to multiply rapidly. Here again success was due, in a great measure, to the liberal permanent loans obtainable, the West Side being a favored section among the loaning institutions.

Nor were they satisfied with the 7-story apartment, but proceeded to erect others of greater dimensions. Prominent among these is the Ansonia, erected at a cost exceeding $6,000,000, which we do not hesitate to say is unrivaled throughout the world. Then there is the Apthorpe, the new Astor apartment hotel, now in the course of construction, estimated to cost several millions. Not only Broadway was benefited by this movement, but also Central Park West, where there are such apartments as Georgean Court, Livingston, Cascade, Cherbourg, and Riverside Drive with the Turrets, Chatsworth and Hendrik Hudson. To return to Broadway, it is amazing to see what strides have been made along this thoroughfare when one reflects that less than ten years ago there was scarcely an improvement along that avenue. At the present time, excepting block fronts, there are barely a dozen available corners below 116th street. These corners and the block fronts represent for the greater part the most valuable property on the West Side, and are being held by estates not desirous of disposing of them, but if once sold, they would rapidly be improved. With the advent of the subway and the resulting advantages, residentially and commercially, it is difficult to predict when values along this avenue shall have reached their top notch. The increase, particularly in the proximity of subway stations, has been as much as 100 per cent. The commercial aspect is decidedly favorable. High-class retail shops, offices, garages, hotels and places of amusement are locating in great numbers. A point of special interest is at Sherman square, where there has been a complete transition. At one corner we find Acker, Merrill & Condit occupying the first story of an imposing apartment structure just completed at a cost approximating $3,000,000; at the northwest corner, the Hotel St. Andrew; at the southwest corner, the Lincoln Trust Building, formerly the famous Colonial Club, now converted into a modern office building, and the southeast corner, formerly a school, has been leased by the Import Cigar Co. for twenty-one years at a rental aggregating $300,000. This business expansion on the West Side originated at the Grand Circle, then proceeded to Empire square, has now reached Sherman square, and will not halt there. The block intersecting Sherman square, that is, 72d street, between Broadway and Columbus avenue, bids fair to participate in this commercial development. Situated as it is with a subway express station and the junction of two surface lines on the west, an elevated station and surface lines on the east, and being on a driveway which is the connecting link between Fifth avenue and Riverside drive, it is destined to become the site of smart retail shops catering especially to automobile and carriage trade.

Enhancement in value has not restricted itself to Broadway, but has penetrated the entire section under consideration, particularly the northwestern extremity, Cathedral Heights, which has, within the past five years, developed into a choice residential and institutional locality, attributable to the introduction of present transit facilities. In the section under consideration, we find almost every spot available for the building of private dwellings, south of 116th street, taken up. Builders have no lots upon which to increase the supply of dwellings, and the many purchasers brought by the subway are buying their dwellings from old holders at advanced prices. People are realizing the accessibility of this section and the increased inquiry is most noticeable. THE NUMBER OF AVAILABLE DWELLINGS FOR SALE IS SMALL, THOSE FOR RENT, EVEN SMALLER, WHILE APARTMENTS NEVER WERE SO READILY RENTED. We ascribe this to the fact that we are nearer to the great business and amusement centers of the city than residents in the Fifties, between Fifth and Sixth avenues; that the subway takes us from 72d to the Grand Central depot in five minutes, to City Hall in sixteen minutes, to Wall street in twenty minutes; that our transit facilities are superior to those of any other section of the metropolis, and lastly, that there is probably no greater or more charming residential section in any of the commercial capitals of the world, for none can boast of a Central Park West with its unobstructed view of Central Park, or a Riverside drive with its superb view of the Hudson.

Auction Market in 1906.

THE market for improved property last spring was better than it has been for many years. Owing to the fact that the stringency in the money market this fall made it difficult for builders, speculators and operators to obtain building or permanent loans at reasonable rates of interest, there was not much activity in the auction market, especially in unimproved property. The market, however, for low-priced Bronx lots in the neighborhood of Williamsbridge and Wakefield, and along the White Plains road and Pelham Bay Parkway, has been excellent; and this section is to-day perhaps the most favored by speculators and home seekers, as every sale that I have held up there—and I have held most of them, such as the Schieffelin estate, Bathgate estate, Crawford estate, etc., has been very successful. The Drake estate property on Washington Heights, which I sold at auction last spring, was also very successful, owing principally to its nearness to the subway, which made it accessible to the lower part of the city; but at the present time, however, I am advising my clients and friends not to offer their unimproved property in the Dyckman section until mortgage conditions improve, as this property is now ripe for improvement by builders.

BRYAN L. KENNELLY.

While well located improved property will sell in any part of the city, I, personally, am not encouraging any sales of real estate until after Jan. 25, when, with the two hundred million dollar dividend and interest disbursements, I feel that the conditions of our real estate money market will materially improve, with the prospect of Secretary Shaw depositing in the banks a substantial amount of the Government surplus, and Congress passing some currency reform measure, which I hope will be permanent, as recommended by our President in his message of a few days ago. All these things will tend, in the near future, to help relieve our money market.

A great deal of property has been offered at auction recently that should not have been offered, and, in many cases, reported sold when not sold; this, of course, has a very bad effect on the market generally and is very misleading to adjoining owners.

The real estate market is all right and will continue to improve steadily, and I look for a splendid spring auction business, and only ask to have it as good in 1907 as it was in 1906.

B. L. KENNELLY.

—Work is advancing rapidly on the 11-sty building now in course of construction for Oppenheim, Collins & Co., at 33 and 35 West 34th st and 48 to 52 West 35th st. All of the steel framework is practically completed. The facade will be almost entirely of limestone and the structure will cost about $500,000 when completed.

Demand for Lofts South of 14th Street.

THE demand for lofts south of 14th street has this year been better and greater than at any time in the past. This is especially true of the newer buildings, which have good, natural light and all the modern improvements. The demand for large, light lofts, containing 10,000 square feet of floor space and more, has completely outrun the supply. During the present season, I have received more orders for lofts of this description than it was possible to fill. The whole trend of our day is toward the concentration of industry. The modern, up-to-date merchant finds it necessary to apply this principle to the utilization of space, condensing his business to as few floors as possible, thus rendering personal supervision easier, and reducing the force needed for business of a given magnitude. If the entire business can be conducted on one floor, so much the better.

E. TANENBAUM.

The question is asked: "What will become of the vacancies created by the tendency of certain trades to move north of 14th street?" The answer is simple enough, since the expansion of business is continually compelling importers and kindred trades further downtown to move steadily northward, together with the great number of out-of-town concerns eager to locate in the great metropolis, while their places again are quickly filled by the rapid increase of office buildings required by the large industrial concerns anxious to be represented in New York. Within the memory of many now living, the clothing trade of the city was located entirely in the district south of Canal street. Now it has gradually moved uptown and other trades have flocked into the downtown district to fill the vacancy. History is simply repeating itself with reference to other branches of industry.

Inasmuch as New York City is recognized to be the centre of trade of the United States, each year finds a greater increase in the number of out-of-town concerns locating here. Rentals may be expected to remain firm, or rather to ascend steadily, as is the case this year. The tendency is especially marked in the case of large lofts. With the population of the city constantly increasing at the rate of 150,000 a year, no other result could be expected.

E. TANENBAUM.

Fifth Avenue Transformation.

The year 1906 will go down in Real Estate annals as being one of marked activity and advancing prices on Fifth avenue and the adjoining cross streets. This activity has extended the entire length of the new business section, from 27th to 48th street, although south of 34th street and north of 42d street have perhaps disclosed the more important developments. The erection of the Brunswick Building on the old site of the Brunswick Hotel at 26th street has acted as a stimulant to that section and is, undoubtedly, indirectly responsible for the sale and final improvement of the old Addicks corner at 28th street; also the Lyons Building now under course of construction at No. 236-8 Fifth avenue. Two other prominent buildings in this section are now being built, one at the Southeast corner of 32d street, the other a 16 story building opposite the Waldorf.

J. P. SPEYERS.

It is also understood that plans are to be shortly filed for a mercantile building at 286-8-90 Fifth avenue. Prices obtained for ground in this locality show marked advances over the year 1905, lots readily bringing from $12,000 to $14,000 a front foot.

We look for higher prices in this section on account of the unusual transit facilities offered, a condition not enjoyed by that part of the avenue further north.

Between 34th and 42d streets the activity has not been so great, but this is explained by the fact that this property is now, I might say, out of the market. We have seen the opening of the new Altman store at 34th street, the new McCreery store in 34th street just off Fifth avenue and also the acquiring of sites by three of the prominent Trust Companies of the city; the New Netherlands Trust Company at the Northeast corner of 36th street, the Union Trust Company at the Northeast corner of 38th street and the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company between 40th and 41st streets.

The advent of these prominent financial institutions only emphasizes the strength and stability of this new business area, 34th street between Fifth avenue and Broadway has perhaps shown more marked development than any one block in the city. Prices have nearly doubled and the demand by the merchant for space brings out the fact that there is practically nothing left to offer.

It is impossible to predict the future of values or conditions in this block, but it will undoubtedly enjoy a higher standard than even 14th street or 23d street enjoyed in their palmiest days.

North of 42d street there have been some very prominent sales and building operations, some of them being the erection and opening of the new Day & Night Bank Building at the corner of 44th Street, the buildings now under course of construction at the northwest corner of 45th street, the southwest corner of 46th street and the southwest corner of 47th street.

To illustrate the marked advance of prices in this section, we might cite the case of one building which has sold four times in the last three years, the first sale being made at $470,000, the next at $485,000, the next at $625,000 and the last sale in the neighborhood of $700,000. I might also mention the sale of the Lotus Club at $15,000 a front foot, as being a record price for this locality.

The question is now being asked on all sides, "When are prices on Fifth avenue going to reach their top?" It was predicted two years ago that we had seen the limit of value and that the merchant could not afford to pay the rents then demanded. Since then, rentals have steadily advanced, until as high as $18,000 a year has been paid for a single inside store, and it is no longer a question of what the landlord is asking for his space, but for the desired location, the merchant is willing to pay nearly any price.

Comparing, if such a comparison can be made, prices of store rentals on Fifth avenue to-day with Old Bond street and Piccadilly in London and Avenue de l'Opera and Place de l'Opera in Paris, the same relative streets in those cities, we find that Fifth avenue rentals, figuring on a square foot basis, are about 20% higher, although the buildings in Paris and London are very old, the stores very much smaller, and the area much more limited than on Fifth avenue.

Fifth avenue property has been taken out of the hands of the weak holder and speculator and has been acquired by the estates, the large investors, and the merchants. The pieces that can be bought at the present time are few and far between, and it is not now a question of what property is in the market, but more a question of who can be induced to part with his or her holdings; except at figures far above the present range of prices. This condition will undoubtedly be the cause of fewer transactions being recorded as time goes on. We may see a general period of trade depression and falling off of prices throughout the country, but I do not think that Fifth avenue property, held as it is to-day, will suffer perceptibly.

The question is also often asked, how far up Fifth avenue the march of the business house will extend. It is understood now that very strong pressure is being brought to bear on the Trustees of Columbia University to release the fees on the blocks from 48th to 51st street, but there are so many owners in these blocks, of our millionaire class, who will vigorously oppose any encroachment of business, that it is doubtful if in the very near future, we will see this section very greatly disturbed.

The movement on foot to compel the removal of all stoops and encroachments on Fifth avenue and widen the roadway 14 feet will undoubtedly be brought to a head soon, and I find that the general opinion of the property owner, and merchant is very much in favor of this change. I might mention the case of two owners whose property is altered for business, but who still retain their stoops and areas. These men, although it would mean an expense of thousands of dollars to make the necessary alterations to comply with the law, are heartily in favor of the changes, their idea being, that the value of their property would be much enhanced and they would get back many times over the money expended in the alteration.

The high rents and high ground values on Fifth avenue at the present time have caused many merchants to seek positions in the side streets, adjacent to the avenue.

The streets from 27th to 34th, between Fifth avenue and Broadway have for some years been business streets. Rentals are good and prices have advanced, unimproved lots selling readily at from $4,500 to $5,000 a front foot.

Between 34th and 42d streets and Fifth and Sixth avenues, we have seen in the past year the first modern improvements. Loft buildings are being erected in 37th, 38th, and 39th streets and we can safely predict that in a few years these blocks will be entirely given over to the merchant. Prices here have also advanced until at the present time, $5,000 a front foot in the center of these blocks is the general price quoted.

1906 in Washington Heights Real Estate.

THE year of 1906 has been in many respects one of the most remarkable in the history of real estate on Washington Heights, and a careful and dispassionate review of its progress must result in a feeling of satisfaction to all who have the well-being and prosperity of this section at heart. The years immediately following any period of great activity and phenomenal increase in land values in any particular section must necessarily be those to which such values are put to their most severe test. It has been almost without precedent, not only in Western cities, but also in those near at hand, that so-called booms are followed immediately by long periods of absolute inactivity and great recession in prices. The tremendous market of the latter part of 1904 and the beginning of 1905—that movement which was by no means a boom in its usually accepted sense, but rather an awakening and a realization on the part of the real estate world of the tremendous possibilities in the development of the upper part of Manhattan Island—is too fresh in the memories of the readers of this paper to call for more than passing mention. The question that was foremost in the minds of all of those who are students of real estate conditions and who, by means of long experience and ripe judgment, have the power to see beyond conditions which sometimes blind the majority was whether this great increase in prices was also as great an increase in actual values. And now that the year of 1906 has drawn to its close we are in a position to say and to prove conclusively how well-based and how void of inflation the rise in values on Washington Heights was.

CHARLES GRIFFITH MOSES.

The summer of 1905 saw the beginning of the greatest building activity ever known in New York, and in this Washington Heights had its proportionate part. The prices of materials went higher and higher, but the builder was undismayed and the filing of plans went gaily on. In the beginning of 1906 many of these buildings, which were apartments of all descriptions, were completed and were ready to be subjected to the final test. Would they rent? The real estate man of average experience hardly expects to find many tenants during the months of January, February and March, and there was grave apprehension that most of the buildings completed during those months would stand untenanted for a long period. To the surprise of all, however, the contrary proved to be the result, and renting during the winter was so brisk as to be, to my mind, nothing short of phenomenal.

And not only was the demand for new flats active, but what was far more encouraging was the fact that there was little difficulty in maintaining and in some instances exceeding the rent schedules originally laid out by the builder. As the year developed it followed naturally that those forces which influenced the entire real estate situation made themselves felt on Washington Heights as well as elsewhere. And as the money market grew tighter active trading was curtailed here as in other parts of the city. The fact remains, however, that there was and is to-day a healthy demand for properties that show themselves to be satisfactory investments. New flats were bought all through the spring months, and there was considerable dealing in houses built under the old law. The demand for houses of this kind is always with us, for the reason that the investment required for their purchase is so much less than that of the new-law house. It is, I think, safe to say that there are practically no vacancies in old-law houses on Washington Heights. Rents have been maintained, and in some cases raised, and active dealing in them has almost ceased, owing to the fact that owners are finding them so profitable an investment that they can see no reason for selling.

When the anticipated summer dulness came it found Washington Heights in splendid condition to withstand it. Land values had been tested and proven. The rents obtained in the new flats had justified the prices paid for the land, and while there were few sales of vacant plots made, this was an additional proof of the stability of values. In any neighborhood where prices have been raised too high there are always many who are forced to dispose of their holdings either at cost or less. There has been nothing of this nature on Washington Heights. No plots are being offered at less than the market price, and if any were they would be quickly snapped up by keen speculators.

In the early part of the fall the situation on Washington Heights was similar to that all over New York. Tight money had its effect. Builders found great difficulty in getting permanent loans, and it was feared by some that there might be many foreclosures. But the class of builders operating on the Heights is so strong and the houses have been bringing such good returns that this has not come about. The proportion of foreclosures has been so small as not to have affected values in the slightest degree. Now that money has become easier and some of the large institutions are taking mortgages again there has been a very much more active aspect to the market.

One fact must be very patent to everyone who has made any study of conditions on Washington Heights, and that is that the demand for property has been for the best. Every builder who has put up a good building, well constructed and laid out, has had little difficulty in filling his house at perfectly satisfactory rents. I have in mind one builder who put up three apartments in the upper part of the Heights in a street some blocks from a subway station. These houses have been filled since completion and within the last ten days two have been sold at good prices. This is merely a typical instance, and many more of a like nature could be quoted. Where there have been many vacancies the reason can generally be attributed to poor construction and lay out. It is, however, in the success of the elevator apartment house that the future development of the Heights can be foretold. Broadway and many of the adjacent side streets have been built up with high class elevator apartments, all of which have rented easily, and in numerous cases having waiting lists of prospective tenants. The success of this character of improvement has been so pronounced that I believe there is nowhere in New York at the present moment so profitable a field for the builder and investor as that of the elevator house with apartments ranging from six to eleven or twelve rooms on such streets as Broadway, Fort Washington avenue and Riverside Drive.

Looking back over the year 1906, it seems to me that not only we who are specially interested, but the real estate world at large, may justly feel well satisfied with the year on Washington Heights. We have passed through the fever heat of a great activity in land; we have seen the values rise in some instances almost 100 per cent.; we have seen this land improved with buildings, most of them of the class which their surroundings call for; we have seen these buildings tenanted and sold, and that during a year which has not been remarkable for activity in real estate; and we are in a position to look to the future complacently, with the firm confidence secure in our minds for the onward development of this great section.

WORKING plans have been completed by Napoleon Le Brun & Sons, architects, of No. 1 Madison av, for the highest tower building in Manhattan, to be erected on the southeast corner of Madison av and 24th st (across the street from the uptown office of the Record and Guide), which will complete the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s home office building, on the block bounded by Madison and 4th avs, 23d and 24th sts. This plot measures 75x150 ft., the site being that of the old Madison Square (Parkhurst) Presbyterian Church. The Hedden Construction Co., I Madison av, is the general contractor; the American Bridge Co., 42 Broadway, will furnish the steel, and Messrs. Post & McCord, of No. 24 East 23d st, have taken the contract for the erection of the structural steel. Steel columns weighing between 800 and 900 tons will be required in the corners of the tower, and at the thirty-first story eighton steel columns will be placed.

Second highest of New York buildings will be the tower of the Singer Building, at Broadway and Liberty st, which will rise 593 t. The Washington Monument is 555 ft.; the Philadelphia City Hall, 547; the Cologne Cathedral, 515; the Pyramid of Cheops, 486; the Antwerp Cathedral, 476; the Strasburg Cathedral, 474. The third highest building in New York is the West Street Building, 404 ft. The Park Row Building is 382.

The entire steel frame will be a regular bridge job, bolt-punched and reamed.

The building operations of the company on the block commenced in May, 1890—when the five old brownstone mansions at the corner of Madison av and 23d st were demolished and excavations were started. By the spring of 1893, the building was sufficiently advanced for the company to move in, and by the summer of 1894 this first section of the building, with a frontage of 125 ft. on Madison av and 145 ft. on 23d st, was completed. The increasing business of the company required in 1895 an addition in 24th st, 115x100 ft. in area, and in 1898 a 2-sty extension with a frontage of 180 ft. occupying the centre of the 23d st half of the block.

The next operation, started in 1901, was an important one, and extended the building for its full height to and around the corner of 4th av and 23d st, and included the sites of the old Academy of Design and of the Lyceum Theatre, as also some 3-sty brick structures on 24th st, adjoining the first extension of the "Metropolitan" on that street. The building on the plot, 60x100, at the corner of 4th av and 24th st, was finished last May, leaving only the Parkhurst Church site unoccupied by the company. Up to this point the crowning cornice and all the horizontal lines and features of the building have been carried around the block at the same levels, and with a monumental sweep and nice balance of parts that the size of the block, 425x200 ft., and the height of the building, 165 ft. above sidewalk level, rendered possible.

The company occupies over 60 per cent. of the present building, including the annex for its home office purposes; and for the convenient transaction of its business required more space on the different floors, which the Madison av corner will provide. This corner furnished an opportunity to supply future needs of the company's office force by increasing the height of the building, and meanwhile, until the occupancy for this purpose becomes necessary, to increase the rental returns. It has been decided, therefore, to complete and crown the work with a tower. It will be probably the highest and most massive structure of the kind in New York City, and indeed, up to the present time, in the entire world. It may be noted how ideally fitting is its location, opposite the open square overlooking the junction and beginning of the two busiest and most important streets of Greater New York.

The pure, early Italian renaissance style of the main structure will, of course, be preserved throughout, the tower in its general design and outline belonging to the type of the Italian Campanile of the period. It will rise from a rich base, continuing in line and detail the general features of the four lower stories of the main building. Above the fourth story the design of the shaft of the tower will be severely simple, consisting of three groups of triple windows on each side, with heavily moulded and deeply recessed jambs; this treatment to extend through twenty-one stories without interruption other than a course of projecting marble balconies at the level of the main cornice of the main building, whose projection will

From Manhattan to Suburbs

Subways Under Consideration

By GEORGE S. RICE

COMPARATIVELY few realize the magnitude of the problem entailed in attempting to furnish transit facilities adequate for this great city, due to the constant growth of its population and the steady expansion of each borough. It is not generally known that over three-quarters of the population are compelled to travel by the various railroad systems, surface, elevated and subway lines, and this mainly in going to and from their places of business to Manhattan from all the boroughs, which large travel, represented by single fares, amounts to between three and one-half and four millions of passengers daily. Of this number the four elevated lines have on one special day carried 935,000 passengers and the subway, but two years in operation, carried on the same day nearly 585,000 passengers, or in the ratio of about four passengers to seven passengers during the same time.

GEORGE S. RICE.

Realizing the demand for increased facilities, the Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners took under consideration two years ago the question of new routes and extensions, and, as a comprehensive plan to meet all possible requirements, finally adopted in May, 1905, nineteen specific routes, covering about 165 miles, principally subways, and involving an expenditure estimated at about $300,000,000, to be constructed as traffic demands require. In conjunction with the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the Rapid Transit Board has now authorized the letting of contracts for what are considered at present routes most desired. Of this series of routes one is the Lexington avenue route, a line on the east side of Manhattan, extending from the Southern Boulevard, in the Borough of The Bronx, to the Battery. Another route extends from Woodlawn, down Jerome avenue to Harlem River, thence through Eighth avenue and Seventh avenue on the west side of the city to the Battery. Direct connection by stations will be made by the Lexington avenue route with the New York Central Railroad and by the Seventh and Eighth avenue line with the Pennsylvania Railroad, these two railroads at present being engaged in making extensive improvements in Manhattan.

Almost ready to be put in contract form is also the so-called Tri-Borough route, which extends from Pelham Bay Park, in the Borough of the Bronx, through Westchester avenue to the Harlem River, thence via Third avenue to the Battery, with a connection with the new Manhattan Bridge to Brooklyn, thence via Fourth avenue to Fort Hamilton, with a branch to Coney Island. Another of these routes is a line extending from the end of the present subway at Bronx Park to the northern part of the city through White Plains road.

A route which has been laid out, but which unfortunately has not been able to be finally determined upon by the Board on account of delays in obtaining the consents of abutting property owners, is the connection with Brooklyn by a loop line. This connection is of great importance, and the Board, recognizing the necessity for the same, is doing everything in its power to get this route into contract form, as, in a great measure, it will relieve the present congestion at both the Brooklyn and the Williamsburg bridges.

New York City is doubling its population practically every thirty years, and the travel doubles itself about every twelve years. For the last twenty-five years New York has not had the facilities for travel which it should have had, and at the present time the traveling public is very much inconvenienced in every direction. No matter whether one travels by the ferries, the bridges or by any of the railroads in the rush hours, he is bound to meet congestion on almost every line extending through and out of the city.

GEORGE S. RICE,
Chief Engineer of the Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners.

GOVERNOR Hughes still insists that the proposed new Rapid Transit Commission should be appointed by himself rather than by the Mayor, but the only reason which he can give for a State Commission is the fact that in some instances, such as the Portchester R. R., the lines coming under the jurisdiction of the Commission have a part of their mileage outside of the city. But it might just as well be argued that it ought to be an inter-state Commission, because the New Jersey trolley companies propose to operate a tunnel into Manhattan and a subway under its streets. It would be perfectly simple to plan the constitution of the State Railway Commission and the local Transit Commission so that they could have, as it were, a co-operative jurisdiction over roads such as the one which the Portchester Company is building. Surely the reason which Mr. Hughes gives is a very trivial one compared to the startling character of the innovation he proposes. New York is not accustomed to being governed by Boards appointed by the Governor of the State; and it will not take kindly to the change. After many years of agitation the power of appointing the Rapid Transit Commissioners was finally conferred on the Mayor and there it should remain. The only possible result of persistence by Governor Hughes in his idea of a State Commission will be the failure of his plan for a Rapid Transit Commission with really sufficient powers to guard the interests of the people of New York in economical and efficient means of communication.

The Suburban Auction Market

THE results of the various auction sales of vacant lots in the boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens, The Bronx and Richmond during the year 1906 have been generally satisfactory, but so far as the total number of sales is concerned several years in the past present much better records. This statement may seem surprising, in view of the unprecedented speculative activity in the four outlying boroughs during the first half of the year. The reason, however, is apparent, as the owner of a large tract of vacant land could, in the majority of cases, sell his property in bulk for more than it would bring under the hammer in lots. Speculation in acreage at private sale has been rampant, and has included the good, bad and indifferent. Indeed, this speculation has been relatively greatest in the most inaccessible and sparsely settled locations, particularly in some sections of Richmond and Queens, the reason being that the apparent cheapness of properties so located has appealed to outside speculators, who reason that "any old thing," as long as it was within the limits of the City of New York, could be made to sell.

Now, on the other hand, if a large tract of land is to be successfully disposed of at auction in lots, the property must be of relatively high character; it must be quickly and cheaply reached from the business centers of Manhattan; it must be in or contiguous to some local center of population and industry, and it must have water and gas mains, either throughout the property or where connections may be inexpensively made. The owner, moreover, must be conservative in his ideas of value. There are other improvements and advantages which the property should possess, but the above are the essentials.

The truth of this proposition is amply demonstrated by the auction sales during 1906. On the theory that any lots within the city limits could be sold at auction in such a bull market, several sales were attempted in remote and inaccessible locations, and the result in every instance was a dismal and costly failure. Conversely, sales where the lots possessed the essentials we have enumerated were successful, and as a rule good prices were realized

During the year the more prominent auctioneers received many visits from owners of large properties who wished to arrange auction sales, but who expected that their respective holdings would bring about as much as similar properties were retailing for at private sale; this, too, despite the fact that these latter properties were probably being sold at relatively enormous expenses for commissions to soliciting agents and for newspaper and other advertising. It certainly speaks well for the auctioneers as a whole that few, if any, sales of this character were attempted. If we will be pardoned for referring to our own business, we may say that we have probably refused since the 1st of last January at least fifty such auctions.

The people who attend a large lot sale have become, we are glad to say, very discriminating. The majority of the buyers are as a rule from the neighborhood, and are acquainted with real values. Westerners and Southerners, who have in the aggregate thousands of lots in the environs of Manhattan at private sale and at fancy prices, rarely, if ever, attend an auction. As far as our own sales during the year are concerned, the purchasers have been divided about equally between real estate dealers and builders on the one hand and small investors and those intending to build for their own occupancy on the other.

A noteworthy feature of the year has been that for the first time in many years there has been an active auction demand for well-located lots in the Borough of Richmond. A number of successful sales have been held. We ourselves disposed of, in four sales, about 600 lots, all we had to offer; and although we would not consider this anything out of the ordinary in the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens, these sales were the most successful held on Staten Island since 1890. About 70 per cent. of the buyers were residents of the Borough of Richmond, most of the remaining 30 per cent. being from Manhattan. The prices realized, although relatively low, considering the character of the property, were more than we had expected. The improved ferry facilities, the establishment of several enormous manufacturing plants and the fact that the Borough President is acquainted with local conditions and is alive to local needs, point to a better and more lasting demand for well-located property than has been heretofore the case.

The great advantage in selling a large number of lots at auction is the economy. For instance, during the past year the average cost of advertising and conducting our own sales, exclusive of the physical development and of our commissions, was less than 1½ per cent. of the total amount realized. Of couse, this percentage varies. In one case last spring, where we sold about 200 high-grade Brooklyn lots, the expense was within a few dollars of one-half of 1 per cent., and yet this particular sale was very extensively advertised. The disadvantage of an auction is the uncertainty of prices. In many instances the property brings more than the auctioneer can reasonably anticipate, judging from other sales in the neighborhood, but in some instances it brings less. As regards the auction branch of our own business during the year now ending, we are perfectly satisfied, both with the number of sales held and the prices realized; and we trust that the new year will show equally favorable results.

Large Transactions of the Year and Their Effect.

PROBABLY the year 1906 was the banner one for large transactions in real estate. Sales of a million dollars and over have been so common as almost to cease to attract special attention. It is not many years ago when a sale of two hundred thousand dollars was regarded as a very large transaction, while to-day one of four millions causes no extraordinary excitement.

HERBERT A. SHERMAN.

The most important sales that have occurred were the Stewart Building, about $4,000,000; the Lord's Court Building, 27 William street, at nearly $3,000,000; the Broadway Tabernacle, about $2,500,000; the Altman store, at 6th avenue, 18th and 19th streets, about $2,500,000; the Coal and Iron Exchange, southeast corner Liberty and Church streets, about $1,500,000; Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, about $1,000,000; 5th avenue and 18th street, about $1,500,000; 160-164 Broadway, about $1,000,000; 58-62 Broadway, about $1,000,000; the Union Dime Savings Bank, Broadway and 32d street, about $1,000,000.

Most of these properties have been sold for improvement. One hundred and sixty and 164 Broadway will be the site of the Lawyers' Title Insurance Company Building; the Coal and Iron Exchange site will have a 25-story building; the Consolidated Exchange, 58-62 Broadway, is in the hands of a trust company an d was bought for investment and their own use; the Broadway Tabernacle plot is being improved with a 12-story building; the 5th avenue and 18th street corner was bought as a permanent investment; the Stewart Building site will, in all probability, eventually have to be improved with a large building. Lord's Court, a 19-story up-to-date office building, is the first office building sold to a private investor; the few other sales of office buildings have either been trades to corporations or speculators.

Possibly only two or three of the parcels named have been sold to speculators. This indicates the willingness of large capitalists to put their money into New York real estate and the withdrawal of many of these parcels permanently from the market narrows it for those who may wish to follow the example of this year's buyers. On the other hand, the owners who have disposed of these large holdings and made substantial profits are very likely to turn their money back into real estate in which they have been so successful, feeling that it is safer than other investments, some of which are under fire by the courts and the National Government. The history of these large transactions as well as that of the small ones tends to confirm the view that there is no safer or better investment in the long run than Manhattan real estate.

At the 21st, 22d and 23d stories, or 334 ft. above the sidewalk, will be a great clock with dials on each front 25 ft. in diameter, hands 12 ft. and figures 4 ft. long—which should be visible and give Metropolitan time to New Yorkers for miles around.

The capping to this shaft will consist of, first, a line of boldly projecting, double-bracketed and paneled balconies, throwing a deep shadow and forming, as it were, a necking, and then deeply recessed Ionic loggias, with five arched openings on each side of the tower. Over the arched openings will come a deep frieze with windows and then a cornice and parapet balcony. Over the parapet the walls of the tower will be offset in receding 8 ft. on each face. This offset portion will continue up four stories and form a base for a pyramidal termination—pyramidion being terminated in an octagonal collonated observatory, which will terminate 658 ft. above the sidewalk level.

Values and Rentals.

THE ONLY CLASS OF APARTMENT HOUSES NOT WELL RENTED ARE THOSE NOT HAVING GOOD TRANSIT FACILITIES OR ARE POORLY CONSTRUCTED.

LOOKING over the record of the real estate market during the year one cannot but feel that with the exception of the tight money market we have a very satisfactory condition of affairs. In the Spring of 1906 there was a general cry of over-production of apartments and flats in the outlying districts, the Bronx and Washington Heights in particular, and also that the prevailing prices for business property were too high, and that reaction must set in. Pessimists are to be found in every walk of life, and it is hard to convince them at any time that a healthy condition of affairs exists. But to those weighing the matter calmly and without prejudice it will be evident that everything points to a very active market for 1907. The renting of apartments has been remarkably good, and any danger of over-production is now passed, as during the year so few new plans have been filed that it is safe to say that the necessary number to keep up with the ordinary demands caused by the growth of the city were not complied with, and that if it were not for the large number of buildings that were planned during 1905 and started during that year and the Spring of 1906, we would find that we would be behind in building operations. The only class of apartment houses that is not well rented today are those that have no transit facilities within reach, or those that have been poorly constructed. No complaint is heard from the builders that have constructed honest buildings along the line of the Subway and Elevated railroads. This is particularly noticeable in the elevator houses and well constructed five story non-elevator houses in the Heights, and in the two-family and five story flat houses in the Bronx. The best proof of this is that there has been no cutting of prices, renting rates having been held firm, and it is evident that if there were an over-supply or a lack of demand, the natural result would be for prices to be lowered.

ROBERT E. SIMON.

The immigration reports of this year will show that it has been one of the largest in the annals. This in itself means more than the mere fact that a large number of additional inhabitants are looking for places to live in. It means that these people must be clothed, and that they must be fed. In order to clothe and feed them additional manufacturing and selling facilities are necessary, which in turn necessitates more manufacturing buildings, more stores, and consequently work for a larger number of people in proportion. This is a healthy growth and one which offers every prospect of its continuing for some time to come, as it is a well known fact that immigration does not begin or stop suddenly. Its growth or cessation is very gradual, and at the present writing there is not the slightest indication of its letting up.

As to business properties, New York is becoming more and more the financial center of the world. All large corporations and industries are compelled to have quarters in the city. The financial district is permanently anchored and the large number of office buildings which are planned and are in course of erection, some of which will not be completed for two years to come, have all signed up leases, totaling sums which would be considered splendid results if the buildings were completed. These advance rentals show the confidence of the moneyed interests in New York as a financial center.

In the retail sections uptown values are steadily rising and have been doing so for some time, and will continue to do so in the future. Each year will provide additional transit facilities, making our shopping centers accessible to a greater area, and as we know, the larger the circumference of the wheel the stronger must be the hub, so the greater the area made accessible to the heart of the city the greater volume of business done there, consequently, the higher the rentals that can be paid, and as a natural result, the greater the value of real estate in these locations.

Real estate is recognized as one of the safest forms of investment, and with the continued and assured growth and development of this city, although there may be seasons when the market is slightly inactive in certain classes of property, in general the trend for real estate in and about the City of New York will be upward and will prove a satisfactory venture to those who invest in it.

The Mortgage Situation and Its Effect on Real Estate Values.

THERE can be no doubt that the loan market has a great deal to do with real estate values; especially is this so where the small buyers have been asked by the money-loaning Institutions, Executors and Trustees to pay off their mortgages made prior to the mortgage tax law of 1906 and have matured. In many cases the loaners have been willing to make another mortgage under the present law, thereby compelling the borrower to assume the tax and relieve the loaners from the personal tax which exists on all mortgages made prior to the tax law. This is the effect of hasty legislation, requiring one class of mortgages to pay three times more than the others. It is this feature of legislation that is causing a clash between mortagors and mortgagees, affecting both wealthy and poor buyers; both are compelled to pay the expenses which include the mortgage tax of 1906.

SHELDON B. SHAW.

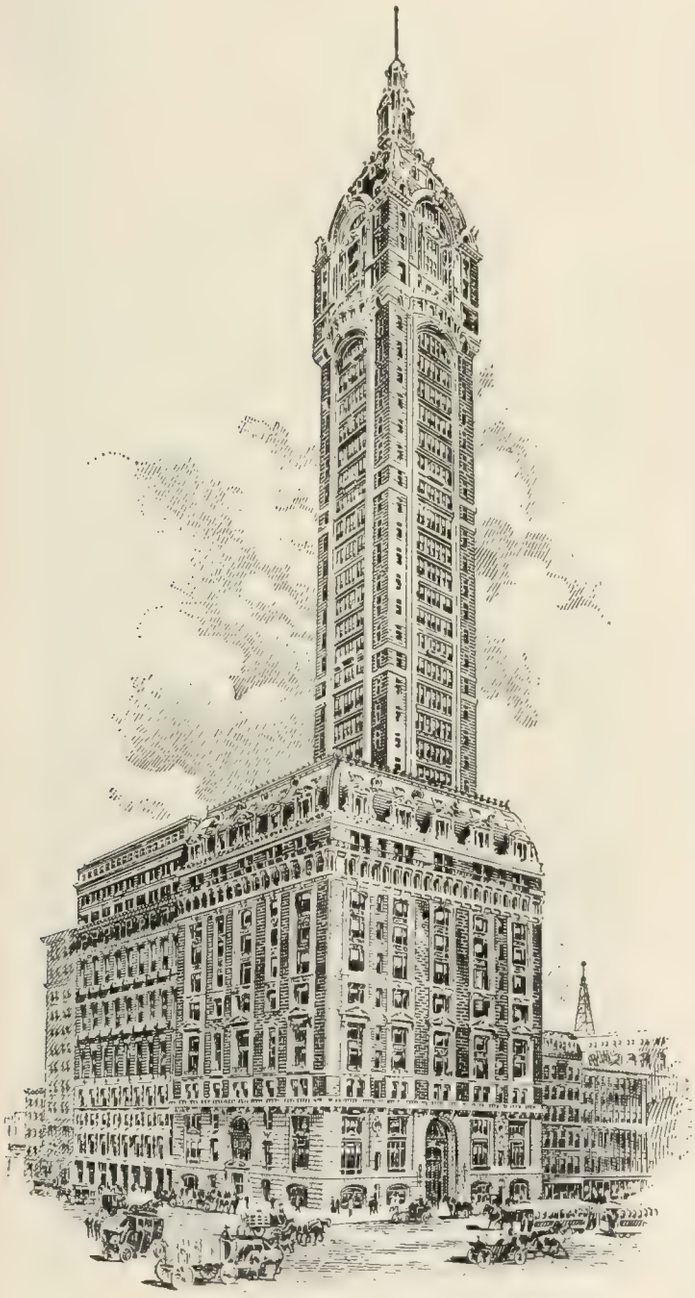
There has been a suggestion of amended legislation to remedy this trouble, but I have my doubts if it can be legally done; in other words, would the Legislature have the right to pass an amendment of such a kind affecting mortgages recorded prior to July, 1906? Such a clause, I understand, was stricken out of the present law by the Governor.

Then, again, drains have been made upon the Savings Banks to procure money to buy Long Island acreages; investigation shows that ninety per cent of such drafts were made for this purpose. The no small amount of such funds that have found their way into mining ventures which, the writer knows, has been largely done, has tended to make a scarcity of money.

Again, the larger Life Insurance companies have been in a chaotic state and will be until their elections take place to decide who shall control those companies.

Then, again, the stock gamblers in Wall street, without any public visible, putting up stock without any new buyers has made money on call command from six to one hundred per cent. interest in the last year.

Also, we have to thank our wise Legislators for the building law of 1901, which demands such a radical change in the construction of houses under that law, so much being given for air and light that the rooms of even a four or five-room apartment are nothing more than closets. This has called a halt in loans.



There is, too, a call upon the Banks to take care of the crops in the last three months; this is another factor looking for high money. In this class of cases the money is sent West to pay the farmers for the grain and then the grain is sent abroad to the various points of destination and the money returned to the banks after from sixty to ninety days.

Also, the calling of all matured loans of any denomination, from $10,000 to $1,000,000, no matter what the rate of interest may be, especially those that do not come under the mortgage tax law of 1906, has become general owing to the prevailing high rates of interest for call loans which has existed for a year past, greater in fact than has ever before been known.

The writer knows of one case where a loan of $150,000 has been in existence upwards of twenty years at 4½% on property in a gilt-edge location upon which an offer of $350,000 has just been made and refused, has been called for the reason no doubt that they can get six per cent or better for the money on call. I have no doubt there are many such cases to support this theory. One of the officers of one of the largest Trust Companies informed the writer some days ago that for several months all their funds had been loaned at not less than six per cent.

Therefore, I say, anything tending to raise the price of money affects the mortgage situation which in turn affects the value of real estate.

The New Shopping Center

AT the present time, lofts in West 34th street do not rent as well as they should. Business men in the street believe that at least three years must ensue before the many office and business buildings are completed, and the block is firmly settled by the big stores now locating in said vicinity. In this time, it seems safe to say, judging by the present strong demand for locations in this block, that the lofts now to be had will be all rented. The speculators have come and gone; they have taken their profits with them. The investors have followed and with them have come as purchasers, the large business houses. Closely on their heels have followed the usual movement of building and altering for stores, lofts and offices. Now nearly every available store in this block has been leased for a long term. Therefore we feel that the smaller business concerns must, as a logical sequence, come into the field—the little furrier hastening into closest possible proximity to Revillion Freres, the little skirt manufacturer and jobber, the shirtwaist, the lace, the white-goods man hurrying to locate near Altman's, McCreery's, Saks' or Macy's, and for the same reason the stock broken and the banker will choose his office or his floor near the uptown financial centre,—the Waldorf, and near the North River, the Thirty-Fourth Street National, the Astor National Bank or the Knickerbocker Trust Company. It seems reasonable to us to believe that lofts and floors in this block will not long be unoccupied.

Between Sixth and Seventh avenues, and extending westward from Seventh avenue there is an active movement among the big operators. They are to-day searching for the cheapest parcels to be found and buying quickly. The great lode-stone which attracts is of course the Pennsylvania station. We are sure of what will follow. Something like 250 millions of people will be carried per annum, and we may say, deposited right at the corner of Seventh avenue and 34th street. This fact alone assures the future of this block of 34th street. The applicants will not be slow in coming into a full realization of the advantages of this block, and some have gone so far as to declare that this block will prove a better location than that between Fifth and Sixth avenues. All this we believe will happen, not in a day, nor a month, nor a year, but in the near future.

—A Western syndicate composed largely of Cincinnati capitalists has completed arrangements to acquire the entire interests of the McLoughlin Real Estate Company at Hollis Terrace, Hollis, L. I., and at McLoughlin Park on Coney Island av. The reported consideration approaches $350,000. The New York and Pittsburgh Real Estate Co., which controls Hollis Terrace, has been reorganized and the present directorate comprises several Brooklyn realty operators. McLoughlin Park consists of about 40 acres and in Hollis Terrace are approximately 4,000 lots. The total valuation of the parcels involved in this transaction is about $1,500,000.

The demand in this vicinity is first for store floors, and then for second floors. The upper floors do not rent readily, mainly on account of the high prices asked, and similar lofts in neighboring streets can be had at much lower rentals. Tenants in the upper lofts can just as well conduct their business in some of the adjoining blocks. If, however, long leases can be obtained, even at the present prices there will be no difficulty in renting the lofts which are now vacant, but prospective tenants will not pay very high prices, if they can obtain only short term leases. We can safely say however that the present demand for loft locations in this vicinity is fully one-third better than one year ago.

POCHER & CO.

The Year in the Bronx

By the HON. LOUIS F. HAFFEN

THE year just closing has been for Bronx building and real estate interests a repetition of 1905, a period of unprecedented progress and prosperity. Population has greatly increased and the number of buildings erected is the largest in the history of the borough. The estimated cost of these buildings is slightly below the cost of buildings erected in 1905, but to many discerning people this is a cause for congratulation. It means that a movement has gained headway among builders and investors for the construction of one and two-family houses rather than for the large apartment houses which were the dominant feature of the extraordinary building operations of 1905. From the viewpoint of the conservative capitalist and real estate owner, as well as the social reformer, it is not a matter for regret if future development in The Bronx is to be more along the line of small or moderate-sized houses to accommodate single or at most two families. The development of the year has not been confined to any one section of the borough. Every part of The Bronx has felt the stimulating influence of extended and improved transit facilities. Even neighborhoods that are distant from existing subways and elevated lines are astir with activity, due to a confident belief that within a brief period the plans of the Rapid Transit Commission for new subways will materialize into accomplished facts.

HON. LOUIS F. HAFFEN.

The noticeable feature of the year's development in this borough is the remarkable addition to the number of manufacturing establishments of every sort. The Port Morris section and the territory in easy and direct communication with the Harlem River and the New York Central Railroad have witnessed an industrial expansion beyond all precedent. Millions of dollars are being invested in modern factory buildings within the borough, but especially along the Sound near Port Morris and in the area parallel to the New York Central and Harlem railroads from the Harlem River at 133d street to Bedford Park. A great impetus to every local interest flows from this growth in industrial establishments. Employment is provided for many thousands of people who are not dependent upon subways or the "L" for transportation between their homes and down-town places of employment. The wages paid in local establishments are expended in local stores, and from this flows a degree of prosperity for the local merchant that has much to do with the solid and substantial development of the borough. Indeed, it may be truthfully said that the current year has justified the optimists who scouted the predictions that were well-nigh universal in many quarters in 1905 that the phenomenal progress of that year would never be repeated and that it would surely result in a disastrous reaction. If causes wholly foreign to real estate and building operations in this borough had not produced a so-called tight money market, which resulted in abnormally high interest rates on loans, The Bronx in 1906 would have distanced 1905 in every feature of its development.

What of the future of The Bronx? I am asked. The answer is that the future is one of absolute certainty. History will repeat itself in The Bronx. As rapidly as new transit facilities are provided, new population will rush into the borough and will accelerate its already tremendous ratio of growth. The subway brought relief, but it is already crowded to its capacity and there is imperative need of new subways and many of them. Ten years ago the population of The Bronx was not more than 100,000. To-day the population is 360,000, and ten years from now it will be a million. To one who has watched the development and growth of the borough and who has been even in a small way a participant in its new life and history there is a fascination in contemplating the immediate future. Of all the cities in the United States, The Bronx is exceeded in population only by Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Baltimore, Cleveland, Boston and Buffalo. In cost of annual building operations the borough far exceeds the total of similar operations in each of these great cities except Chicago. Yet we are only at the beginning. Plans projected and certain to be carried out in the near future for the enlargement of local transit facilities by the construction of new subways; the extension and improvement of existing underground, elevated and surface lines of communication with the business heart of the city in lower Manhattan; the construction of bridges over the Harlem and of docks along the fifty-nine miles of Bronx water front; the completion of boulevards and parkways on a scale greater and grander than anywhere else in the world; the extension of street, water and sewer systems; the development and beautifying of our wonderful park areas; the expansion of our educational and church facilities—all these are working for the creation of a mighty community of prosperous and contented people north of the Harlem River which will constitute the greatest glory of the greatest city in the world—the City of New York.

The Year in Bronx Real Estate.

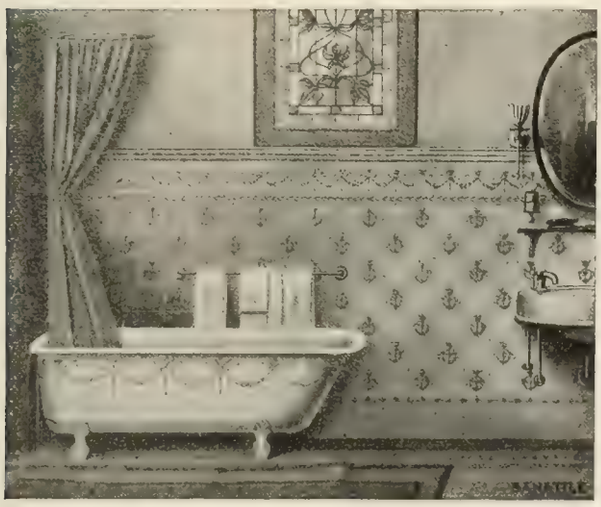
THE year of 1905 was one of the most active years in Bronx real estate and in the latter part of that year hundreds of acres had passed from old estates into the hands of operators and hundreds of buildings, mostly apartment houses, had been begun, and the year 1906 opened under the most favorable auspices. The year was most marked, however, in the completion of the work of 1905, and that was the movement of the vacant land from the operators into the hands of the public, the completion, obtaining of permanent loans and the rental and sales of completed properties. The feature of the year, however, and what has made the year peculiar to itself is the marketing of enormous amounts of vacant land in this section from the hands of the speculators into the hands of the public by means of auction sales, and this year will always be known as the great auction sale year.

J. CLARENCE DAVIES.

From the middle of April there was hardly a week in which there were not one or two large auction sales, the majority of which were very successful, the only instance of failure being where the owners of the property held same above and beyond its actual value, and in this connection it is fair to say the public have proven themselves good judges of real estate and only in very few cases have they allowed themselves to be carried away by enthusiasm in paying more for the property than its actual value.

The sections affected by these auction sales were mostly in the East Bronx, along the line of Westchester avenue and the Thoggs Neck section. The estates disposed of here were the Catholic Protectory property, the Sisters of Charity property, the St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum property, the Ketcham property, the sub-division of Morris Park, the Waring property, the Harrington estate and a sale at Baychester.

In the White Plains road district the largest sales were part of the Schieffelin estate, the Bathgate estate, the Adee estate, the Penfield property and numerous smaller sales. In the West Bronx district along the line of Jerome avenue the Dickinson estate was sold, and parts of the Bruner and Varian estates.



During the first part of the year money on bond and mortgage was plentiful, and the builders had no difficulty in obtaining their permanent loans, but about the first of May the money market commenced to tighten up and the money for permanent loans became more difficult to get hold of. This condition has continued until about in the last two or three weeks, when amounts of money to loan on bond and mortgage have appeared in the market, and it is hoped in the coming spring the mortgage market will be very much easier.

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE.

This tightening of the money market and the difficulty in obtaining permanent loans, to my mind, was a blessing in disguise to the realty market in The Bronx. While many builders who had their houses sold were unable to deliver them on account of being unable to get the permanent mortgages desired, it has checked building, particularly of flats and apartments, to such an extent as to do away entirely with the fear of overproduction, and will allow the houses already built up to fill up and become a paying investment. Indeed, if the tight money market continues very much longer the growth of population in this district will catch up and go beyond the necessary accommodation, thereby precipitating the same state of shortage in accommodations that existed two years ago.

The filling up of the houses completed during the last two years has made a large increase in the population of the district, which is beginning to show its effect in a greater demand for stores in the business section and the marked tendency to increase the rents and values in the business centres.

The inflation in Bronx values which was feared during the year 1905 has now passed away, and the values of the property in the district are more stable, more settled and on a more solid basis than ever before in its history, and while undoubtedly there will be attempts in certain districts to boom prices beyond the actual values, the public is too discriminating to allow themselves to be fooled.

The outlook for the coming year is therefore for a good, steady, substantial business. I do not think there will be great activity in any particular section; rather the activity will be confined to those sections which will be open by the new rapid transit roads extensions of the present line, which will, of course, open large sections to convenient access to business centers.

There will be probably a steady absorption of apartment houses by investors who have small means and can live in the houses and take care of them, but I think the builders who will erect one, two and three-family houses in good neighborhoods will find a far better market for them, with better chances of profit.

Altogether the year 1907, to my mind, is a year to be looked forward to, with confidence that there will be a fair amount of work and a fair share of profits in the real estate market in The Bronx for all concerned. J. CLARENCE DAVIES.

The new building for the Consolidated Stock & Petroleum Exchange, situated on the southeast corner of Beaver and Broad sts, is to be built from plans by Clinton & Russell, the architects, and will occupy a plot fronting 100 ft. on Broad st and 112 ft. on Beaver st. The classic style of architecture has been employed to advantage, the Broad st front showing a series of massive Ionic columns. The material used in the exterior will be of limestone on a base of granite.

The board room will be four or five feet above the Broad st level, with steps leading up from the sidewalk all along that side of the building and affording access to the three large doors which will be the members' entrances. The trading floor itself will be about 95 by 82 ft. in size—an area of about 7,500 sq. ft. Special care has been taken to provide the floor with an abundance of natural light, even on the darkest days. Not only will the whole of the Broad st front of the building, back of the row of Ionic columns, be practically one immense window, as in the case of the New York Stock Exchange, but a dome with a center skylight 30 ft. in diameter will let in a flood of light from above.

Along the southerly wall of the board room will be ample accommodations for telephones, above which will be the bulletin board in a position where it can be seen from any part of the floor. Opening off the board room along its easterly side will be a smoking room and rooms with additional telephone and telegraph facilities. At the easterly end of the building is the public entrance which gives access to the quarters for the officers, the Clearing House and Visitors' Gallery. The greater part of the basement will be used as a restaurant, but there will also be a barbers' shop, coat room, and adequate toilet accommodations for members and employees.

The Hendrik Hudson, one of the largest apartment houses planned during the last year, was designed to meet the large demands for luxurious apartments of seven, eight and nine rooms, which has been such a feature in the past renting season. The architects are Rouse & Sloan. The building covers a plot 208 ft. on Riverside Drive and 300 ft. on Cathedral Parkway and 135 ft. on 111th st and 91 ft. on Broadway. It is planned with a system of exterior courts so that all apartments face the drive or streets. There will be fourteen apartments on a floor, consisting of seven, eight and nine rooms with three baths. The living rooms will be grouped around the foyers with separate entrances in each apartment for service, giving a large degree of comfort and privacy. There will be direct connection between the building and the subway at 110th st. The elevators front on a central court, forming a feature on each floor. The corridors will be wide and well-lighted.

The facade in scheme will be that of an Italian villa, material for same will be of limestone, brick and terra cotta with wide projecting Spanish tile roof, supported by large ornamental bronze brackets. Brick work will be Roman-shape, laid up in Flemish bond. The Riverside Drive elevations will have two towers which rise above main roof and are connected by a pergola. As the house is situated at one of the most picturesque points of the drive, it will be the crowning feature of a series of terraces overlooking the driveway. The building is owned by "The Hendrik Hudson Co." Geo. F. Johnson, Sr., is President; Geo. F. Johnson, Jr., Vice-President, and Alexander Kahn, Treasurer.

WONDERFUL RISE OF PROPERTY VALUES IN 125TH STREET—SECTION BORDERING RIVERSIDE DRIVE BUILDING UP RAPIDLY.

THE growth of the great City of New York is not to be denied, neither is that of Harlem, which has kept pace with the rest of the city; in fact, some districts have so improved as to astonish even the most sanguine. Harlem has felt the effect of rapid transit via subway, which stimulated the building of many apartment houses of different types, so that we could accommodate those who had to leave the Pennsylvania Depot district as well as those of the New York Central; and the consequence is that all the old-law houses are full and the new ones filling up almost as soon as finished. There has been a great demand the last six months for old-law houses; in fact, we cannot supply the demand, even at prices 30 per cent. higher than two years ago.

F. E. BARNES.

Business is also concentrating in Harlem, the residents finding they can do as well in the shops here as by spending their time and money going down-town, and as a consequence stores on the main thoroughfares command good rents. One Hundred and Sixteenth street is fast growing to be considered a business street; where three years ago were only flats, now the first floors have been transformed and every store is rented as fast as finished. The block between Seventh and Eighth avenues is considered the best in that section, rentals being nearly 20 per cent. higher than on the blocks further east; therefore the price of land has greatly increased within the last two years. The block between Fifth and Lenox avenues is a good second in that line, owing to the thickly populated section on and adjoining Fifth avenue and the subway station on Lenox avenue.

Seventh avenue holds its own, but owing to putting the water mains and the proposed improvements of making it a boulevard keeps it in an unsettled condition, rentals are not so good, but property is held at a high price, as, just as soon as these improvements are complete, Seventh avenue will be one of the finest in the city.

Eighth avenue has steadily increased as a business thoroughfare and store rents keep going up, half stores renting for $65 and $75 per month. But the street which has surprised all is 125th street. Values have so increased it would seem like a fairy tale. Taking the blocks Eighth to Lenox avenues, stores which a few years ago rented for $3,000 and $4,000 a year now command from $8,000 to $12,000; in fact, all the property on the south side has been leased within a year or so for long terms, and nothing can be had at any price. There is no use giving values, because nothing can be bought, but lots on the south side would easily bring $140,000, while those on the north side $65,000. The section adjoining the extension of Riverside Drive and Broadway is building up so rapidly and filling up with good tenants that business is extending west of Eighth avenue on 125th street and Manhattan street, and the indications are that with the Eighth avenue subway 125th street at this section will become one of the great centers of travel. The block between Fifth and Lenox avenues has been greatly injured by the short-sightedness of either owners or agents in renting the stores to those "nickel-in-slot and moving pictures," which has spoiled the block for shoppers. The demand for private houses continues good and the supply limited, particularly in the renting line. With our population increasing rapidly, real estate on Manhattan Island shows the best and safest investment.

F. E. BARNES.

Development of South Brooklyn.

John Pullman, of the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, says the prospects of Brooklyn are better than in any other borough in the city. "Manhattan," he says, "has 13,487 acres, Bronx was 25,270, while the Borough of Brooklyn has 49,650—more than these two combined. People have been driven from Manhattan by the thousands, and yet we have thousands of lots that a man can get for a reasonable sum on which to build him a home. What with our beautiful drives, including Shore Road Boulevard, our view of New York Bay, Prospect Park and other attractions too numerous to mention, we have things that will make Brooklyn the largest and greatest borough in Greater New York. The development in South Brooklyn has been extraordinary within the past few years. Kensington, Borough Park, Bay Ridge, Martense; in fact, all that land lying between Coney Island and New Utrecht avs, has undergone a great change. The building boom is still on. There is no danger of its waning."

Transformation of the Palisades

By FRANK E. KNOX

FAMILIAR as the average New Yorker is with the marvelous changes occurring within Greater New York, but little is known and but slight, if any, interest is shown by him in the development of a vast territory within a stone's throw of his gates. Thousands gaze westward at the beautiful Palisades with proper admiration, little realizing the rapid strides this long neglected section is making. Ten years ago Woodcliffe, then in its infancy, was the northern boundary line of progress. Thence as far north as Englewood lay a sparsely settled country served by extremely primitive transportation facilities. The 130th Street Ferry ran only hourly and connection with 42d Street Ferry was made half-hourly during the rush hours and hourly the rest of the day.

Now, from Woodcliffe north are found in quick succession towns of no mean dimensions, such as Hudson Heights, Cliffside, Grantwood, Palisade, Fort Lee and Coytesville. Fifteen-minute cars during the middle of the day and seven-minute cars in the rush hours, on Sundays and holidays on the 42d st route and half-hourly and quarter-hourly service on the 130th st line, with still better running schedule promised, illustrate the improvement due to demands of a rapidly increasing population. Those whose knowledge of the locality impressed them with its unlimited possibilities lacked the ability and resources of benefit by it. To them the practically solid rock formation, the dense growth and untrammelled ruggedness of the Palisades Plateau offered unsurmountable obstacles, hence the opinion, prevalent only a few years since, that this entire district was impossible of satisfactory improvement.

Six years ago, however, there appeared in this locality a few men who not only appreciated the beauty and grandeur of the Palisades, but its possibilities under development and who furthermore had the courage of their convictions and a sufficient amount of capital to back them up. They incorporated a company known as the Columbia Investment & Real Estate Company and began operations. Prophecies of dire disaster were thick as locusts and many a wise head wagged knowingly. Ceaseless activity, dogged determination and minute attention to every branch of the work succeeded in overcoming all obstacles. Street improvements were made only by years of constant attack by an army of steam drills and dynamite. Sewers and cellars were excavated, streets, sidewalks and houses soon appeared, and the transformation has been so continuous as to amaze those who are not in close touch with these events. Property, worth but little a few years since, has advanced rapidly but steadily and in keeping with the demand.

As illustrations of the wonderful growth which has taken place in lot values within a comparatively short time, the following sales are cited: Lots on Lincoln av and Hudson terrace, Grantwood, the pioneer village of this locality, sold in 1900 for $600 each. The adjoining lots sold last month for $2,000 each, an advance of over 300 per cent. in six years. In November, 1901, lots 76 and 77, Grantwood, 50x100, brought $500 each, reselling in April, 1906, for $1,000 each. In 1899 the average selling price of lots in block 9, Grantwood, was $375, to-day it is $1,050. These results have not been accomplished without tremendous, albeit judicious, expenditures. The Columbia Investment & Real Estate Company has expended in sewers, sidewalks, streets, gutters, etc., on its properties at Grantwood, Morsemere and Hudson Heights to date over $250,000, and in the erection of houses over $600,000. Each ensuing year shows by the greatly increasing demand for homes at constantly higher prices the correctness of the judgment which prompted this company to become the pioneer of Palisades development.

No claim is made that the transformation of the Palisades is complete, but a stupendous change has been effected, and with the location of the now practically assured Trans-Hudson Bridge settled, property values will advance still more rapidly and to figures which will dwarf all past records.

Queens Borough Assessments.

The assessment rolls of the city of New York were opened for public inspection on Monday. They show a total increase throughout the entire city in the assessments of 1907 over those of 1906 of $479,865,239. This great increase it is believed will result in a decrease in the tax rate for the present year over that of last year. The tax rate in Queens last year was $1.55 on the $100. The total increase for the Borough of Queens was $52,307,600. This was the greatest relative increase in any of the boroughs. It is an increase of nearly 35 per cent.

Wards.	Assessment.	Increase.
First	$55,204,815	$14,322,580
Second	47,410,020	13,132,485
Third	29,815,425	8,274,985
Fourth	48,954,565	13,856,330
Fifth	17,248,070	3,722,160

An interesting fact of assessment is the Lawrence Smith farm which was sold at foreclosure sale at the Town Hall on Monday. In 1906 this farm was assessed for $2,400. This year it is on the books for $4,800. On Monday it was sold for $11,100.

In the vicinity of State, Chestnut, Central av and Flushing pl during the past year there has been considerable building of houses that are sold on the instalment plan from $3,500 to $5,000. The lots in this vicinity were last year on the assessment books for $800. This year with the houses added the assessments are now $3,600.

On lower Congress av the Halleran estate has improved what was nearly marsh land by the erection of a number of double tenements. The land which these houses occupy was in 1906 assessed for $1,500. This year with the improvements made there the assessment is $16,000.

C. W. Copp two years ago at public sale paid $7,500 for the old Leavitt and Lawlor nursery property at the rear of the Flushing Town Hall. The property at that time was assessed at $4,000. In 1906 Mr. Copp was erecting the row of houses on Carlton pl which have since been completed. Then the assessment of this property was increased to $20,000. Since that time all the houses there have been completed and others are being erected on State st. This year, therefore, the same property is assessed for $37,500. As this is marked "in progress of erection," the assessment will probably be increased next year when the buildings are all completed.

How 1906 Went With Builders

RACING WITH SKYSCRAPERS

Changes in Building Methods—To Revise the Code—Notable Structures of the Year in Manhattan

The Building Situation.

THE total amount of building permits in the boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn and The Bronx for the twelve months ending December 22, 1906, was $197,844,461. Two hundred millions of dollars spent in the three principal boroughs of New York City alone, and that doesn't count the extras! Chicago, according to Building Department permits, spent $63,836,700 in the last twelve months, but the chronicler who made the annual real estate spiel for one of the leading newspapers there called attention to the fact that the actual cost always exceeds the estimated cost by over 10 per cent. He also made some disparaging comparisons, in true Chicago style, between the healthy boom in his town and the unnatural overgrown condition here. I guess the Chicago man was right about extras, though. His method of figuring would make Chicago's business last year over $70,000,000 and New York's—but did it only exceed estimates by 10 per cent. in New York? Well, say 10 per cent. New York's buildings in three boroughs last year cost at least $220,000,000. The two greatest American cities spent $290,000,000 in buildings. Truly, the building business is a big affair. It always has been big, too; that is, relatively to other businesses.

THEODORE STARRETT.

And this great industry is a very peculiar one. There are always two ends to every industry—the employer's and the employee's—the staff and the rank and file corresponding to the commanders of an army and the army itself. The great peculiarity about the building army is that the commanders do not seem to be on the same basis as they are in some of the other industrial armies. They don't seem to command the same amount of respect from their fellow citizens as some of the other commanders do. Perhaps the world despises them because they are led by their army instead of leading it.

Whatever the reason is, it's a fact that the commanders of the building army have got the worst of it and the rank and file have got the best of it. I could almost go further and say that the building business in a sense has no commissioned staff, but is led by the non-coms, sergeants and corporals, who have not the sinews, poor devils, to get up and take their own.

The unions get as high wages in the building trades as are paid anywhere. I used to think that the reason for this was that they had no opposition when they struck for more, owing to what I will call the prostrated condition of their employers; but I don't think that is so. Supply-and-demand does the trick on the wage end, and then the nature of the building mechanics' work—out-of-door, open-air—makes them hardy and able to fight for their own.

No; the bosses are prostrated, but the unions didn't do it. They always try to help their bosses if they can. Wages are high; there's lots of work, a great and steady volume of business; but the employing class cannot gather itself together. Even if an employer has skill and capital, he cannot find scope. In the archaic condition which exists in a business where the finished product is the work of a dozen—nay, thirty or forty—industries, each going upon its field after another is through, or perhaps while the others have withdrawn temporarily to return later—in this archaic condition there is nothing to attract brains or capital. Even though the piece-meal bosses enjoy their benighted condition, and though the schemes of the office-holding class among them to perpetuate that condition should prosper for a while longer, yet the end of it must come at last, because the industry has not kept pace with other industries.

The condition in the building business is like that of the colonies before the Constitution was adopted. It is generally admitted that the prosperity of these United States is due to obliteration of State lines and the growth of the national idea. Chaos is nothing compared to what this government was drifting to when the Civil War had to come to set it straight.

We won't have a civil war to modernize building. The rank and file of the building army are going to help to save that army if nobody else will. They will choose captains for themselves if no other way is found.

What is the use of a high union rate if there's no work in the trade? Of course, the reactionary will give a loud roar of joy at this argument and say there's lots of work, etc., etc., but I am trying to draw a comparison between the political world and the industrial world, and have to make theoretical conditions to illustrate.

What is the use of bricklayers getting 70 cents an hour and having to knock off a building for two days out of each week when there is no steel because the steel contractor isn't ready, or no floor joists because the carpenter contractor is behind

It's just the same as some State down South having a bumper crop of cotton and no one to sell it to on account of some law that might have been on the books, but now, thank Providence, isn't.

The public is very much interested in this matter, too. Many a story could be told by owners, if they would, of excessive cost on the one hand or of inferior work on the other, due to paying too much to get good work done or to being skinned because of trying to get it too cheap. No good comes from having a headless army or a headless government. Selfish grafters may profit as they do in politics and some other institutions which need reforming, but in the end they will all be cleaned out.

So it will soon be with the building business. Some day the public can treat with a well captained, well quartered, well disciplined army, and the benefit will be just as great in business as it has been in government.

It might be interesting to inquire into the causes of the prostration of the building army, but that would be another story. The fact is the army has been prostrated, but it will be restored.

A business of two hundred millions a year in one city, of probably more than a billion in the whole country, is worth a big effort.

THEODORE STARRETT.

The New York Building Laws.

By WILLIAM J. FRYER, Chairman of the Board of Examiners.

AS the recurring year adds not only age to the Record and Guide, but extends its influence and power within its chosen sphere of usefulness, its readers should not lose sight of the fact that to this newspaper more than to any other or all other newspapers belongs the credit of advocating good building laws and extending encouragement and help in every effort made for the betterment of those laws. Never has the Record and Guide failed in its duty to the general public, to the owners of real estate and to the best interests of architects and builders in demanding wise, conservative and comprehensive laws governing the erection of buildings. Because of its encouraging attitude in sustaining every sincere effort made for the revision and bettering of the laws, the Record and Guide has ever enjoyed the fullest facilities for advance information as to each important step proposed to be taken or actually decided on, and in turn kept its readers as well posted as it were possible without trenching on confidential information. When the building code of 1899 was adopted the Record and Guide gave generous and unstinted praise of the work. Not so other papers, for without exception these denounced the code on the general principle that nothing good could emanate from the Board of Aldermen. Some of the editorials in the daily newspapers were bitter in tone and untrue in statements. One paper understood the code; the others did not. In due time the newspaper sentiment changed, and this change can be mainly ascribed to the fact that the daily newspaper writers on building subjects closely watch the views of the Record and Guide and are influenced by what appears in the columns of this recognized authority on building and real estate. The Record and Guide made public sentiment for the abolishment of the bureau of buildings in the Fire Department and the creation of a Department of Buildings, and when this change did occur in 1892, it was received with general approval by the interests affected. No other paper had advocated the change. Not only in the Record and Guide as a newspaper, but in its other publications, its monthly architectural magazine, its building law publications and its historical publication of real estate, building and architecture in New York, space was given without stint to making clear and plain the meaning, intent and operation of the building laws and other laws relating to buildings. Altogether these publications have placed owners, architects, builders and lawyers under a lasting debt of gratitude. The proprietor and the editor of the Record and Guide are too modest to claim the merits to which they are entitled for benefits conferred on the building interests, but I may do so, for I am writing about matters of which I have personal knowledge.

Coincident with the anniversary of the Record and Guide there are anniversaries of the building law that deserve at least passing mention. It is nearly half a century since the first separate building law was given to New York City by the State Legislature in 1860. It is a year more than a quarter of a century ago since the first comprehensive and adequate building law was introduced in the State Legislature in its session of 1881. It failed in that session, and it failed in three subsequent sessions, but it passed in the session of 1885—twenty-two years ago. This law of 1885 was the first modern building law not only in the United States but in the world. In 1892 a number of important amendments were made to the law, including the change of the Bureau of Buildings to a separate department. With the coming of Greater New York in 1898 came the power conferred on the Board of Aldermen to establish and from time to time to amend a code of ordinances to be known as the "Building Code." For the first time in more than fifty years New York was given home rule in respect to regulating its building affairs, although every city in the State, other than New York and Brooklyn, had continuously enjoyed this privilege. Prior to the Greater New York charter, the "building law" was part of the "Consolidation Act," the New York charter, and every change in the building law had to be obtained from the Legislature. Many are the interesting events in obtaining changes to the building law, and it is to some of these that I shall briefly call attention. It would require a volume by itself to set forth adequately the history of the making of a great building code.

Like unprofitable discussions of the question whether buildings or the people make a city, it is useless to discuss whether a building law encourages building operations or the reverse. The fact is that a building law does neither. The public safety must be conserved by building laws and regulations, but it is intended to do nothing beyond that. The very best construction is not demanded by law. The law does demand that buildings shall be safely and well constructed, and to this end enters necessarily into many details. The mandatory requirements are many, but each and every one voices the experience of the past. The humblest building as well as the largest is rightly a subject of public solicitude. The Chicago conflagration started in a frame shanty from the overturning of a lamp by the kick of a vicious cow. The Baltimore conflagration started in the cellar of an important mercantile structure. Shall men be permitted to build frame buildings where they like; shall they be permitted to build non-fireproof buildings to unlimited heights; shall they be permitted to build structures to a height above the ability of the Fire Department to cope with fire without every reasonable restriction being imposed by law or without requiring that the steel frame shall be so encased that in case of fire the building shall not topple over? If the answer be that the acts of the individual must be subject to control, then the law must go into detail, and it is better that such detail shall be clear and precise rather than vague and indefinite. In every city the building laws have followed this general rule of definite requirements. A few theorists have advocated a building law made up of a few broad principles as to the strength of materials and leave the architect to work out his own salvation. It is to laugh. Nothing feasible has been presented in this line, and nothing can be worked out on any different lines than the building code. Architects and builders build no better than the law requires; they never did and they never will.

In the Record and Guide's History of Real Estate, etc., I have given the genesis of the New York building law, and have given due credit to the men and associations who have taken part in bringing the law up to its present high state of excellence. No one man, nor any twenty men, locked up in a room and kept there for a year could produce the building code. It is because it embodies the best ideas of more than one hundred active, practical and competent architects, builders and engineers that the code is so complete and comprehensive. Many of the excellent ideas and suggestions were scattered through various reports in the several revision committees, but all were in due time gathered up and are embodied in their proper places in the code. The orderly and sensible arrangement of the subject matter of the code has been highly appreciated by those who are daily making use of it. Both in substance and arrangement the New York code has been used as a model in the drafting of building laws for other cities.

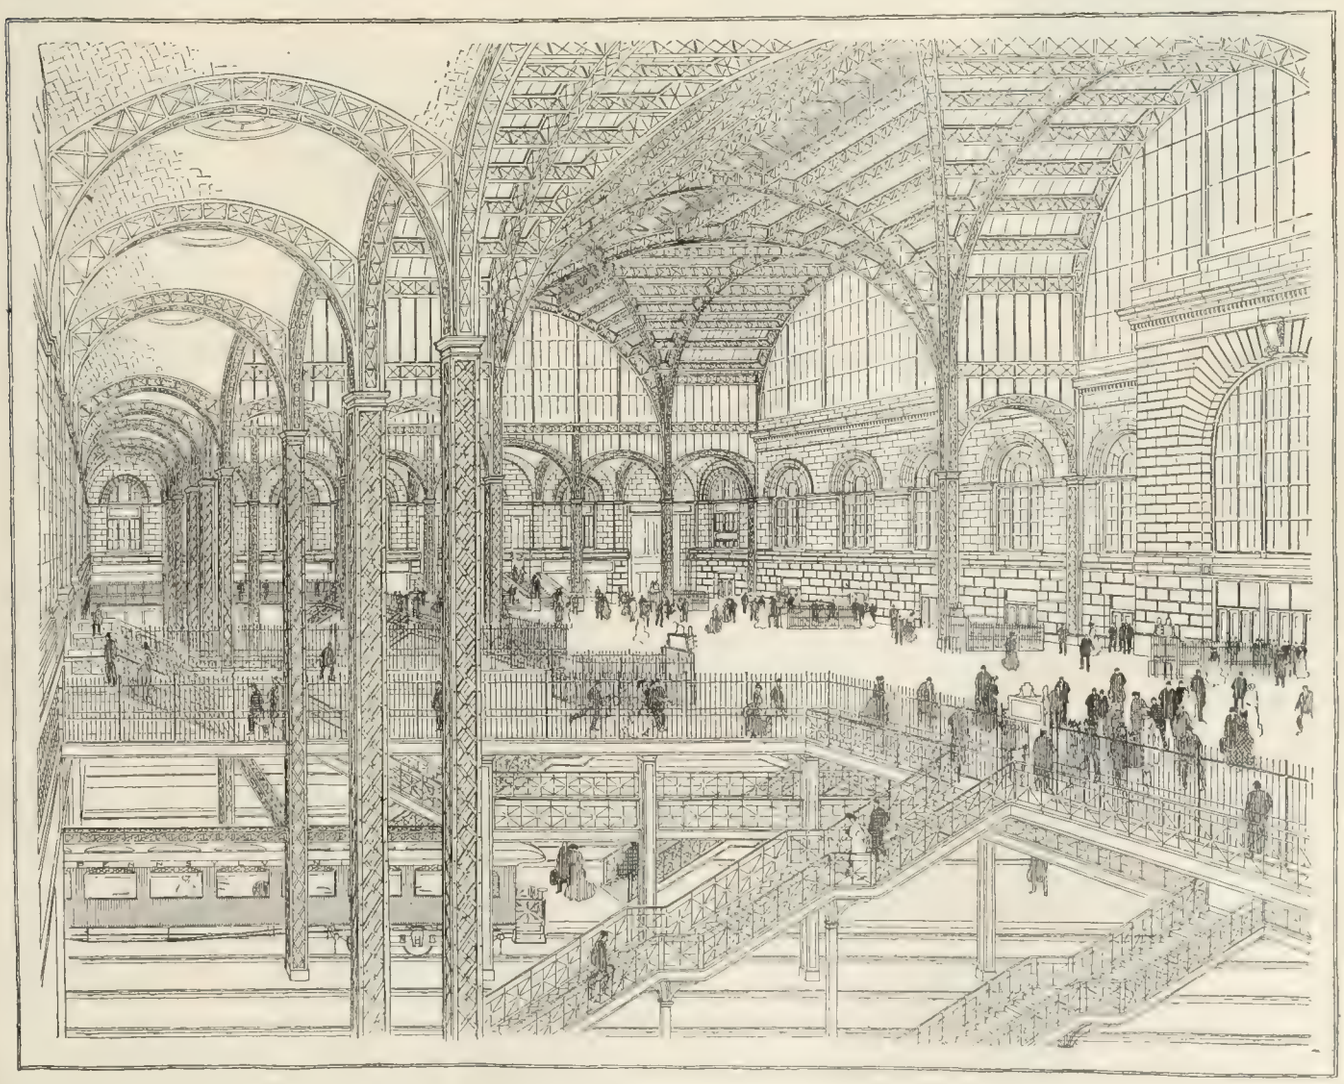
The building laws of New York for the past thirty-five years have included a safety-valve in the interests of securing justice to an applicant for a building permit, and to overcome the arbitrary action of a Superintendent of Buildings—the Board of Examiners. To this board—its membership being made up of representatives from building and other associations—an appeal may be taken from any adverse decision of a superintendent who shall reject or refuse to approve the mode, manner of construction or materials proposed to be followed or used in the erection or alteration of any building, or when it is claimed that the rules and regulations of the department or the provisions of law or ordinances do not apply, or that an equally good and more desirable form of construction may be employed. The very existence of this board works for good in securing a better treatment of applicants than would otherwise probably be the case.



In the years that have passed since 1879—28 years ago—by reason of my personal dissatisfaction with the building law as it then stood, I started in single handed and alone to revise and modernize it, it has fallen to my lot to hold the laboring oar in every subsequent revision up to the present time. From a financial standpoint it was a poor thing for me to take up and then to follow up, as from the very force of circumstances I had to do. To illustrate how momentous in its results to this city have been some of the powers exercised by me during that time in influencing legislation, as well as to show what a single individual can do I shall relate a single incident that occurred in 1885, when my saying stubbornly "No!" secured to this city the right to erect buildings to an unlimited height, whereas had I said "Yes," the height would have been limited to one hundred feet, and if this limitation had gone on the statute books it doubtless would have remained without material change.

In the Legislature of 1885 I stood alone in defending the bill to give New York a new "building law." Two or three hearings on the bill had been given by the Senate Committee on Cities. Opposition had simmered down to the Fire Department, represented by its attorney, Mr. William L. Findley. This was to be the last hearing. At the opening Mr. Findley announced that he had a number of amendments to the bill, but that he could not get me to accept them, and so we had agreed to state them and abide by the decision of the committee. The chairman conferred with one or two of the members and then announced that the hearing on the building bill would be adjourned until the following Tuesday afternoon, and he told Mr. Findley and myself to go home and settle our differences and come there next week agreed and the bill would be reported then or it wouldn't be reported at all. On our way to New York Mr. Findley suggested a conference with President Purroy, of the Fire Board. I agreed to this, and a meeting was duly held. Mr. Purroy had a list of some twenty changes to the bill. The first one was to put in the bill the section providing for the power of arrest, as it was in the then existing law. I said no; that I would agree to increasing the fines, making the fines cumulative, increasing the causes for stopping work by injunction, but no power of arrest would I consent to. After some discussion Mr. Purroy consented to waive this demand.

Then came the next: To limit the extreme height for buildings to 100 feet. I said no, that if there was not enough in the bill in the way of auxiliary fire protection for a high building or if anything else was desired to be put in the bill to make the building safer in itself I would gladly put it in, but in the face of what was already being done in Chicago and what was about to be done here I would consent to no limitation for height of buildings. Finally Mr. Purroy consented to waive this demand.

Having won on the two most important proposed amendments, I gave way fairly to all the others. Most of them were not very important any way, and some were offered under a mistaken apprehension of the wording in the bill. On the following Tuesday Mr. Findley and I presented ourselves to the Senate Committee on Cities. Our amendments were adopted, the bill was reported and duly became law.

In 1885, when the law was passed, there were only a few buildings in New York which exceeded 100 feet in height. Besides the U. S. Post Office, there were the Western Union building, the Tribune building, the Produce Exchange, the Mills building and a few others. The owners of real estate didn't know just then that New York was about to erect buildings to a height that would make one lot do the work of five. The effect of my having said "No" to any limitation of height for buildings has been to double and treble the price of lots suitable for the erection of skyscrapers. The facts are simple, and the story itself is almost incredible.

At a later revision of the building law a request was made by the Fire Commissioners that a requirement be put in the law that all buildings thereafter erected more than three stories in height should be constructed fireproof. This was thought to be too drastic at the time, and the request was not acceded to.

The building code needs a revision for many reasons. Since its adoption eight years ago, the Department of Buildings has been abolished and Bureaus of Buildings created instead. Superintendents of Buildings now enforce the code instead of Commissioners. A separate tenement house law has since been passed, and therefore a considerable portion of the building code referring to tenement houses needs to be eliminated. These changes are needed to make the text conform to present conditions. Then there is the bringing up of the technical portions of the code to date. The art of building is progressive and the New York building code must correspondingly progress or fall back from the front place that it occupies.

Tenement House Department Work.

THE Tenement House Department has gone through the busiest period of its existence during the year 1906, and has accomplished a great deal for the betterment of the housing conditions in the City of New York. The record which follows will show the amount of work done in the five boroughs of the city on the principal lines of the department during the period beginning Jan. 1, 1906, and ending Dec. 31, 1906. In the Borough of Manhattan the general sanitary inspection which was started in the fall of 1905 was completed and resulted in the filing of a very large number of violations covering the conditions disclosed by these inspections. A similar system of inspection was started in the other boroughs and is now under way, and will probably be completed early in the present year. As a result of these inspections and subsequent work, the solid wooden panels of 3,244 hall doors were removed and substituted by glass panels, and 739 skylights were provided, thereby improving the lighting conditions of the halls; 2,305 school sinks were removed and 13,502 new water closets provided; the number of interior rooms which were formerly deprived of light and air, and which were changed in this respect by the introduction of windows in partitions, numbered 7,348.

EDMOND J. BUTLER.

At the close of the year 1906 practically all the buildings in the entire city needing fire escapes or additions and repairs to existing fire escapes, had received attention, and during the year a very large amount of work was done on these lines. New fire escapes were erected to cover 13,477 apartments in existing tenements (i. e., houses constructed prior to April, 1901,) which had not up to that time been provided with means of protection. A large number of the old fire escapes were in bad condition and needed repairs, and in some cases additional features to bring them up to the effectiveness required by law. The number of fire escapes on which work of this character was done aggregated 16,424. Another feature in connection with the provisions for escape in case of fire is the construction of passageways, gates, or scuttles for exit. Under this heading it may be noted that 3,844 of such methods of egress were provided.

During the summer months the department made a thorough inspection of all the bakeries in the city and issued orders for the necessary fireproofing of the same as provided for by the Tenement House Act; 1,136 orders were issued covering as many bakeries. A large proportion of these orders have been complied with and the bakeries brought up to the requirements of the law. The remainder are receiving due attention.

Plans filed for new buildings during the year, while not so numerous as during the preceding year, still make a very good showing. The total number of plans filed and the valuation of buildings proposed to be constructed thereunder are as follows:

PLANS FILED FOR TENEMENTS, JAN. 1ST TO DEC. 31ST, 1906.

	No. of Buildings.	Est. Cost.
Manhattan	926	$55,299,400
Bronx	475	15,716,300
Brooklyn	3,230	37,852,250
Queens	504	3,245,900
Richmond	5	23,500
New York City	5,140	112,137,350

The following table shows the progress of tenement house construction since the institution of the Tenement House Department, and may be of interest as a proof that the Tenement House Act has not proved to be a deterrent to the building of tenement houses as was predicted by those who were not favorable to its passage.

Year.	Number of Bldgs.	Estimated Value.
1903	1,362	34,163,670
1904	3,177	79,110,000
1905	5,918	146,020,775
1906	5,140	112,137,350
Total	16,159	$390,511,995

The alterations during the year 1906 exceeded in volume and character those of any preceding year. The number of buildings for which alteration plans were filed aggregated 5,995, and the estimated cost of the alterations was $6,516,187. A great deal of this work has been done as is indicated in the report above, with regard to school sinks removed, new toilets, lighting of dark rooms, etc.

One of the most pressing needs for effective aid in accomplishing the work intended by the Tenement House Act is the enactment of a law making it necessary to have some particular individual, thoroughly equipped by practical experience, to supervise the construction of houses intended for occupation as multiple dwellings. To do this a license should be required to be furnished to either an architect or practical builder of recognized ability, who would be in constant touch with the building during its construction, so as to detect variations from approved plans, check defective work and obviate the necessity for filing of violations and subsequent alteration of work done.

EDMOND J. BUTLER.

Bureau of Buildings, Borough of Manhattan.

THE Bureau is taxed to its utmost in making daily visitations to buildings which are now in course of erection and alteration to detect any defect in construction or any infraction of the provisions of the Building Code. Also, buildings are continually becoming unsafe through age, particularly in the older portions of the borough, and the utmost vigilance is required to prevent loss of life.

EDWARD S. MURPHY.

The new methods of construction and the increased building operations have imposed duties upon the inspectors which have demanded a higher annual compensation, and consequently their salaries have been advanced during the year.

After assuming the superintendency of the Bureau I found that copies of the Building Code could not be obtained at the office thereof. I therefore caused the same to be compiled and revised, with amendments, to date. I ordered a sufficient number printed so that anyone could obtain a copy gratis. As a result those engaged in building operations have become more familiar with the requirements of the law, and owners, architects and builders have shown a better disposition to comply therewith.

SUMMARY FOR YEAR 1906.

Applications filed for new buildings and alterations	5,582
Estimated cost of new buildings and alterations	$126,075,565
New buildings in progress	1,115
Alterations in progress	678
Buildings reported unsafe	2,181
Violations of the Building Code reported by the inspectors	4,522

Recent Developments in Building Construction.

BY THE FORMER CHIEF ENGINEER OF THE MANHATTAN BUREAU OF BUILDINGS.

IT would be surprising, if, in the unprecedented building operations of recent years, there had been no new development in methods or materials of construction. And yet, when these apparently new developments are mentioned some critic will usually point out that they were known, well, ever so long ago. But until these things have found such general acceptance that they do not call forth special mention in our trade and technical journals, they may still be said to be new. The most striking of innovations in building construction is undoubtedly reinforced concrete. The mention of buildings of this type is quite frequent now in the pages of the Record & Guide, though it was not so long ago that there was only occasionally an opportunity to speak of them. Reinforced concrete has been quite extensively used throughout the country, especially in the West, but conservative New York is only now finding a place for it. At the present time there are more than a dozen buildings under construction in Manhattan in which the structural parts are of stone concrete reinforced by steel of various shapes (most generally rods) to provide the tensional strength which the concrete lacks. Fully twice that number are already completed, in which part, if not all, of the construction is in reinforced concrete.

R. P. MILLER.

There is hardly a type of construction in steel or masonry that cannot be reproduced in reinforced concrete, the preference for any one of these constructions being generally a question of appearance or economy. It is too bad that the advocates of the concrete construction sometimes resort to bad practice in design or construction for the sake of securing that economy. This is sure ultimately to redound to their disadvantage. For the failures of this construction that we read of occasionally, are generally attributable to that cause. These failures naturally create in the mind of the layman (who must be depended upon to furnish the capital for building operations) a prejudice against a legitimate and, for certain purposes, excellent construction.

New York City was—in this country, at least—the first municipality to lay down guiding principles for reinforced concrete construction, in the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings that have been from time to time published in the Record & Guide. These regulations for the Borough of Manhattan represent the best practice, and have served as a basis for the regulations adopted by other cities in this country. They do not go into unnecessary detail, and for that reason are not onerous. If conscientiously and intelligently applied the result will be safe construction. The present practice of many of our architects and owners, however, of leaving the design for reinforced concrete to the contractor is to be condemned. The construction should be designed or, at least, checked by an engineer, independent of any contractor.

Competent superintendence during construction is a most important element in successful reinforced concrete work. The permissible working stresses in use are based on the assumption that only good materials, properly mixed and prepared are used. The prescribed proportions of cement, sand and stone, must be constantly maintained, and for good work must be mixed mechanically. Care must be exercised to see that the reinforcement is provided where called for, and to make sure that it is in the position fixed by the design. A slight shifting of the tension rods may very materially weaken a beam or seriously affect its fire resisting quality. The so-called "Unit" systems, in which the steel work is previously wired together, overcome this danger by maintaining at all times the proper position of the reinforcement.

It is strange that the most important structural element of a building, the column, should not have received more study than it has. Here again New York (Manhattan) practice, though the most conservative, is the best. Higher unit stresses are allowed on the concrete in columns when they are wrapped than in the plain column. But it is to be feared that much of the so-called wrapping or banding of columns is such in name only. The best column thus far developed, and the one capable of greatest loading within proper working stresses, is that used in the ten-story McGraw Building in West 39th street.

PLAZA HOTEL.

George A. Fuller Co., Builder. H. J. Hardenbergh, Architect.

Here the steel reinforcement is in itself sufficient to carry the dead load of the structure. The additional strength required for live load and other forces is provided by the concrete.

Of the structures thus far completed or under construction in Manhattan about one-fifth are residence buildings, the rest being business buildings, chiefly lofts and garages. For factory purposes this form of construction is undoubtedly the most suitable, for in it we have mass to take up vibration. One visit to a concrete structure where heavy machinery is in operation, would be all that is necessary to convince any unbiased mind. Here, then, is the field in which this construction should be developed.

A movement which has received a great impetus in the West, but has found little support thus far in New York, practically none in Manhattan, is the use of concrete building blocks for the walls of buildings. In the outlying districts of Greater New York examples of their use may be found in numerous private dwellings. Economy in construction is one of the advantages claimed for them; ease and rapidity of production are others. The blocks are generally made in moulding machines that can be operated by one or two men. There is still much difference of opinion as to their architectural value. Structurally, they are satisfactory in low buildings where loads are light. Being of necessity made of a dry mixture they are not apt to develop the full strength of a good concrete, and on account of the hollow spaces the effective carrying capacity is not more than half of that of ordinary brickwork of same wall thickness.

The natural outcome of the great development of the cement industry in this country is the development of new cement products. Thus, in addition to reinforced concrete and concrete blocks and somewhat in the nature of the latter, is the cement brick coming into the market. These bricks have shown a very high resistance to crushing. According to the reports of the Building Bureau some test pieces have reached as much as 7,000 pounds per square inch ultimate load.

There is one other form in which cement is being used that is worthy of mention, though little has been done with it in this neighborhood. I refer to what is called cast stone. Very artistic and beautiful effects have been secured in imitation of cut stone, particularly limestone. The word imitation will, no doubt, be objected to by the inventors, as they will not even admit the name artificial stone. The process of manufacture consists in mixing up Portland cement, sand and some very fine broken stone (depending on the color to be produced), with water, to about the consistency of molasses. This is then run into sand moulds very much as cast iron is poured, and allowed to set sufficiently for removal from the mould, when it is stored in a damp place and allowed to cure and harden. It is particularly adapted for the ornamental stone work of exterior walls.

Closely allied to these cement products is the so-called sand-lime brick, of which about twenty million have thus far been used in this city. These bricks have had their greatest use in sections of the country where clay bricks are difficult to get. When well made they are equal to the ordinary clay brick in their physical characteristics. In this market where an unusually good product comes from our brick yards, the sand-lime brick has had a hard time in competition. On account of its light color it is well adapted for interior court walls and has been successfully used for that purpose in the Phipps Model Tenements and in the Lorsch building in Maiden lane. It has also found use as a front brick, as in the Hotel Latham in East Twenty-eighth Street.

This product, a mixture of lime and sand, pressed into shape by heavy machinery and then hardened or set by subjection to steam under pressure in large cylinders, is also now being made into larger hollow building blocks, similar to the concrete building blocks. Great strength is claimed for the material in this form. Its appearance is said to be very pleasing, looking much like cut stone. None of it has yet been used in New York; the nearest application of its use has been in the Carnegie Library building of Philadelphia.

Foundations of High Buildings.

By M. Deutsch, C. E.

IT WAS not until after the Civil War that five-story buildings made their appearance to any extent. During the period 1836 to 1852 several high churches were built in New York City, of which the Trinity and Grace churches are the only ones remaining. Trinity Church, built in 1846, for many years was considered the highest structure in America, and from its steeple visitors used to "See New York." Uy to about 1890, the first high points noted by a vessel as it came up the Bay were the spires of old Trinity and St. Paul's, but now they are completely hidden from view by such structures as the Trinity, Whitehall, American Surety and Empire buildings which have no counterpart in any country in the world.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society was the first to undertake the construction of a great office building (1886). This building was constructed very slowly and in sections at a time. When the whole structure was finished to its present height it was considered the finest office building in the world, and its arcade with numerous bazaars was long an attraction to visitors to the city. The first elevators were here tried successfully. This same year the Aldridge Court Building was also constructed, on wood-pile foundations.

It was the Equitable Building with its successful elevators which gave a decided impetus to the construction of high buildings, and in 1890, with the introduction of steel-cage design or skeleton construction, many buildings of twelve or fifteen stories began to appear. The demand for high buildings soon became a popular one; but with this increased demand for high buildings, serious engineering difficulties arose which had first to be overcome in order to secure the safest kind of foundation for such heavy structures. The enormous weight of these skyscrapers, the treacherous character of the soil encountered in lower Manhattan, and the absolute necessity for deep and waterproof cellars to accommodate machinery and steam plant, and the necessity of safely taking care of adjoining property built on shallow foundations, brought engineers face to face with engineering problems which required immediate solution.

Among the first to solve these engineering problems were the engineers of the Foundation Company. The Manhattan Life Building on Broadway (1892) was the first building where the pneumatic caissons were used for constructing foundations, and it was soon followed by the American Surety, Empire, Washington Life Building, Standard Oil, Commercial Cable Annex and others. When we consider that in lower Manhattan there is a layer of 45 to 75 ft. of quicksand and other water-bearing strata overlying the rock and that a great many of the old buildings in this vicinity have very shallow foundations resting directly on the upper soil, it can be seen that the foundations for such very high buildings must go down to rock in order to safely support their enormous weights, and that to reach bedrock a method must be adopted which will not disturb the fluid material upon which the adjoining building may be resting.

The engineers, therefore, decided to use pneumatic caissons similar to those that are often used for sinking bridge piers to great depths. The caissons are simple, air-tight, bottomless boxes, square or cylindrical in cross-section, having interior chambers large enough for a gang of men to enter and excavate the bottom. The excavated material passes up through shafts in the roof. As the caisson extends below the water-line the compressed air is pumped in to expel the water from the open lower or cutting edge. The caisson is thus sunk by undermining, aided by a heavy weight of concrete which is added over the roof of the caisson as the latter gradually sinks and also by additional pig iron blocks. When it has reached a satisfactory hard stratum, which is cleaned and leveled, the whole interior of the caisson and of the shaft connecting the working chamber with the outer air is filled with rammed concrete, forming a solid monolith upon which the superstructure is readily supported. To permit the passing in and out of a bucket or of the men from the outside air of the caisson, or vice versa, without excessive loss of compressed air, an air-lock or air-chamber invented by Mr. Daniel A. Moran, vice-president of the Foundation Company, is used. This air-lock surmounts the top of the shaft leading to the working chamber, and it is now possible to sink caissons through quicksand and water close enough to adjoining buildings without causing flow of material from under the latter, which if allowed to occur, would settle those buildings and crack them. This is the invention which has made possible the construction of the skyscrapers in lower Manhattan.

The foundations for the Singer Building, which will be the highest masonry structure in the world, with the exception of the addition to the Metropolitan Building about to be commenced, are being laid by this method. It will be about three times as high as the spire of the old Trinity Church, and is more than twice the height of the "Flat Iron." The area of its combined floor space will be about 413,820 square feet, or about nine and a half acres. On this, considering it all on one level, 100,000 men could find standing room. The total area will be 28 city blocks, or equal to all the available space in a territory bounded by Exchange Place on the south, Dey Street on the north, Trinity Place on the west and Pearl Street on the east. Within this enormous structure are to be accommodations for an office force of perhaps 7,000 persons, or about seven regiments.

It is the enormous value of building sites in New York City which will always continue to encourage the construction of multiple story buildings in order to increase the number of tenants for a given ground area, but of recent years the construction of so many high buildings, especially on comparatively narrow streets, has put those of a lesser height to such a disadvantage as to light and air that a new impetus has been given to sky-scraper erection.

Why It Pays to Build.

Brooklyn brokers contend that conditions in the borough are perfectly natural, and that the difficulties in the way of a more widespread business are gradually dissolving. "As a rule it is cheaper to own property than to rent," said a broker, "and even though rents have advanced 20 per cent. there must be a still greater advance before reaching the point of extensive private production. There remain desirable houses in every quarter that are obtainable at values far less than it would now cost to build them, and it is the professional opinion that these will all be taken when capital is again permitted to circulate freely through real estate channels.

"Robert G. Ingersoll once said: 'The home is the unit of the nation. The more homes the broader the foundation of the nation and the more secure.

" 'Nothing is more important to America than that the babes of America should be born around firesides of homes.'

"I believe that Ingersoll was right upon this subject—and I am in favor of the home owner, first, last and all the time, and I am therefore opposed to extensive landlordism. I am in favor of building houses just as fast as such houses can be sold to bonafide purchasers to be occupied as homes—but I am unqualifiedly opposed to the encouragement of combinations of capital to erect dwelling houses for the purpose of rent. I would not join such a combination if I had millions to invest—therefore I cannot conscientiously recommend it to others."

Co-operative Building.

FEW people, I think, properly measure the importance of the co-operative savings and home building association as a factor in the development of real estate values in and about New York City. Indeed, the growth of co-operative financiering in the country at large has been a fact of prodigious importance that has seemingly escaped the notice of students of political economy. And from the general public these institutions have not attracted attention at all commensurate with their importance as factors in social growth and prosperity. A movement that can show in 1906 an attachment of 1,642,127 active members and total assets of $629,324,257, and that is steadily growing in membership and financial importance, can hardly be ignored in the life of the republic. It is to be remembered that this vast membership is composed of men and women of small means, associated to save money and build homes. Relying little or not at all upon governmental favor or special privilege, and depending mainly upon Benjamin Franklin's philosophy of Self-Help, the movement may be said to have the most far-reaching effect upon the development of individual as well as national character.

CHARLES O'CONNOR HENNESSY.

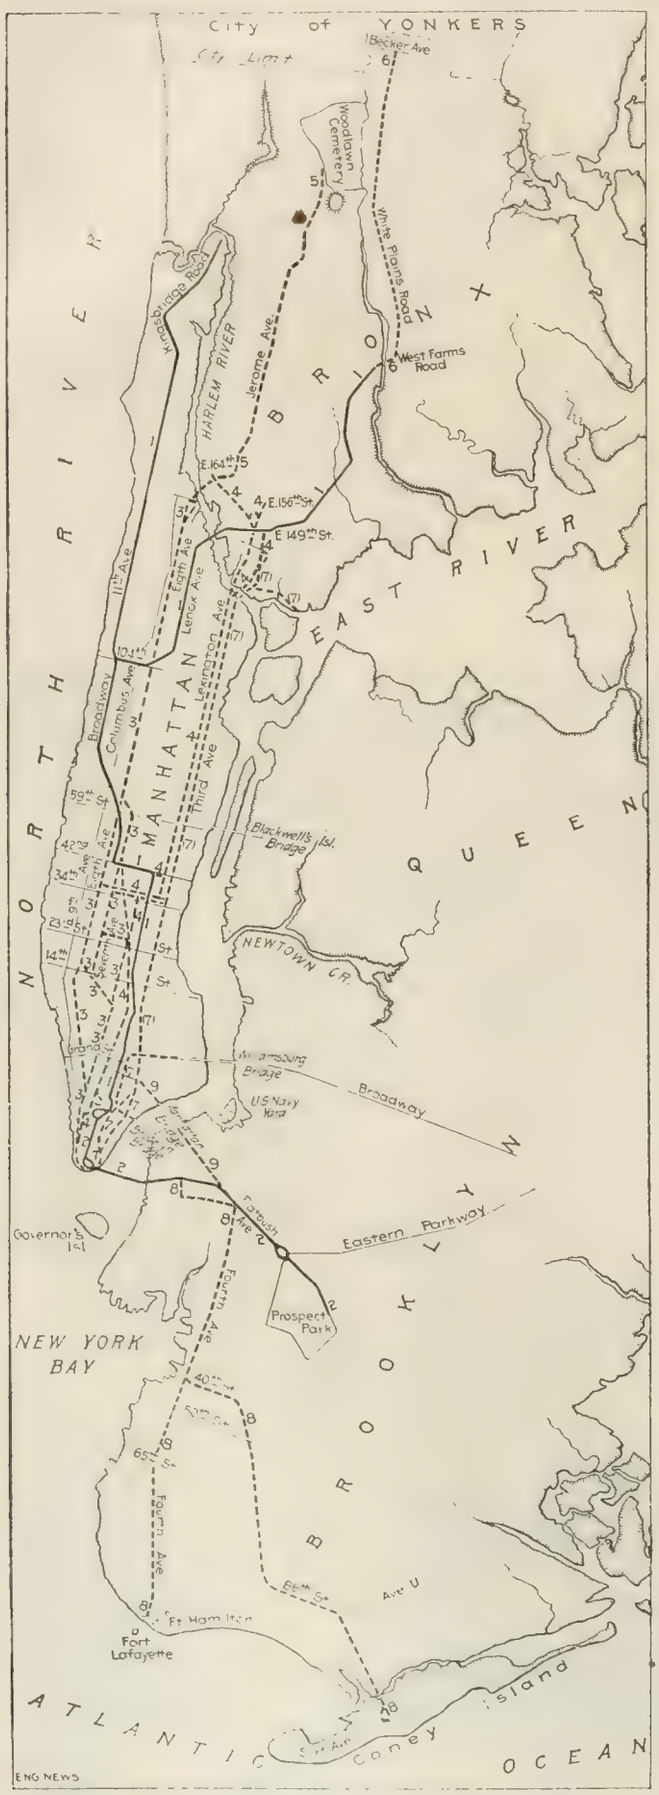
How many people realize that in the States of New York and New Jersey combined there are nearly 650 of these co-operative banks or building associations, with a membership exceeding 225,000 people and assets approaching $1000,000,000? These assets consist almost exclusively of monthly payment mortgages upon small homes. Many thousands of such homes have been created in the suburbs of the metropolis. That the promoters and beneficiaries of these institutions are mainly people of small or moderate means is indicated by the fact that the average amount of individual mortgages in building and loan associations throughout New York and New Jersey is less than $2,000. The average monthly installment of principal and interest required to be paid by the home-buying mortgagor is seldom more than 1 per cent. of the amount of the mortgage indebtedness.

Despite the fact that the widely advertised failure of a few fraudulent concerns claiming to do business on the building and loan plan has tended to discredit these institutions in some directions, the genuine local building and loan associations carry on their business with a degree of equity and fair dealing and with a freedom from loss that is surprising, considering the magnitude of their operations and the fact that their management is usually in the hands of men of modest abilities and of no special training as financiers.

While many of the local building and loan associations continue to preserve old-fashioned methods in their dealings with their membership, maintaining as incidents of the business, fees, fines and premiums for loans, the larger and more progressive institutions have adopted the simpler Ohio methods, under which one class of members is encouraged to accumulate savings in either regular or irregular installments to be loaned to another class at simple interest for the building or buying of homes.

This method, as exemplified by the largest society of this class in New York City, has produced and is producing most interesting results. The society in question has built or bought for its membership over 800 homes in the metropolitan district. It charges no entrance fees or premiums and imposes no fines upon borrowers. Any person with good security can join the society without formalities and get a loan to build or buy a home within twenty-five miles of the City Hall. Its borrowing members pay 6 per cent. and its investing members receive 5.

Loans are repaid in monthly installments that do not exceed $1 per month upon each $100 of loan, but may be more at the option of the borrower or less at the option of the society. Interest is deducted from the monthly payments, but calculated only upon the sum remaining due upon first day of each month. Thus, while the mortgage payment remains level and unchanged, unless the borrower wants to increase it, an increasing proportion of it every month goes to liquidate the principal of the indebtedness. The borrower paying $1 per month per $100 upon this system wipes out his indebtedness in a little more than eleven years and six months. He is at liberty at any time upon thirty days' notice to cancel the mortgage by paying the net balance of the debt as ascertained at the nearest previous monthly adjustment. This system, which originated with the society in question, has now been adopted by others of the co-operative home building associations of New York, and by means of it hundreds of homes are being created in the suburbs of the city.



There is apparently a great future for rightly-managed co-operative savings and home building institutions, and the reports and statistics of the Department of Banks, which supervises these institutions in New York State, indicates conclusively that all but a very few of them are fully worthy of public confidence. In this regard high credit should be given to the Banking Department for its persistent labors in recent years toward eliminating the bad and encouraging the good, toward closing up fraudulent and speculative institutions, and toward the enactment of stringent legislation to govern the administration and supervision of all co-operative associations that deal with savings and home building. For this unappreciated public service, performed in the face of opposition, misunderstanding and sometimes slanderous criticism, honor is due to the retiring Superintendent of Banks, Mr. Kilburn, and not less to his conscientious and accomplished Deputy, Mr. George I. Skinner, who for nearly ten years has directed the departmental supervision of the co-operative building and loan associations of New York State. CHARLES O'CONNOR HENNESSY.

—Queer allegations about the real estate transactions of the Pennsylvania crowd are coming out, and they tend to strengthen the impression that the Pennsylvania company is either an enormous speculator in real estate not needed for its business as a common carrier, or that the "dummy" corporations and individuals supposedly acting for the railroad system are in reality speculating on their own account. As a matter of fact it is impossible for the ordinary eye to distinguish what transactions are for the sake of the company from those which may be for officers and employees acting as individuals but permitting the impression to go out either that they are acting for the main company, or that they have inside knowledge that the lands they purchase will increase in value, for reasons connected with the secret plans of the railroad. A remarkable amount of unnecessary secrecy is maintained by the Pennsylvania over its operations in this city, which seems strange to American ideas, even if it be not inconsistent with a straightforward policy. Allowing it is necessary in planning routes and terminals to exercise a certain amount of business acumen, it is at the same time clear that too much mystery gives play to boundless suppositions, of which advantage can be taken by persons thought to be in possession of official secrets. Thus, during the Queens boom frequent rumors have been printed of purchases by Pennsylvania officers on their private account, with the public left in darkness as to how much of each story is true, and what part can be attributed to the imagination of the rank outsiders.

Year's Building Material Market

Remarkable Increase Since 1900, but a Falling Off From 1905

Review of the Leading Departments to the Close of 1906

Hudson River Brick Trade.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE quantity of building bricks supplied to New York City from 1894 to 1902, being constantly in excess of demand, brought prices so low that proceeds of yearly sales were not adequate to cost of maintaining the plants and production of the goods. As capital was exhausted various plants were abandoned, and others to a greater or less extent curtailed their quantity of output because of the impossibility of finding a market for their full capacity at any price. This condition, low price and reducing output yearly continued until 1903, when for a short time supply and demand were even, and prices steady. Demand increased and prices advanced to a paying basis for the manufacturers. In 1904 prices, owing to the unexpected and greater than ever known demand, ran up to the get-rich-quick expectation limit, so that promoters, prospectors and, in a number of cases, old manufacturers believing this enormous demand would continue for many years, began the construction of new plants, increased the capacity of many of those already in operation, refitted and restored to use those which had been abandoned. During 1905 all these were in process of completion, and their output not ready for delivery until the latter part of this season, and in fact has not, as yet, been fully marketed.

WILLIAM K. HAMMOND.

This production is coming here, however, and supply is again superior to demand, which has fallen from the great demand of 1905 so that at this writing it has required 160,000,000 less from North River products than were supplied for the corresponding time last year. This great falling off has occurred since August 1 of this year, as prior to that, or from January 1, 1905, to August 1, 1905, and from January 1, 1906, to August 1, 1906, the demand and supply had not varied to any extent in amount of quantity on the spot here, but the prices of 1906 were affected to a smash by the avalanche of brick in process of manufacture, and the persistent efforts of the selling interests to get from under before full supply from these increased facilities should be forced on the market, with the makers' demands for immediate sale. In this business, demand and supply are the price makers, and as the facilities for manufacturing brick are so greatly increased, and so many men are ready to operate their plants to the limit of exhaustion of their capital, as has been demonstrated in the past, and history ever repeats herself, so as it is fair to assume that supply will be in excess of demand, therefore prices cannot reach a point high enough to cause owners of real estate or builders to take thought for a substitute for brick, as the low-priced building material, and as has for centuries been proved, the best ever used.

Bricks, i. e., the ordinary, old-fashioned clay and sand brick, are made of earth, air, fire and water, and none of these elements singly, or a combination of all, can destroy the hard-burned brick. Sunk beneath the surface of the earth, where either dry or moist air prevails at intervals, or used in construction above, where exposed to varying temperatures, the brick retains its properties and is imperishable from time's effects.

The millions of second-hand bricks which have been used in structures in this and adjacent cities during the past few years, and which were made, many of them, in the early part of the last century, proves, if proof be needed, that bricks never lose their basic qualities, as these bricks were used the last time in buildings of vastly greater value and importance than in those they first formed a part of. As to the never-wear-out quality it must be conceded that no building material is the equal of brick; and at any price, up to even the late high water mark, time will prove it, for future as for past, the most economical, as fires cannot destroy, nor can water, or anything except pressure; and bricks have so far successfully sustained all weights which intelligent construction has placed upon them. What fire chief but knows how and where he may dispose his men in a building of brick construction; and what chief knows where he dare order his men in buildings of the other kind should fires occur, as occur they will. Bricks should not need a protector, nor any word spoken or uttered in their behalf as a building material, nor have they ever in building material history been asked to yield the first place of eternal service. Yet we now see would-be rivals for favor, with great promise for future economy, and no record of success, yet many failures in the very near past, putting up a bold demand for adoption, and accepted by some at a value which to those who know it would seem hope only can have supplied. As the solidity and safety of their new methods seem to depend so entirely on the ifs—if properly blended, if properly mixed, if properly everything, until finally the if seems to be the all of it, while certainty and security are the dependable qualities of the brick. Certainty of enormous supplies at prices which no other material can successfully maintain against, and security of the structures when bricks are the building material for strength and endurance.

Front and Ornamental Brick.

PRICES REMAINED NEARLY STATIONARY—WIDENING FIELD OF THE MANUFACTURER—ADAPTABILITY OF BRICK TO NEW STYLES OF CONSTRUCTION.

THE special interest in front and ornamental brick by those interested in building construction, is derived from the fact that no other commodity has contributed more nor, in our opinion, as much to the pleasing effects produced in exterior walls in which, by the use of front bricks, utility, durability and beauty may be combined at moderate cost. And it is to the manufacturers of front bricks that much of the credit is due for the complete transformation in the external aspect of our city, so noticeable to strangers, whose visits are sufficiently infrequent to make the many changes for the better more strikingly apparent, than to us who observe them in their gradual though rapid development. In consequence, our observation is less sensitive and we fail to fully comprehend the metamorphosis that has occurred within twenty years or less.

HERBERT D. LOUNSBURY.

It is well within the easy recollection of even comparatively young men that the general appearance of our buildings, whether those of a commercial or residential character, was monotonous at least, in too many instances really ugly, and seldom attractive or beautiful. Block after block could be searched for an inviting facade of design and color only to find, with rare exceptions, mile upon mile of brown stone or red brick, treated with the iron-bound and uninteresting conventions of that period.

The monotony of color scheme then so noticeable was due very largely to the limited variety of material and colors possible to employ and which, therefore, confined an attempt at original treatment solely to design and detail, with little opportunity for the exercise of originality in color effects.

But now all is changed and instead, we have available such a variety of shades in facing bricks that almost any desired color effect is susceptible of successful development. The advent of the buff, white, gray, speckled, tan, old-gold and iron-spot brick, has relieved not only the tedious similarity of effect which formerly obtained in structures of the same class, but it has created a use, and therefore a value, for embellishing materials such as terra cotta and stone which they never before possessed to so great a degree.

This choice of shades in front brick, which the market now so abundantly affords is due to the more intimate knowledge of clays and the scientific manner of their burning in the kilns, which up to a few years ago, was not a highly developed art. It was not the discovery only of new clay and shale deposits, by which this evolution in making front bricks has been accomplished, but also by a most patient, thoughtful and expensive series of experiments, which followed these discoveries, and without which the raw material would have been of little value.

But notwithstanding the strides made in this industry and the remarkable advance in the knowledge of understanding and manipulating clays, it is a curious fact that it is quite impossible to produce a brick of precisely the same shade and texture at two separate brick yards, particularly in light colors, even though the clay may be of the same general character on each. This gives a certain distinction to each make of brick produced and whereas most other building materials are becoming more and more localized as to their markets, the sphere is becoming wider for the front brick maker, due to the variety of tastes and the fact that each brick yard has more or less of a unique product to offer.

This statement as to the constantly broadening market for this material, is attested by the fact that more front bricks in quantity, and more respecting variety of shade, are shipped to New York from a distance of four to eight hundred miles, than ever before in the history of the building industry, notwithstanding the local manufacturers have kept keenly abreast of the times. But the increasing diversity of tastes and desire for new and artistic effects creates the demand and hence a market, here in New York, for many makes of front brick which at first might seem too remotely made from this great building centre, to successfully withstand local competition. Yet it is done, and has been for some years.

The experience of recent years has also demonstrated the peculiar adaptability of front bricks to new styles of construction. These are the classes of work proceeding chiefly from our municipal, transit, railroad, lighting and other improvements and some of a less public character.

In much fine work such as the new subway stations, churches, court-houses and similar buildings, front bricks are being used for interior wall surfaces. Notable examples of this style of construction are the subway stations at City Hall, 181st Street and Broadway and at other points along the line both above and below ground; also the new Zoological Buildings in Bronx Park where this material both ornaments and supplies a finish for interior and exterior walls. This work was designed by Messrs. Heins & LaFarge who made a similar application of front bricks in the stair halls in the chapels at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Other good examples are the Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Horse Market in 24th and 25th Streets, east of Lexington avenue, the new power stations for the elevated and subway lines and the generating plants of local lighting companies, also portions of the Pennsylvania tunnel and many new court buildings, engine houses and schools.

Front bricks in interior walls supply at low cost a finish that is durable and sanitary with a surface that can be washed. Such walls require no after treatment because the texture and shade of the bricks produce the most attractive effects and also render plastering, painting and decorating unnecessary. Here is economy in cost of construction, in time and special utility too.

Another development in the consumption of light-colored bricks making rapid strides in recent years, is their use in side, rear and court walls for the purpose of finish and reflecting light. A glance at the new private houses in the upper Fifth avenue section will satisfy anyone on this point and specially notable examples are the Hotel Gotham and the new U. S. Express Company's building. Walls of this class provide a hard surface for the weather and are an additional protection to steel work. They will have an attractive finished look, whereas paint and other forms of veneer require frequent renewals at great cost.

Unlike many commodities which enter into our daily use and consumption, the majority of people are profoundly ignorant of the front brick industry and many even who are users of the material fail to grasp the marvellous change that has occurred within a few years, nor realize the extent of experiments, research and vast outlay of money, which have brought all this about. It was not very long ago that a brick plant was regarded as an enterprise requiring but a modest investment and attended with the solution of no intricate problems. It is this belief which has disastrously ensnared many capable but uninformed people who were not alive to the needs of a modern and well equipped plant.

Another item of interest worthy of mention is the stability of prices. Despite the trite remark of the last few years that "material is so high" and the violent oscillations which have accompanied quotations in many building materials, prices of front brick have remained nearly stationary, a variation of 10% being ample to cover the average change during the past six years or more.

Those of us who are identified with this interesting and ancient industry, dating almost from time immemorial, have a pardonable pride that ours is a lively and not a dead or lost art, unlike many contemporaneous arts which flourished in the early history of this old world, but long since perished. Ours has been preserved through the centuries with the greatest advances made in the last two decades, but probably, with greater ones to follow.

*Decrease. †Stove lining included in miscellaneous.

This table shows in a most striking manner the lines of activity. It will be observed that only two varieties of wares showed a small decrease, namely, the vitrified paving brick products and the fancy or ornamental brick product, while every other brick and tile product and the pottery industry also showed increases, some of them quite large gains, the largest being in the products used as structural materials, and especially in those materials entering into the construction of fine buildings, such as front brick, architectural terra cotta, structural tile (including roofing, wall, and floor tile) enameled brick and fireproofing.

The largest actual gain, as has been the case for many years, was in the common brick industry, which showed an increase of $9,625,825, as compared with a gain of $1,236,483 in 1904, although the proportional gain—18.59%—was not the largest. The proportional gain of common brick in 1904 was 2.45%.

The vitrified paving brick industry is the only one of importance that showed a decrease. This product declined from $7,557,425 in 1904 to $6,703,710 in 1905, a loss of $853,715, or 11.30%. This loss is one of the most astonishing features brought out by the canvass, as this product has been increasing in popularity, as shown by its enlarging sales. The only explanation of this decrease seems to be that the demand for common brick was so great that either paving brick were used and reported as common brick, or the makers of paving brick became makers of common building brick. In 1904 the paving-brick product increased $1,103,576, or 17.10%. The value of the product in 1905 was, notwithstanding the decrease, greater than in 1903 by $249,861, or 3.87%.

The front-brick product showed the largest proportional increase in 1905, being 27.84%, the value being $7,108,092 in 1905 as compared with $5,560,131 in 1904, a gain of $1,547,961. In 1904 front brick increased in value $157,270, or 2.91%. Not only does this product show the largest proportional increase, but in actual increase it is exceeded only by common brick and fire brick.

Mason Material Trade.

THE SUDDEN STOPPAGE OF SPECULATIVE BUILDING NOT AN UNMIXED SOURCE OF EVIL.

IN taking a look backward I find in my letter to your popular journal of December, 1905, this item: "In view of the very high prices of some of the material, as shown above, and the advance in labor, I should advise consumers of material and those who employ skilled labor to do as little as possible until such time as the supply comes nearer to the demand on it, for unless a halt is called I look for very serious trouble in the near future, more especially with the speculative section of the business." Again, on the 6th of August, I wrote you as follows: "As to the outlook for the rest of the year, while there is some large work under way and to be started, I do not imagine we shall see as many apartments and tenements built as early reports led us to believe, at least until the money situation clears and allows the builder some hope of placing his loans." In the light of just what has transpired since the above was written, I certainly came very near the business situation as it is to-day.

FRANCIS N. HOWLAND.

As for a review of the mason material trade generally during this year of our Lord, 1906, I can start out by saying that it had the earmarks of a record-breaker as regards the amount of business done in sales of mason building material during any one year. No year in the memory of our oldest inhabitant has come near to it, with the exception of 1905, and that was a close second in the race.

As a matter of course, I am guided in my statements by the doings of the corporation I am connected with, as others may have done more or less as their individual ideas guided them; but on the whole I think my first statement as to 1906 carrying off the palm for greatest amount of business done in our line is the correct one.

Speaking as an individual, and with careful thought over the matter, I can with truth say that I never wish to experience just such another year as the past has been. Between the extremely high prices of common brick during the latter part of 1905 and the earlier part of this year and our desire to treat our customers fairly when making out our monthly bills, there was a feeling of distrust engendered that has taken many days of interviews and much labor and trouble on the part of dealers to make their customers realize that they (the dealers) were not responsible for the advance in prices and that it was owing entirely to the law of supply and demand, and that a fair and uniform price for material would have been far preferable to dealers and their profits at the close of the season much greater than has been the case under the existing state of affairs.

The sudden, and to some unexpected, stoppage of speculative building after the season had well advanced, owing to builders not being able to place their loans, and in some cases the withholding of loans already made, has not been an unmixed source of evil, and in the days to come, when a level has been reached and the chaff in the shape of irresponsible builders blown away, we no doubt will be able to conduct our affairs in a safer and saner way and steer clear of the many pitfalls that have been in the path of those who desire to do business in a business-like manner.

Portland Cement Market

By ALBERT MOYER, Asso. Am. Soc. C. E.

THE history of the American Portland cement market for several years past has been a severe criticism against the manufacturers who by unfriendly methods pursued were disturbers of peace and price. As recent as 1903 and 1904 prices ranged between $1.75 to $0.65 per barrel, bulk, at the various mills. Cutting of prices swings the pendulum too far down, thus creating an incentive to speculate, resulting in an apparent oversale; the pendulum then swings too far up, which checks sales and, to a certain degree, consumption, at which period down she comes again.

ALBERT MOYER.
Mgr. Sales, Vulcanite Portland Cement Co.

All this has occurred without reference to supply and demand, for results have shown that during the period I have in mind, with a declining market, the demand, if anything, slightly exceeded the American supply.

Fluctuation in price has the effect of influencing some manufacturers to oversell (and, strange to say, at low prices), placing them in the position of being unable to effect delivery at the period of the year when cement is most needed, causing loss to the manufacturer, dealer, consumer and real estate owners—a condition which is the reverse of mutual interest and advantage, striking at the very foundation of business.

In the past considerable damage has been done by manufacturers which reflected on price causing fluctuations, by what has been termed "selling ice in winter"; that is, selling in winter at winter prices for future delivery.

The proportion of cement used in winter is very small. Prices in winter have usually been at the lowest mark. Thus the manufacturer stores the cement without charge to the purchasers, but delivers it later in the year, when prices are higher. This has resulted in the dealers and consumers, imagining they had a bargain, contracting for far more cement than that for which they had actual use, indicating to the manufacturer an apparent shortage of supply, and consequently an unwarranted advance in price. Such years may not prove as good as the buyers had expected. They were unable to use all the cement purchased, and either had to stand a loss or rely on the good nature of the manufacturer to release them of a portion of their contracts, which, I am ashamed to say, a large number of manufacturers have done, thus throwing back on the market a quantity of cement which had to be resold in a short space of time at the close of the season at a much reduced figure, causing another fluctuation, disastrous to the whole trade in general.

The conditions of the Portland cement market during the season of 1906 were more satisfactory, brought about through a more perfect acquaintance, exchange of views and friendly relations between the various manufacturers. The price was more stable than in the past, with the exception of what proved an unwarranted advance of 25 cents per barrel in September, followed almost immediately by the consequent decline.

Uniformity of price as quoted by the various individual manufacturers and their stability is unquestionably of supreme importance to the building industry. Contractors equipped with shrewd, experienced buyers will have no advantage over the small contractor who cannot always pick his time to buy, and all will know the price on which they can safely base estimates. Dealers will not find the incentive for speculation; real estate owners will pay actually less for their building operations, the contractors not having to figure a margin for safety in their costs. The whole trade is benefited.

One of the anomalies of the season was the action of a number of the smaller mills who made strenuous efforts to obtain large contracts, which were taken at lower prices than that at which the larger mills were quoting. The small mills, which could least afford it, "sold ice in winter," while the large mills held a greater proportion than heretofore of their output for sale during that portion of the year—August, September and October—when the largest shipments occur. A number of the smaller mills were sold up for the entire year before the season opened up, on April 1.

Price started in January, 1906, delivered in wooden barrels, lighter-load lots, New York harbor, at $1.58-$1.68, or in cotton sacks, including package, at $1.63-$1.73. There was an advance on May 1 of 10c. and another September 1 of 25c. per barrel more. It then dropped back to same figures as quoted in the beginning of the season. The unwarranted advance in September caused buyers to hold off, making the drop greater than would have otherwise occurred.

The threatened coal strike stimulated prices in the early spring, but the heavy snow in March caused the volume of business to fall off.

Practically every barrel of cement manufactured in the United States during the year 1906 was sold and consumed, the supply just about equaling the demand. But very little foreign cement was brought into the United States; in fact, the American cement exported was in excess of the foreign cement imported. The foreign cement market, both in Germany and England, was pretty well sold up before the first of May. Several American manufacturers who had oversold tried to buy four or five hundred thousand barrels of Portland cement, but were unable to do so.

Car shortage of August and September had some influence on what proved to be an unwarranted advance in price on the 1st of September. There was a slight falling off in volume of shipments during June and July. This is a peculiarity which is noted every year. Curves showing statistics as to shipments throughout the year invariably show this falling off during some portion of every June or July. It is possibly due to the fact that foundations for buildings have been erected in the spring, and steel frame construction is being used during that period, the cement work coming up a little later. I have so far heard no explanation of this phenomenon.

Prophecy at the end of 1905, both on the part of the dealer, consumer and manufacturer, was nearly all along the line of an overproduction of 1906. It was figured that as production had increased so enormously the demand would not increase proportionately. Those making these prophecies had failed to take into consideration the immense increase in the uses of Portland cement.

It has been stated that should building construction throughout the country remain merely normal the increased demand for Portland cement would still be very large, due to the fact that cement is daily supplanting other building material and that a wave is sweeping not only this country but in fact the entire civilized world—the wave of reinforced concrete construction.

The cement famine on the Pacific coast, partially due to the San Francisco earthquake and fire, had an effect on the Eastern market. A number of the Western mills shipped large quantities of cement to the Pacific coast. The Eastern mills therefore shipped a larger quantity than usual to the West, and some of the Eastern mills shipped cement to the Pacific coast via Cape Horn and the Panama routes.

In the sale of Portland cement it is as important to know when to restrict sales as it is when to solicit business. To illustrate this, a few of the conditions governing Portland cement manufacture are relevant. The expense of manufacture is heavy. A Portland cement plant practically has to be renewed on an average of every five years. A small plant, manufacturing about 3,000 barrels per day, requires an investment for initial cost of approximately $1,000,000. The renewal of the machinery of this plant every five years is an item which is not usually considered by those not familiar with the details of manufacture.

A Portland cement plant runs twenty-four hours a day for 365 days a year. Unlike other industries, the manufacturer of Portland cement cannot produce more, and therefore has to regulate his sales so as not to oversell. Neither can he manufacture less without increasing the cost per barrel; for in closing down a portion of the plant the fixed charges of the plant remain the same. The capacity of a mill cannot be increased at will, as it requires to build a plant for the manufacture of 1,000,000 barrels of cement per annum, an expenditure of at least $1,000,000 in money, and in time about a year and a half. It is therefore of prime importance that the production be regulated; that the wild promoter be discouraged, and that the matter be left in the hands of men who, by long experience, are better equipped not only to erect plants which will manufacture a satisfactory product, but to locate such plants in proper localities, and then only in sufficient number to take care of the increased use and demand.

The objects thus to be obtained are intelligent ones, and not only work to the mutual advantage of all the manufacturers, but also to dealers, consumers and owners of real estate.

Without entering into prophecy, we can all see a more uniform, stable and reasonable price for Portland cement, an absence of disastrous fluctuations, a sufficient supply to meet the demand and the operation of all the plants every day in the year and a steady employment for labor.

Such conditions, I believe, have at last been brought about, discouraging speculation on the part of both the dealer and the manufacturer. Instead of "selling ice in winter," Portland cement will be sold as it is needed at market prices prevailing from time to time for immediate shipment. Thus the large and small dealers are sure of a reasonable margin of profit and the contractor will pay a reasonable price without risk of suffering a loss due to not being able to buy at the right time.

The prices at present prevailing, delivery alongside lighter, New York harbor, are approximately $1.63-$1.68 in wooden barrels, or $1.68-$1.73 in cotton sacks, including the package. These are reasonable figures, and do not discourage concrete construction, but rather encourage, and at the same time cover the manufacturer by a reasonable profit.

This price is not so low as to offer an incentive to sacrifice quality by reduction of cost. It is sufficiently high to offer an incentive to raising the quality as science progresses which increases the use of Portland cement.

I trust that we have at last entered upon an era of conservative stable and business-like methods in harmony with good business principles which will lead to prosperity, and that the entire trade of this country which is affected by the Portland cement industry will be benefited in the same proportion as is the manufacturer. ALBERT MOYER.

A Great Lime Year.

WE DOUBT if the public outside of the building trades has any idea of the amount of building that was done in Greater New York in the years 1905 and 1906. We doubt also if they have any idea of the vast amount of material used in construction for the years 1905 and 1906.

In ordinary times one thousand barrels of lime at one delivery to a material dealer would be considered a fair sized order. In the year 1906 six of the leading material dealers in New York purchased from the Rockland-Rockport Lime Company $593,296.17 worth of our material. In the month of April one of these dealers received at one delivery 9,854 barrels, which would make between 65 and 66 carloads of 150 barrels to the car.

One of the above-named dealers in one month purchased 22,000 barrels of our lime. This we claim is the record for one delivery and for one month's business for any material dealer in the United States, and if we had not made preparations for the business, in other words, had not changed our transportation from sailing vessels, which carry from one to two thousand barrels, to a fleet of steel barges, which carry sixteen thousand barrels each, towed by powerful ocean-going tugboats, we would not have been able to handle the business.

Of course, this holds true of all kinds of building material. We understand in the year 1905 there were twelve hundred million brick consumed in Greater New York, and in 1906 about one thousand million.

We are of the opinion that these two years will hold the record in the building business for some years to come, and there is no question but in some sections of the city the building business has been largely overdone, and it will take some little time to dispose of and rent the buildings, especially in the Bronx.

Lime is a product that requires careful attention, and we have been obliged to put on a force of men to try and educate and demonstrate how lime should be handled, mixed and applied, and we think it would be of interest to the builder to study the lime question thoroughly. In the first place, a barrel of lime sells for a barrel of lime, and, the weights not being specified, we understand we are the only manufacturers that guarantees the weight in each barrel of our product. Another important feature is that most of the sand is applied without being ewighed. The water and hair also are not measured, and we think the results would be much better if the builder would use care, as above stated. Another important feature is that the analysis of the lime is very uneven, some brands being high in magnesia, others containing no magnesia, some slow in slaking and others quick in slaking. The analysis of some lime would show that it was not fit for plastering, and yet it is used with poor results.

The hydrated lime department of the lime business is practically new, and it is claimed by some manufacturers that it is better than the barrel lime for the finishing coat. We do not agree to this, and we are of the opinion that finishing lime made into a putty and applied to the walls is the cheapest and best method for a first-class and durable finishing coat. Hydrated lime is used with great success in making all kinds of hard mortars, and it is also used largely in making all kinds of concrete mixed with Portland cement; it is also used in mixing cement concrete to make it waterproof. We find it is also used for agricultural and spraying purposes, but for ordinary building we think the old-fashioned barreled lime will continue to hold its own.

In most of the cities lime is sold and delivered in bulk. It has been attempted in this city, without success, and practically all the lime consumed in Greater New York is delivered to the jobs in barrels.

Marble and Mosaic Industry.

SIX MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF WORK DONE IN NEW YORK LAST YEAR—THREE THOUSAND MECHANICS EMPLOYED.

THE YEAR 1906 has been remarkable to the New York manufacture of interior marble and mosaic work from three points of view, namely: The immense amount of work contracted for and finished, the scarcity of and difficulty in obtaining good imported marble, and the freedom from strikes.

JOHN H. SHIPWAY.

The amount of work completed in New York City by union manufacturers will approximate from six to seven millions of dollars. Notable examples of work finished are the Hall of Records, Knickerbocker Hotel, the United States Custom House, United States Express Building and the Title Guarantee & Trust Company's Building. The large work contracted for included the United States Realty and Trinity Buildings, the International Bank Company's Building, Plaza Hotel and the Pennsylvania Railroad Terminal.

In these various buildings there has been installed work of the highest grade, necessitating the use of marble from all parts of the world. The greater part of the work finished in these monumental buildings is of foreign marbles which have been brought from such far away countries as Algeria, Istria, Italy, France, Norway, Germany, Japan, the Grecian Isles and Switzerland.

There are at the present time some three thousand men employed in the interior marble trade in the City of New York. These men are mechanics of the highest grade in their line. So great has become the fame of the New York marble worker that marble is being manufactured in New York at the present time for buildings in Chicago, San Francisco, Florida, Havana and the City of Mexico. The out-of-town architects find, that to be able to get high-grade interior marble work, it is necessary to engage New York manufacturers. This condition of affairs will grow and the marble manufacturers expect in the coming years to do the greater part of the fine interior work which is required outside of New York.

The great difficulty that has been experienced in obtaining the proper grades of imported marble, particularly the white Carrara marble, has caused serious delay to much of the work and many architects have been forced to use the cheaper grades owing to the impossibility of obtaining higher grades. This state of affairs in Italy has been caused by the enormous demand for white Italian marble throughout the world; by labor troubles and strikes of quarry workers and men employed in loading vessels at the marina, and by the fact that the Italian Government owning the railroads and miserably mismanaging the same, has been unable to furnish sufficient transportation facilities to quarry owners to forward their marble down from the quarries to the sea ports.

GREAT DEMAND FOR COLORED MARBLE.

The demand for colored marble has also been so great that many orders placed a year ago with the quarry agents are at the present time unfilled.

The imports of foreign marble into the Port of New York during the last year amount to from three to three and a half millions of dollars.

The labor market as it relates to the marble industry has been remarkable for its freedom from strikes. The agreements made with the men have been absolutely lived up to on both sides, thereby avoiding strikes and contentions. The agreements signed terminate January 1, 1908. The men are satisfied with their wages and are endeavoring to give satisfaction to their employers.

SETTLED BY ARBITRATION.

The mosaic trade has been disturbed during the past year by the fact of the mosaic workers making demands upon their employers for a large increase in wages. As no agreement could be arrived at between the employers and employees, the disputed question was submitted to arbitration. The Arbitration Board met, their decision was accepted by both parties and a new agreement was made which expires January 1, 1909. The mosaic helpers were on strike for a short time to enforce their demands for a higher wage rate which was adjusted through the mosaic mechanics only after the helpers had returned to work. Their agreement signed through the mosaic mechanics expires January 1, 1909.

The marble and mosaic industry is apparently only in its infancy. The great complaint of the manufacturer is the shortness of time given to complete large contracts, and his hope is that the day may come when he will obtain better prices for his product. Competition was never so keen as it is at the present time. The prices obtained to-day for marble work are only 10 per cent. above what they were in 1895. The introduction of new labor-saving machinery has reduced the cost of production to such a degree that prices are kept low and the ability to furnish large contracts in little time has obtained. The only successful New York manufacturer is the one who "gets there" as to "time" and quality of material and workmanship.

Granite Industries.

THE year 1906 will ever be remembered throughout the United States as a whole as one of the good years. The quantity of business has been equal to anything we have ever had, and, with the exception of a few cases, more especially locally, the prices have been very fair. Nineteen hundred and five was a good year, but, from the writer's point of view, 1906 has been better. The local manufacturers have all been busy, and at times were bothered to get men enough to conduct their business in such a way that there would be no delay on buildings which they were doing. This scarcity of men extended to the quarries in the Eastern States, and from all quarters came reports of more work than men.

Throughout it all good feeling has existed between the employer and employee, and the year has been marked for the fact that it has been entirely free from labor trouble of any magnitude. A few isolated cases of trouble have occurred on account of some local condition, but they have been settled immediately without any lengthy controversy.

The granite cutters of the United States can be classed with the bricklayers as being a very conservative body of men.

Several large granite contracts have been completed this year, notably the Custom House in New York. The work on the Pennsylvania Depot is very near complete so far as the manufacturing goes, and is ready at any time to begin setting in the building. The Cathedral on Morningside Heights is progressing, the granite portion being very well along.

Notably among the contracts for the year in the vicinity have been the new Chemical Bank, Union Square Bank, the chapel and Hamilton Hall at Columbia College, the Bronx Court House, White Plains Court House and Hall of Records, the interior work for the Pennsylvania Depot and the Bellevue Hospital, all of which require large quantities of granite and have been brought almost to a close.

Outside of New York there has been quite a number of large office and government buildings.

Our neighbors in Jersey City, just across the North River, are erecting a county building, all of granite. It is pleasing to the granite trade when they see the county officials, State officials and general government begin to awake to the fact that there is nothing like granite for a permanent building, and as years go by the tendency must lead to an increase in the demand for granite for this special purpose.

There are such a variety of granites that an architect can produce almost any effect that he desires by carefully selecting his color and the grain. One trouble exists which ought not, and that is the careless selection for finely carved and moulded work of coarse-grain granites, from which it is almost impossible to bring out the beautiful effect that can be produced from the fine-grain granite. For this class of work a fine-grain granite should be selected every time, and a small difference in price should never stand in the way. Otherwise the whole building is destroyed by the poor effect produced by the carving and mouldings. A study of this subject is worthy of attention of all architects.

From the fact of the large crops throughout the country, the amount of money that will be received for same, the healthy condition that exists at the present time in the trade, and the good will that exists between the men and their employers, it seems as if the granite industry for the year 1907 will equal that of the past year.

COLORED TENEMENTS WANTED

OWNERS OF COLORED TENEMENTS:

Do you know there is a Colored Real Estate Agent in New York City making a specialty of managing "Colored Tenements"? Is it not entirely reasonable to suppose that I, being a Colored man myself, should meet with greater success along this line than any White agent? Surely, I should know the wants and peculiarities of my own people better than he. If you owned an "Italian Tenement," would you not get an Italian agent? Should not this same logical reasoning obtain also in this instance?

As a proof of my success in this specialty, I need only to point to the fact that within the past five years I have built up an Agency Department of over 100 "Colored Tenements." When it is taken into consideration that this has been accomplished in the face of a fierce "White" competition, it speaks volumes.

I claim that I can manage a "Colored Tenement" better than any White agent in New York City. Bold as this statement may seem, there are dozens of my clients who stand ready to vouch for its correctness, and I am positive, if you will only allow me a fair trial, that I will soon be able to say the same of you.

A Prosperous Year in Lumber.

(By the President of the York Lumber Trade Association.)

THE year ending December 31, 1905, was perhaps the most remarkable year ever experienced by lumber dealers in the metropolitan district. It opened with the usual normal demand, but the early spring brought with it an extraordinary activity which continued throughout the full twelve months. At the beginning of the year the local yards were pretty well stocked, but regardless of this fact most dealers soon realized that the usual trade conditions had so far changed that the question confronting them was rather how to fill orders than how to get them. The returns for the year 1905 have undoubtedly never been equaled in this market.

J. SHERLOCK DAVIS.

The year 1906 opened with a large volume of orders booked, with stocks of lumber in yards considerably depleted, but with very large purchases to be delivered. During the early months trade continued to be fully as active as it was the corresponding months of the previous year, and this condition lasted well into the summer, when a reaction set in, resulting in a depression which was felt in a slight degree throughout the metropolitan district, and which in some localities was felt quite seriously. Despite this reactionary condition, which has continued to the present time, the year 1906 taken on the whole was a prosperous one.

At the present time the yards have fairly full and complete stocks, but the undelivered purchases of stock are small compared with what they were a year ago. Building and construction orders generally speaking are larger than usual at this time of the year. This can be accounted for by the great activity which now prevails in nearly, if not all, kinds of business, and which is naturally reflected to a certian extent in the lumber trade, and by the large operations that are now being carried on by the city and by the railroads. Had not the work of house construction received a considerable setback during the last six months, the result among other causes of the unfavorable loan market, this period would be marked by an even greater activity in the lumber trade.

Everything at the present time seems to point to a good healthy condition for the lumber business for the coming spring and summer with prospects of a supply somewhat inadequate to the demands. Current prices will be generally maintained and the prices of some of the leading kinds of lumber will undoubtedly be somewhat advanced. Considerable trouble is being had this winter in logging camps and saw mills, owing to the scarcity of common labor and to car shortage and bad weather; and there seems to be good reason to believe that as a result of these unfavorable conditions the cut of logs this winter will be no greater than usual, if as great. These facts, taken together with the further important fact that all over the United States, in almost every city and town and throughout the agricultural districts, there is a prevailing disposition to build, seem to justify one in the belief that there will be a brisk demand for lumber at good prices for several months to come.

J. SHERLOCK DAVIS.

Hardwood Flooring.

THE marked increase in the consumption of hardwood flooring during the past two years is significant. It indicates that the builders are made aware of the wishes of the housewife, who has always shown a decided preference for the harder and better floors, and it establishes the fact that the competition of the more progressive builders is having its effect upon the building business generally.

In former years, the relative values of the harder oak, maple and beech flooring, and the softer woods, have been such as to induce the builder to make his choice where money would carry farthest. In the last two years, however, the advance in value of both yellow pine and North Carolina pine have been so marked that there is but slight difference to-day between the hard and soft woods. These conditions have all had their effect in the reconstruction of things generally, and the result has been most gratifying to homeseekers who must live in flats and tenements.

Previously, when the values of oak, maple and beech have been so considerably more than yellow pine, practically the only buildings that consumed the former were private dwellings and the better class of apartment houses. To-day the cheaper construction consumes the hardwood flooring much to the extreme satisfaction of the dweller, and with the higher prices of yellow pine pretty firmly established and but comparatively small advances made simultaneously on the oak, maple and beech flooring, there is excellent reason for the prediction that the builder in Greater New York and vicinity has made up his mind to continue the use of the better and harder flooring.

It is needless to make comment upon the relative merits of the two floors, for even a casual observer can discern between the hard and soft wood trim in the interior of buildings, and assuredly if the hardwood is preferable as trim it must follow that floors of the same material are the more desirable. And it may be added that even where softer woods are used for interior trim, it is not unreasonable to demand the hardwood flooring. The customary usages of the housekeeper of this day calls almost entirely for the exclusion of carpets, and the use of rugs instead. The borders of the harder flooring can be kept in far better condition than the softer wood, and the natural color of the wood is preserved and made to embellish the surroundings rather than to detract from them. There is nothing prettier for a border than plain oak, with its ever-changing design in grain, and the glossy appearance it makes when well oiled and waxed.

The rapid progress made by the builders of wood-working machinery has played no small part in the advancement of hardwood flooring interests. In years past when the lighter and cheaper machines were in use it was a difficult problem to produce a flooring smoothly and carefully milled from hardwood lumber. The process of kiln-drying is such as to case-harden the woods and unless extreme caution and care is observed, the planer knives become dull and do not perform the work of dressing and matching smoothly. In olden days—five or six years ago—it was customary to feed hardwood strips to the flooring machines at not to exceed 40 to 50 linear feet per minute and secure good results. To-day, machinery is so made that the average speed is about 75 to 80 linear feet per minute. It would seem as though everything has conspired to place the hardwood flooring within the reach of even the tenement-house dweller, and it is not unlikely that still further improvements in methods of production, together with increased supply will have the good effect of keeping the prices within reach of requirements for any and all classes of construction.

Annual Lumber Cut of the United States.

VALUES in the metropolitan lumber trade have been maintained with remarkable firmness for a period of years, during which the official prices have steadily moved upward. The exceptions to this general remark have been few. Though not in every case has it been possible to enforce the maximum official price immediately, selling prices have ultimately reached the high mark. Toward the close of 1906 modifications in items of the second grade were noticed in a few lines, and the Building Department's recent indictment of short-leaf yellow pine will presumably have the ultimate effect of altering the fortunes of the line so far as the New York market is concerned. But whatever the minor fluctuations may be, the general public has slight interest in them compared with the one general rule of steadily advancing quotations, which in the course of ten years has doubled the price of hemlock, and added greatly to the cost of most lines of lumber, with the effect of adding very much to the cost of suburban dwelling-house construction. For a long period of years, beginning with the panic of 1893, there was almost a suspension of frame private-house construction outside of Manhattan and Brooklyn, caused in the first instance, it is true, by the financial inability of the people, but in the latter years by the height to which values leaped after 1898. It is difficult to reconcile the public to the thought that never again will there be cheap lumber, and in spite of expert affirmations to the contrary, there still lives a gleam of hope for a return to the basis of values prevailing in the nineties. This hope springs from an old belief that the lumber tracts are in hands too strong to be compatible with natural competition, and natural supply and demand, and something of this belief seems to have entered the mind of the U. S. Congress and inspired the passing of the resolution to investigate the cause of the high prices of lumber in the various stages of manufacture and sale. The Secretary of Commerce and Labor is instructed to conduct the investigation with the particular object of ascertaining whether or not these high prices have resulted in whole or in part from any contract, agreement or combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or from a conspiracy in restraint of commerce among the several States or with foreign countries. Further, the Secretary is to investigate whether the prices of lumber have been manipulated in whole or in part by any corporation, joint-stock company or corporate combination engaged in commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, and if so to investigate the organization, capitalization, profits, conduct and management of the business of such corporations and make early report of his findings according to law.

A subject affecting so closely the cost of home-building as does the price of lumber must necessarily receive a great deal of public attention when the scale of values mounts so high

IN all modern building operations, whether construction, remodelling or improvement, The LUXFER System of Prism Lighting plays an increasingly important part.

The day has passed when architects or builders looked upon LUXFER installations as experiments.

LUXFER has proven its worth and efficacy in solving daylighting problems, whether involving overhead or underground illumination.

Another development is equally marked. LUXFER no longer is confused with so-called "glass prisms," but stands alone as a dependable medium for the transmission and scientific diversion of daylight to a given point to supply an evident deficiency.

LUXFER is a "prism" and LUXFER is "glass," but no "glass prism" other than our own is "LUXFER." The difference is the difference between results and dissatisfaction, between science and guess-work; which fact most architects and builders are fully aware of.

LUXFER PRODUCTS consist principally of the following items, all of which are employed in all important building operations that come under the designation "modern."

LUXFER Sheet Prisms are large sheets suitable for glazing full sash in factories, office buildings, etc., by which rooms on any floors or in any surroundings may be flooded with sunlight.

LUXFER Transom Prisms are the form used for securing adequate daylight, generally in stores or smaller buildings where light may be "annexed" only from front and rear or the side.

LUXFER Floor Prisms are used (as in the buildings illustrated) to secure full and complete illumination throughout.

LUXFER Sidewalk Prisms are used (as in the buildings illustrated) for the complete illumination of basements, subfloors and all underground spaces.

The two latter are used in connection with the best forms of reinforced concrete construction.

as to make the possibility of getting a house more difficult for the average man, and hence no occurrence of the year was deemed of more importance in the trade than the resolution of Congress ordering an investigation. Retailers, in common with the public at large, will be better satisfied when they shall be informed as to the real causes for the scarcity of lumber and its high cost. For the wholesale trade it is semi-officially said that the most important organization representing manufacturers and wholesalers is the National Wholesale Lumber Dealers' Association, and that this body has nothing whatever to do with the prices and never has had. It is admitted, however, that the members of the Georgia-Florida Saw Mill Association and the North Carolina Pine Association, Incorporated, do "get together occasionally and decide what, in the opinion of the majority, is a fair price for the products which they manufacture at the time of manufacture." On the other hand, it is asserted that the prices so made are merely a consensus of opinion, are not arbitrary in any sense, nor are they considered so by the members of the associations. If the demand for the stock which the members of these associations have for sale is sufficient to warrant them in charging the prices which they have agreed are reasonable, then those prices are charged, it is said, but when the demand does not warrant it such prices are not obtained, nor is any attempt made to obtain them, nor is there any punishment meted out to members for not obtaining them.

In behalf of the National Hardwood Lumber Association, it is explained that its chief aim in life is to operate a uniform inspection bureau, and to provide for uniformity of treatment. Then besides these superior organizations there are, the lumber trade officials inform us, various local organizations such as are maintained among the Buffalo and Albany wholesalers, but in those sections no schedule of prices is ever adopted which are operative, except the prices which the demand makes possible to charge. Then there are operating in the East and Middle West numberless retail associations. Some of them, like the New York Lumber Trade Association, are very strong and comprehend practically the entire trade in the territory in which they operate; but "none of these ever meddle with prices in any way, shape or manner whatsoever," is the word of testimony.

Contributing to the costliness of lumber during the year has been the increased wages of labor and the car shortage. The transportation service is the worst that ever confronted the trade. With the enormous demand from railroad companies for ties and new cars, it is conceivable how there can be a scarcity in yellow pine almost sufficient alone to be responsible for the current prices. "More necessary to house building is hemlock," which is particularly in "strong hands," and the trade prediction is that prices will continue firm during 1907. Ten years ago hemlock was selling on a basis of $11 per M., while the base price that has prevailed for several months past is double. With the almost insatiable demand for wood pulp mills, the spruce timber supply will not be allowed to run much ahead of the demand. White pine is said to be in shorter supply this year, owing to low water in some regions during the rafting season, and taking the situation as a whole the outlook is for a continued large volume of business at about the same level of quotations.

During the past year the U. S. Forest Service for the first time attempted to gather detailed statistics of the lumber cut of the United States. This task was undertaken in co-operation with the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association, whose members cut at least one-third of the lumber annually manufactured in the United States.

The final tabulation shows that 11,666 establishments cut 30,502,961,000 feet of lumber in 1905. According to these figures both the number of establishments and the total cut are lower than the Census showing for 1899 and for 1904. The Census figures do not cover custom mills, while a few such mills are included in the Forest Service reports. In Table 1 the statements for the three years are printed side by side. In the right-hand column of this table is given the ratio which the figures for 1905 bear to those of 1904.

explain the lower figures for that year, especially as to the number of establishments. The cut of 1905 in the Forest Service figures is 89.0 per cent. of the Census figures for the cut of 1904, but the establishments reporting to the Service numbered but 61.0 per cent. of those given in the Census. The establishments which failed to report to the Service were, however, mainly small ones. Thus, though the failure of many establishments to report has necessarily kept the given total cut below its true figure, the delinquent reports, if obtained, would not raise the given total cut proportionately.

A second fact to be borne in mind is that the actual number of establishments is on the decline. This is borne out by the Census figures of 1899 and 1904, which show a falling off of nearly 4,000 in the number of establishments during the period. During the same period the total cut increased, though not greatly. Had the number of establishments reporting to the Service in 1905 borne the same relation to those reporting to the Census in 1904 as the latter bore to those reporting to the Census in 1899, the Service figures for total cut would doubtless have shown a similar, perhaps a greater, increase.

The Bluestone Trade.

SURPLUS BLUESTONE STOCK USED UP IN 1906.

THE trade in North River bluestone is as sensitive, if not more so, to general trade conditions than any other kind of stone, as it is an old and tried material used in both building construction of all kinds, from the cheapest to the most expensive, and for all classes of street work.

The season of 1906 has been a busy one, mills and quarries having been kept going to full capacity. Although falling behind the two previous years in some lines, others have increased so as to bring the total business up to about the same as last year in quantity. The increased demand of 1903 and 1904 stimulated production so that the season of 1905 closed with quite a stock of some kinds on hand, particularly street curbing and bridge. This fact made itself felt in prices on this class of stone all this season, but the demand has again caught up with the production and surplus stocks have been practically all cleaned up. With a normal demand for the season of 1907, prices should strengthen to about 1905 prices.

C. C. BULL.

While the falling away of the demand for stone used by speculative builders in New York City has been felt by retail concerns catering to this class of trade, it has not been felt by the wholesale trade quite so much on account of the activity in other parts of the country.

Collections have not been so good as last year, particularly during the latter part of the season. Contractors who had been receiving banking favors and had been discounting and paying their bills promptly have found it difficult to pay when due, and in many cases have had to have paper extended, bankers who had sought their business in the past having taken advantage of the demand for money in Wall Street or of people who could pay more for it than the contractors.

The amount of losses sustained from failures, etc., amount to more than last year, but have not been as heavy as might have been expected in view of the great amount of speculative building and development of property. These losses, however, may be much larger if money keeps scarce and things do not move again soon.

It is somewhat early to forecast this year's demands, but indications at the present moment are bright for the season of 1907.

C. C. BULL.

Fireproof Construction.

GOOD WORKMANSHIP AND MATERIALS DEMONSTRATED THE WISDOM OF EMPLOYING THEM.

UNTIL a few years ago there were doubts in the minds of many as to the possibility of making buildings fireproof. The partial and total failure of some of the earlier attempts at fireproof construction were responsible for these views. The behavior of some of the more recent examples of fireproof buildings that have passed through the supreme test is, however, highly satisfactory, and proves that buildings can now be designed that will be actually fireproof. Every great conflagration, although it involves enormous property losses, teaches new lessons in fire-resisting construction. The Baltimore and San Francisco conflagrations have contributed greatly to our previous knowledge of the fire-resisting qualities of different methods and materials.

A. L. A. HIMMELWRIGHT.

Unfortunately, architects and contractors are very slow to recognize the importance of the lessons taught by the great conflagrations, and on every hand are to be seen the repetition of the same mistakes that were glaringly exposed both in Baltimore and San Francisco.

It is a matter for congratulation that good workmanship and materials, wherever they have been tested in conflagrations, have clearly demonstrated their superiority and the wisdom of employing them. In numerous instances the false economy of slighting some of the important fireproofing details, and which only represented amounts of from 2 to 5 per cent. of the cost of the building, have resulted in such serious damage to the structure when attacked by fire as to involve almost entire reconstruction.

In the light of our present knowledge of this subject, architects and contractors should consider it a moral duty to their clients to design and build structures that represent the best known methods and practice, and for the sake of their own future reputations shun all that is flimsy, unsuitable and inefficient.

Correct and reliable reports of recent conflagrations are now available to everyone. A few days' study will in nearly all cases be sufficient to inform the average person thoroughly as to the developments and lessons of these conflagrations. Consequently THE FAILURE IN THE FUTURE OF BUILDINGS THAT HAVE BEEN DESIGNED TO BE FIREPROOF WILL ONLY SERVE TO REVEAL THE INCOMPETENCY OF THE DESIGNER AND THE IGNORANCE AND NEGLECT OF THE BUILDERS.

The best modern practice in the design of the foundations, the exterior walls and the steel skeleton structure of fireproof buildings is, generally speaking, entirely satisfactory. A few details can be improved, but these features of the tall buildings fulfill the requirements.

The problem of making buildings fireproof has now been narrowed down to a single important detail—that of protecting the openings in the exterior walls and roofs.

Had these openings of the fireproof buildings of San Francisco been protected with metal or metal covered frames, sash and doors, and wire glazing of only fair efficiency, there is no doubt but that the contents of most of them would have been wholly preserved. The efficient protection of these openings so as not to mar the artistic beauty of the facades is at the present time the one important problem for architects and engineers to solve. Its successful solution will be the crowning event of fifteen years of intelligent effort to produce fireproof buildings.

Production of Electrical Machinery and Supplies.

ELECTRICAL machinery has, in recent years, advanced several numbers in the list of manufactures contributory to building construction and equipment, and has now to be reckoned with as much as brick, stone, wood, iron, cement, plaster or glass. Electrical apparatus enter into the construction or equipment of office buildings, hotels, factories and apartment houses of the first class, as parts of the arrangement for light, power, ventilation and telephoning. The following sets forth statistics of the manufacture of electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies—products by kind, quantity and value in the United States for the year 1905, compared with 1900:

Present Problem in Hardware Is to Secure Deliveries When Needed.

BUILDERS' HARDWARE, while one of the lesser divisions of the building trades, has fully shared in the unprecedented activity which prevailed during 1906, and the manufacturers of it enter upon the business of 1907 with well-filled order books, in most cases with depleted stocks, and with every prospect for a demand for their products during the new year even greater than during the year just closed. While the quantity of hardware used in a building may not have increased, the quality now demanded is far higher than in earlier years, and this implies an increase in cost additional to the increase in volume due to the growth of the country. therefore, that the It is not surprising, manufacturers have not been able fully to keep pace with the increased demand on their facilities arising from this dual influence. The improvement in builders' hardware, both in mechanical details and in artistic qualities, which has taken place during recent years has been very marked and on every ground is to be welcomed. It is typical of the tendency in nearly every branch of the building trades in America to utilize quickly and fully all the possibilities of our increasing knowledge in applied science and the arts, not merely to reduce the cost of production, but at the same time continuously to elevate the quality of the product. This national trait is in marked contrast to the more conservative tendency which prevails in older countries.

HENRY R. TOWNE.

Under our present practice a certain antagonism of interests arises in the matter of builders' hardware (and also in greater or less degree in certain other classes of materials) which is regrettable, and which without great difficulty is preventable. This arises from merging hardware with the general contract in a manner which, although attempting to secure its selection by the architect or owner, leaves it largely to the discretion of the contractor. The latter is not to be criticised if, under these conditions, he seeks to protect himself by economies at the expense of the owner, for the invitation to do this is extended to the contractor as to all material in the selection of which he is permitted any latitude. This condition is inherent in the contract system. One remedy, largely utilized in industrial construction, is to compensate the contractor by a fixed commission on cost, the materials being purchased by the owner or for his account. Another remedy consists in omitting from the general contract items which, like finishing hardware, involve the elements of taste and decoration, and reserving these for selection and purchase by the owner or architect, a practice which is increasingly resorted to and on all accounts to be encouraged.

American buildings for commercial and public uses are in many respects the finest in the world, especially in their mechanical equipment. In them the rule should be to utilize the latest and best, not the cheapest, material, especially in the item of hardware, which, although constituting an almost insignificant percentage of total cost, is an important factor in convenience, security and decoration. In the selection of structural material the architect takes no chances, but specifies absolutely what shall be used. Frequently he intends to do likewise as to minor details, such as builders' hardware, but at the finish is pressed for time, is urged to close up his work in order to place it under construction, and ends by including this minor, but important, detail in the general contract. In doing this he is only postponing trouble, by creating the antagonism of interests above referred to. A far better plan is to omit the hardware, and frankly to reserve it for later selection. If, having done this, he will then take it up SOON AFTER CONSTRUCTION IS COMMENCED, make his selection deliberately but definitely, and then order the hardware, he will be sure of having it delivered when wanted, and that, when delivered, it will be in harmony with its surroundings, creditable to his taste and permanently satisfactory to the owner. In the case of modern residence work, especially of the palatial type, the argument for this method is even stronger and practically is unanswerable.

The present problem in hardware, as in almost every kind of material, is to secure deliveries when needed, and this emphasizes the importance of placing orders long in advance. The factories are all taxed, apparently to their limit, and the demand continues to increase. Under these circumstances, and in view of the fact that the cost of iron and steel has increased one-third, and of copper one-half, within the last two years, it is not surprising that some advances have been made in the prices of builders' hardware, nor improbable that other advances will follow if these conditions are maintained. Even at present prices builders' hardware of nearly every kind is cheap, and yields but a moderate profit to the manufacturer, in view of the large amount of capital invested in its production, the vast variety of the product, and the skill and experience required in the conduct of the business, and the buyer who expects to require builders' hardware during 1907 will make no mistake in placing his orders as far in advance as possible.

Interior Wiring.

FIVE THOUSAND jobs of electrical construction or alteration are under way at the present writing. Every year this comparatively new industry, which saw its birth as a trade scarcely twenty years ago, is growing enormously. Ten thousand more applications for inspections were made at the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity in 1906 than in 1905, when there were six thousand more than in 1904. About 58,000 more incandescent lamps were added to the number in the city, making 679,584 in all. The number of motors covered by certificates shows an increase of 6,529 during 1906, as compared with an increase of 2,051 in 1905, and 224 generators in 1906, as compared with 231 in 1905. For these statistics the Record and Guide is indebted to the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity, but the figures for the year 1906 are approximate and not complete.

Permits for single wires in 1906 numbered 4,988, to compare with 3,961 in 1905; for electric lighting, 5,740, to compare with 4,161 in 1905; underground conductors, 4,368; subsidiary connections, 9,212; for subways, 1,441, as against 1,502 in 1905.

In comparing the number of generators installed for private plants with the number reported for inspection last year, it will be noted that a decrease of six units is shown, which may be partially attributed to the reduction in maximum rate from fifteen cents to ten cents per kilowatt hour, which the illuminating companies now charge, the change of rate having gone into effect July 1, 1905, according to statute.

The inspectors frequently find wiring and appliances installed within buildings which have not been reported to the department for inspection, such work in nearly every instance having been installed by incompetent workmen, unfamiliar both with the rules governing the installation of such equipments and the necessity of inspection before introduction of current, although it is estimated that less than two per cent. of the fires occurring in this city are caused by electricity, in many instances serious results have followed such practice.

It is gratifying to quote in part from an exhaustive report made by a Committee of Twenty, appointed by the New York Board of Fire Underwriters to investigate conditions affecting the fire and conflagration hazards in this city:

"Both the Municipal and Underwriting Inspection Departments are well organized and are doing good work. An inspection by the National Board of Engineers of nearly 1,000 equipments brought to light no cases of incompetency. The situation with respect to old work, however, reveals the need of more speedy reinspection. The Municipal Code is excellent, being practically the same as the National Code, and well enforced on new work, the underwriters enforcing the National Code fully well. Conditions with respect to outside wiring are generally satisfactory. Wiring is generally underground in Manhattan, but high potential overhead circuits are frequent in the Bronx. Electrolysis is not appreciably felt."

Architectural Metal Work.

REVIEWED BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE HECLA IRON WORKS.

AT present the metal work for buildings is divided into two distinct branches—the structural steel work and the architectural metal work—and these two branches have in the last twenty-five years made immense strides, practically revolutionizing the mode of construction of first-class buildings.

The architectural metal work has done much to make the buildings more fireproof by substituting metal for wood, most particularly in stairways, elevator cages, elevator enclosures, windows, doors, etc.; but it has also done much to improve the appearance of both the interior and the exterior of buildings, and it is generally conceded that this country is far ahead of other countries in making both practical and artistic metal work for buildings. That has been brought about mainly by the good will of the architects in coming in close contact with the leading members of this particular branch of the business, and by both studying together how to produce the best results. The result is that while twenty-five years ago there were but one or two concerns that made a special effort in this direction, there are now, for the reason given above and because the work has become so popular, hundreds of concerns giving particular attention to this class of work, and all of them find plenty to do.

N. POULSON.

In awarding the contract for architectural metal work in our first-class buildings the owners and the architects should not be compelled to always give the work to the lowest bidder, but should choose among the different bidders according to their ability to execute the work. That is already being done to a great extent, but it is not done as often as it should be. In bidding for work where it is known that the lowest bidder is to get the contract, the better concerns cannot figure for first-class work, because they would never be the lowest bidder. But to be perfectly fair all around, it should be known that the owners and the architects will use their own judgment and award the contract to the firm whose bid and whose ability to execute the work will be to their best advantage.

There is at present a greater demand for architectural metal work than there are skillful mechanics to supply it. It is a business that is very much on the increase, and I hope the good feeling that architects have shown in former years toward architectural metal work will continue, because by both parties coming in close contact the best results will be gained.

The Sheet Metal Trade.

EVERY important line of finished steel product except structural material was advanced in price during the last quarter of the year. Tin plate was set ahead ten cents a box on Dec. 12, which was the second action of the sort within the period stated at Pittsburgh. Further illustrative of the unprecedented state of circumstances in the sheet and tin plate trade is the report from Pittsburgh that, while it is customary to close many mills at this season, yet, as a general statement, it can be said they are still being operated as fully as the short supply of steel will permit. The only idle works are: Humbert at Connellsville, Pa., 6 mills; Morewood at Gas City, Ind., 7 mills, and Anderson at Anderson, Ind., 8 mills. These plants have not been on the operative list for eighteen months, and no effort is being made to put them in condition, as it is difficult to get the steel needed to supply the plants already running. The independent producers of tin plate and sheets are only prevented from operating to capacity on account of inability to get steel, but most of them are operating in fairly good shape.

The leading interest and many independents are booked up on sheets to April 1 and into the second quarter. In tin plate sales have been made through the second and into the third quarter. It has been the practice in former years to store tin plate at this season for the usual brisk spring trade, but while production is as large if not greater than ever before, stocks are not being accumulated. Specifications on old contracts during the last few weeks have been unusually heavy and shipments would have been greater but for the shortage of railroad cars.

As most of the sheet and tin plate mills are operated under the sliding wage scale of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, it is likely the workers will participate in the higher prices. The present tin plate scale is $3.40 a box and wages are advanced 2 per cent. with every increase of 10 cents a box in the base price.

In New York City particularly the sheet metal trade has had of recent years, and especially the last two, a remarkable revival of interest and expansion of business. If the fathers who followed the old tinsmith trade and suffered the reverses of twenty-five or more years ago, when factory tinware first came into use, if they are alive to-day, they are seeing this grand old trade resuming its former importance, though with new features and principles, and with higher wages than for a long period, and more work to do. But the tin-pan and pail work the factory still holds fast; steam-heating has taken away much of the stove-setting and hot-air pipe-work, and the plumbers have taken away another share of the old tinsmith's business; but he has added many new lines, and the uses to which his material is being put are increasing in number every day.

General remarks in allusion to the remarkable growth of the sheet metal industry have been frequent during the year, and one of the reasons for the advancing prices of sheets and tin plate is this growth of business and enlargement of demand. Reports indicate that the gas, oil and heating stove trades have made record purchases of sheets, and naturally the demand for galvanized sheets for cornice and other exterior work and for black sheets for roofing and corrugated work in the active building campaign of the past two years will be credited with a considerable proportion of the added tonnage. Also due to the building movement, but emphasizing a preference for steel sheets where wood has been used heretofore, is the large consumption this year of metal lath, metal ceilings and interior decorations of pressed steel. Expanded metal has had an increasing vogue. Shaped sheet steel in combination with concrete has likewise made its contribution to the new tonnage. Prominence should be given in the list of new developments to the enlarging use of sheet steel furniture and office and library equipment.

Prices of sheets in December, 1906, were firm as follows: Blue Annealed Sheets, No. 10 gauge and heavier, 1.80c.; Nos. 11 and 12, 1.85c.; Nos. 13 and 14, 1.90c.; Nos. 15 and 16, 2c.; Box Annealed, Nos. 17 to 21, 2.35c.; Nos. 22 to 24, 2.40c.; Nos. 25 and 26, 2.45c.; No. 27, 2.50c.; No. 28, 2.60c.; No. 29, 2.75c.; No. 30, 2.85c. Galvanized sheets were quoted as follows: Nos. 10 and 11, 2.55c.; Nos. 12 and 14, 2.65c.; Nos. 15 and 16, 2.75c.; Nos. 17 to 21, 2.90c.; Nos. 22 and 24, 3.05c.; Nos. 25 and 26, 3.25c.; No. 27, 3.45c.; No. 28, 3.65c.; No. 29, 3.90c.; and No. 30, 4.15c. We quote No. 28 gauge Painted Roofing Sheets at $1.85 per square, and Galvanized Roofing Sheets, No. 28 gauge, $3.15 per square for 2-in. corrugations. These prices are for carload lots, jobbers charging the usual advances for small lots from store.

During 1905 the United States imported 44,188 short tons, about 43 per cent. of the total visible output, valued at $26,316,023, giving an average price of 29.77 cents per pound. This is, however, considerably below the price at which tin sold in New York City during the year. The price of tin at the opening of the year was 29.05 cents, and it gradually rose with slight fluctuations until about the middle of December, when it went above 36 cents, closing at about 37 3-8 cents. During the first half of 1906 the price rose greatly, reaching at one time £215 per long ton on the London market, and 48½ cents per pound on the New York market. But in June it had fallen to between 38 and 40 cents per pound.

A Block of Real Homes.

A BLOCK of private houses recently completed for the Clark estate (Mr. Frederick Ambrose Clark), is situated in West 74th st, New York, numbers 18 to 52. In that the houses are to be leased instead of sold, the scheme marks a new departure in real estate investment which cannot but be of advantage to the community in general. In these houses it is the aim to provide a better abode than can be obtained for an equal rental in an apartment hotel; to provide something which shall be a home in fact, a place where there may be real family life as it used to exist before the city grew to proportions that forced real estate values up so high that now only the wealthy can live in houses.

THE CLARK ESTATE HOUSES, VIEW LOOKING WEST.
West 74th Street, Manhattan. Percy Griffin, Architect.

The block presents the appearance of a composite whole well studied in its entirety for silhouette fenestration and general composition.

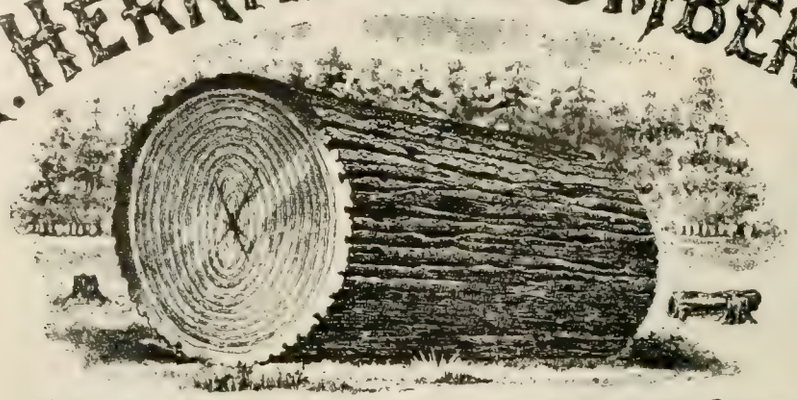
The houses, though parts of a whole, preserve the individual quality that the prospective tenant of such a house would expect. Mr. Percy Griffin has varied the individual facade treatments to give to each house a distinctive character, yet to preserve in its composition certain lines, which allow it to properly take its place in the block. Each house occupies a plot of about 25x85 ft., and has a 3-sty rear extension, making a fairly roomy establishment of seventeen or nineteen rooms. By building these houses at one time it has been possible for the owners to obtain at a reasonable expenditure, many conveniences that to the one-house builder would be prohibitive in price.

Speaking of the architectural scheme as a whole, an appreciation in the Architectural Record for November says it is a laudable one, and if one did not know how it came about, he would be agreeably surprised to see in New York a repetition, with certain local modifications, it is true, but a repetition, nevertheless, of what the Parisians consider the proper treatment of dwelling-house facades. Perhaps the idea will appeal in the future, not only to estates and the like, who, thanks to them, have done the good work in this instance, but to men of moderate means, who can afford to build themselves modest city houses. If people in this frame of mind can, by this successful experiment be interested sufficiently to co-operate before building, so that some kind of uniformity of architectural treatment may result, then the experiment of the Clark estate will have accomplished a very important step in the direction of rational and good architecture in New York and other large American cities. But this is perhaps looking somewhat into the future, and the law will, no doubt, have to acknowledge the practical as well as the artistic necessity of such a step before any definite results can be expected.

retary of the New York Metal Exchange, were favorable to holders of the metal, as the total visible supply on October 31, 11,162 tons, was 1,650 tons below that of the corresponding date last year and 1,037 tons below that of a month ago. Stocks in the United States were 3,260 tons, against 3,020 tons at the end of September. In the middle of December sales were being made at between 42 and 43 cents. Taking into consideration the almost universal habit of allowing stocks to decline during December, in preparation for stock taking, the amount of business then prevailing was considered satisfactory. The London market is higher to-day, closing at £196 10s. for spot and £196 for futures.

There has been good reason for tin to rise in price, for, although the production of 1905 was about the same as that of 1904, the consumption increased considerably, and stocks have materially diminished. Nevertheless, the highest prices are probably due largely to speculation, from which cause the price of tin has suffered violent fluctuations through many years. In tin plates the increase last year over the record of 1905 was not so pronounced as in sheets. The roofing demand has been larger, probably 15 to 20 per cent., due almost entirely to an increased use of the better grades of plates.

Only 43,846 tons of foreign tin and terne plates came over during the first ten months of 1906, as compared with 58,778 in 1905. The present yearly rate is in sharp contrast with importations of 329,435 tons in 1890, and an average of 280,000 tons in the five years preceding. The contrast becomes more marked when it is considered that the importations in the years mentioned practically represented the full domestic demand at that time. To-day more than double the above tonnage is being worked up in the United States each year, as indicated by a home production in 1905 of 493,500 tons and an importation of 65,740 tons.



The production of sheets and tin plates by the United States Steel Corporation in 1906 has been estimated at 1,200,000 gross tons, which compares with 924,439 tons in 1905, 735,482 tons in 1904, 763,670 tons in 1903 and 699,621 tons in 1902. The difficulties outside producers of sheets and tin plates had had throughout the year in securing a supply of steel would indicate that the output of such mills has at least not expanded, and it is known that the building of new independent mills in these lines has not thrived in recent years.

THE ZINC MARKET.—Like all the metals, spelter enjoyed the advantages of greatly stimulated consumption during 1906, with prices at a fair level. At the opening of the year the price was 06.62½ cents (New York) to compare with 06.10 cents in January, 1905, and in the middle of December, 1906, we find it quoted at 6.65, in cargo lots for prime western. Prices generally ran on a higher level in 1906 than in the previous year.

—May a parlor in a flat house be constructed under the law so that an alcove without windows may be curtained off and used as a bedroom? This question will go before the Court of Appeals some time within the next two weeks, and will be argued by Corporation Counsel Ellison and lawyers representing speculative builders of tenement houses.

CAREER OF AN OLD TIN-PLATE HOUSE.

IN these days of huge corporations and organized companies representing widespread interests in every branch of business, it is of distinct interest to record at least one case where an old-time house, established nearly a century ago, has steadfastly maintained its independence and individuality, still continuing in the same line of business as a private firm.

The record of the house of N. & G. Taylor Company has been one of continuous, signal success in the tinplate industry. The business has been handed down from father to son—no less than four generations of Taylors having been connected with the firm. No reference to the roofing-tin industry of this country would be complete without mention of this house. Since the early days of the roofing-tin industry they have consistently advocated the use of good tin, and have shown greater activity than any other house in presenting the advantages of good roofing tin to roofers, contractors, architects and property owners themselves. As a natural result, they have built up a business that has made them the largest manufacturers of high-grade roofing tin in this country.

The house was founded in 1810 in Philadelphia, by William Taylor, grandfather of the present members of the firm, who with his brothers, George Taylor and Tracy Taylor, embarked in the venture of selling tinplate, tinware, metals and kindred articles of all kinds—a venture that was destined to meet with such marked success. In 1830 the firm sold the first terne plates for roofing purposes ever made. We quote from the United States Census Report for 1902:

"In that year (1830) small quantities of lead-coated sheets were made in an establishment located on Market st, Philadelphia, and used for covering roofs. The plates made in the Philadelphia establishment were 10x14 inches, the standard commercial size in those days. Imported English tinplates were used instead of blackplates. They were first put together and run through a bath of molten lead, the tin on the plates serving as a holder for the lead. The plates were sold for roofing purposes, and were of excellent quality. The quantity produced, however, was not very large.

"Regarding the sale of these plates, the N. & G. Taylor Company, of Philadelphia, says: 'News of the sale of so novel an article soon found its way across the water, and terne plates commenced to be made there.'

"The manufacture of terne plates did not become an important branch of the tinplate industry until America began to use this material for covering roofs."

In 1845 the father of the present members of the firm, Nathan Taylor, together with his cousin, George E. Taylor, a son of George Taylor, were admitted to the firm—the old people retiring a few years later. The present company has in their possession old catalogues published about this time, which are of remarkable value to those who are interested in the practice and customs of former days. It is evident from one of these catalogues, published in 1857, that the company already occupied an important position in the industry, as we note a record of premiums being awarded them at the following exhibitions: The American Institute, 1843, '47, '48, '49, '50, '51, '52 and '53; Hartford County Agricultural Society, September, 1843; October, 1847, and October, 1848; Maryland Institute, October, 1848, and 1851; Massachusetts Mechanics Fair, Boston, 1850; New York State Fair, 1850; the Exhibition of the Industry of All Nations at the Crystal Palace, London, England, 1853.

The tools and machines used by tinners in the early days were crude and rough in design, and improved forms were designed by the company about this time, many of which are still in use at the present day, the rights of manufacture having been transferred to the makers of tinners' tools and supplies. Many of the awards mentioned above were made for these improved tools. These tools were lighter, neater and of far more practical use than the heavy, clumsy tools of English make.

Nathan Taylor died in 1861, leaving his partner, George E. Taylor, who, with his brother, William Y. Taylor, continued the firm of N. & G. Taylor, adding the word "Company" to the title, making the present title date from that time.

About this time, catalogues and circulars published by the firm mention the facilities offered by the new Atlantic Cable in importing supplies of tinplate promptly from the English works. As a matter of interest, the first code word adopted by the company was the word "pleasure," indicating that "tinplates are advancing." The charge for this single word at that time was five dollars.

A catalogue published in 1868 calls particular attention to the new size for roofing tin just introduced by this house, namely 28x20 inches. Frequent mention is made of this latest novelty, and its distinct advantage to the roofer, in N. & G. Taylor Co.'s advertising at that time. In this same catalogue is found a description of another novelty, namely—Bessemer steel tinplates for stamping purposes. The catalogue states that "these steel tinplates are altogether a novelty, and originally introduced by ourselves; they are well suited for stamping, requiring a thinner gauge than if they were iron."

The company's products were awarded premiums at the Paris Exposition in 1867. An elaborate catalogue published in 1875 devotes even more space to the use of good roofing-tin as a durable, fireproof, weatherproof material for covering buildings. We learn from this catalogue that:

"When we introduced our 28x20 roofing we hardly thought it would so popularize itself as to drive 14x20 out of the market, but it was so well adapted for rapid and perfect roofing that we have never been able to fully keep pace with the demand.

"28x20 bright tinplate originating with ourselves, is now coming into general use for all kinds of tinware, and in fact taking the place of the old sizes. A greater variety of patterns can be cut from it. Its use saves labor, solder and material, and we have always in stock the largest possible variety of brands suitable for all kinds of work; IC thickness to D 5X.

"At the Franklin Institute Exposition of 1874 we exhibited the largest sheet of tinplate ever made, also samples of the first leaded plate ever made, taken from a roof in Philadelphia, where they had been for forty years, and as perfect as when put on. This was the leaded tin made in Philadelphia in 1831, before it was ever made in Wales. Other curiosities exhibited were samples of No. 40 sheet iron, shown under glass, the thinnest ever made. Also ordinary articles of tinware made of 6X and 8X tinplate, and replated by being dipped into molten tin. Also very valuable drawings from a work published in 1720, showing the method of making tinplates at even an earlier period."

These old catalogues constantly urge roofers and manufacturers to favor American industries wherever possible. American built ships used for the imports of tinplate, and when Philadelphia Russia iron was first made, Messrs. N. & G. Taylor Company were the first to sell it. They were the first houses therefore that ever sold American tin-plate and sheet-iron, introducing it through Eastern Pennsylvania and New York City. One of our advertisements of this American Hammered Russia Iron contains the significant prophetic inquiry—"Why go to Russia for iron when we have mountains and mountains of it here?"

This catalogue of 1875 mentions some buildings in Philadelphia "covered with tin during the latter part of the last century, and the roofs have not been repaired since. One was covered in 1796 and the roof to-day is in as excellent condition as when put on. Throughout Canada it is a common thing for a tin roof to be in perfect condition after the lapse of a century."

George E. Taylor died in 1882, when the present members of the firm, together with George W. B. Taylor (deceased 1899) have continued the business up to the present time. After the McKinley protective tariff went into effect they were among the first to commence the manufacture of roofing-tin in this country. This was in 1891. A year or two later an extensive tract of land was secured in the southern portion of the city, and the present tinplate works erected there. The company also operates its own furnaces, rolling mills and blackplate plant at Cumberland, Maryland, thus having control of all the processes of manufacture from the pig-iron and pig-metals to the finished sheet. The works are able to give careful, personal attention to all the intricate processes of manufacture.

In a private industry of this nature a deep-rooted family pride exists, which is too often lacking in large industrial corporations and stock companies. The business is under the direct personal management of the members of the family, and the old-time reputation for fair dealing and good value in their tinplate is carefully guarded and valued.

Their "Target and Arrow Old Style" brand, formerly known as "Taylor Old Style," has established so widespread a reputation for satisfactory service on the roof, that as a matter of common business judgment the company is bound to maintain the former high standard of that brand at all hazards. This they have done, steadfastly refusing to cheapen the quality of the tin to meet price competition.

In the present movement for better conditions among the trade the house has taken its usual leading part—Hollinshead N. Taylor of the company, having submitted two of the six prize essays recently selected in competition for advancing the interests of tin roofing.

Valuation of Manhattan Real Estate.

ANNEXED are statistics from the assessment rolls in the Department of Taxes and Assessments. As will be seen by the tabulation, there was a general falling off in new buildings last year, which is particularly marked in Sections 6 and 7. The only section of Manhattan which shows a gain in the number of new buildings erected is Section 3, which exhibits an increase of 32 new buildings for 1906. The middle part of the Borough, Section 4, leads in increase improvements, showing a gain of more than six million dollars. The statistics are for each of the eight sections into which the city is divided for assessment purposes.

Section 1 (all that part of the borough south of Watts and Grand sts.)—Assessment roll, 1906, $685,400,440; new buildings, 43; increased improvements, $12,006,800; decrease, $1,915,630; net increase, $46,457,670; annual record, Jan. 8, 1907, $731,858,110.

Section 2 (all that part of the borough bounded north by 14th st and on the south by Watts and Grand sts.)—Assessment roll, 1906, $485,542,910; new buildings, 105; increased improvements, $5,620,200; decrease, $441,500; net increase, $28,478,200; annual record, Jan. 8, 1907, $514,021,110.

Section 3 (between 14th and 40th sts.)—Assessment roll, 1906, $805,626,550; new buildings, 127; increased improvements, $16,477,000; decrease, $1,560,000; net increase, $40,729,600; annual record, Jan. 8, 1907, $846,356,150.

CANAVAN BROTHERS CO.

Excavators and House Shorers

Great engineering feats involving skill, indefatigable labor and unique machinery and appliances are being performed every day in New York in the excavation and building of foundations, which are unseen and unnoted except by those directly interested.

The work of the excavator demands special appliances—pneumatic and electric drills, derricks, and a hundred others. Rocks must be blasted, old foundations must be removed, and adjoining buildings shored and kept in their places, and all this without the least injury to these buildings. Gangs of rough excavators are necessary in this work and skillful management is by no means one of the least difficulties of the master excavator.

An interview with a representative firm of excavators and house shorers, Canavan Brothers Company, whose extensive plant lies at the foot of West 56th Street, on the Hudson River, soon convinced the writer that the man who excavates or prepares the way for the foundation building is a most important factor in the construction of a building. When this same firm does the shoring necessary in connection with these large contracts for excavating, the owner or general contractor not only economizes in the cost of the excavation, but he saves considerable time, which is all important to-day in the construction of modern buildings. This is accomplished by Canavan Brothers Company through the combination of their two important departments, excavating and house shoring, both under the same management.

Architects and Contractors are well aware of this from their experience; hence, their care in selecting the excavators who do their work. The rapidity with which the excavations are done in these advanced days means skill, proper tools, machinery and a sufficient number of men on the job who are steady, experienced and reliable.

This is the secret of Canavan Brothers Company's success. Their motto is "Never procrastinate—do the work to-day," and their record as we look over it is one brilliant chain of successes. They have just completed an arduous undertaking in the excavations for the "Apthorp" Apartment House, for the Astors, at 78th and 79th Streets, Broadway and West End Avenue. This contract was completed in five months—quicker than the contractors expected, as it was thought to be a year's work. They also did the excavations for the Brunswick Building, in Madison Square and 26th Street, one-fifth of which was solid rock, but the entire work was performed in ten weeks. So we might enumerate indefinitely the excavations and shoring work accomplished by these indefatigable brothers, David P., John F. and Maurice J. Canavan, who have been engaged in this work for the past twenty-five years.

In each of the foregoing items, by substracting the figures for increase improvements from the net increase of valuation the remainder will be the increased valuation on property unaltered since the last assessment was made, and from that the average per cent. of increase can be figured for each district.

Real Estate Advertising

By CHARLES W. HALLER

THE natural way to begin to talk about advertising real estate is to consider advertising simply as salesmanship.* If you employ a salesman you want him to be clean, neat, becomingly dressed, easy of manner and convincing of speech; your advertisement should be the same. An advertisement that is poorly designed, badly written or cheaply illustrated is one of the most expensive drains to which a business can be subjected. Another point that should be kept well in mind is that the best salesmen seldom take orders on the first call. Never expect an advertisement to do more than a trained human being. It is said that 62 2-3% of American advertisers give up after a single trial. About the only element of difference between those that succeed and the failures is the persistency shown by the winners.

The man who views advertising as a gamble need not be seriously considered. While advertising has not become an exact science, it is recognized as a positive business force. Applied rightly to a sound proposition it cannot fail. Regarded as a gamble it is pretty certain to turn out that way.

The advertising you did a year ago will not do the work you want done to-day, so, as one of our largest advertising agents says, "Keep everlastingly at it." It is a too prevalent opinion among real estate dealers that they can only advertise at certain seasons when the weather is particularly favorble. The few who have gotten away from this idea are making a lot of money. A moment's thought will show you that in the winter time when it would be entirely unfavorable to show property a great many people are most approachable and open to the suggestion that another year they will have a home of their own, or a better home in another locality. To follow out another old advertising agency maxim, "The time to advertise is all the time." The better your proposition is the more advertising it will stand.

The public forms an estimate of advertised business by reading its statements. False notes are easily detected and unless an advertisement rings true a positive injury has been done to the business, and the advertiser is in danger of being regarded as insincere and unreliable in other things as well as advertising. An instance of this was shown in another line of business which you will recall. People were urged to write a personal, confidential letter to Mrs. Lydia Pinkham. Not long afterwards it became generally known that Mrs. Lydia Pinkham died years before, and that a man with a heavy beard was answering the personal and confidential letters addressed to her. As a result Pinkham's Compound and patent medicines generally received a black eye, from which they are unlikely to recover.

It is evident, then, that an advertiser should use the utmost care in preparing copy. Under no circumstances should he attempt to mislead or deceive in any way. Next to being truthful, an advertisement should be interesting and suggestive, and most important of all, the advertisements must contain the information the public wants; otherwise the chief aim of advertising will be missed and there should be no surprise if results show unsatisfactory.

The general policy of your business will determine the kind of advertising you do. The first and most important step therefore is to decide what part of your business policy is to be served by advertising and then to use this powerful influence for the greatest possible good. This may be to create prestige for your firm name; it may be to secure direct prospects for certain sales; it may be to secure the handling of additional estates; in any event your advertising is (or should be) an extension of your personality. If you are a good salesman just be your natural self when you write an advertisement and it is pretty certain to be a good salesman, too. Above all things avoid a literary style.

Keep constantly in mind that your one fixed purpose is to fill the reader with the desire to buy, and this cannot be done by filling the advertisement with your desire to sell. Of course, the more attractively written it is the better it will be, but after all the most important thing is the information it contains. You must make the people believe that your offerings are right and your terms are right, then you will have no trouble in making a sale and the price is usually the most important thing in the consideration of those who want to buy. To come back to the point of persistency, you cannot expect to convince the skeptical nor win the attention of the uninterested by once telling your story.

Whenever the character of an advertisement allows, a good illustration adds much to its effectiveness. A handsome design draws attention to an advertisement and renders it more attractive and usually makes it more readily understood. It must be good and it must illustrate, otherwise the space could be used to better advantage. A safe rule is to only use an illustration when it will say more in explanation of its subject than could be said by filling the same space with type. A judicious use of white space also draws attention to an advertisement and frequently produces a better effect than an illustration. Borders are also effective in displaying an advertisement.

Good typesetting may make or mar an advertisement. The effects of the well-written announcement may be entirely destroyed by a bad selection and arrangement of type. A well-balanced advertisement is a work of art requiring genius as well as skill, and there are many men who have spent the better part of a life-time mastering the possibilities of this art.

The benefit a business may derive from good advertising can scarcely be overestimated. Unfortunately all advertising is not good advertising. There is therefore a possibility that some of your advertising may be an injury rather than a benefit. This again emphasizes the necessity of great care and judgment in the preparation of copy, the selection of mediums and the typographical appearance. Naturally as an advertising agent I believe that any advertiser is safer under the guidance of the right kind of an advertising agent than he can be alone; however experienced he may be. The advertising agent does nothing but advertising; he has records of hundreds of other people's experience, including their successes and failures. He can tell you without your paying for the experience what the result has been in similar cases. He has people working for him who do nothing but study the best points to make in an advertisement. He has all the statistics in regard to all the publications; he knows the number and kind of readers who will see your announcement in each. His illustrators are at your service and the crowning part of the advantage of dealing with an advertising agent lies in the fact that his work for you is paid for by the publication, so his expert knowledge is yours without cost. If this sounds like an advertisement of my own business I have no defence to offer, as it is what I believe, and besides, why should I talk to you about good advertising without doing a little myself?

*From a lecture before the Real Estate Class of the West Side Y. M. C. A., Manhattan. Mr. Haller is a member of the firm of George P. Rowell & Co., advertising agents.

Changes in Topographical Map.

Rapid progress is being made in the mapping out of Queens Borough, and Engineer Robert Crowell states that he expects to have the entire remaining portion of Newtown completed and ready for adoption by the Board of Estimate by the middle of February. Work is being pushed rapidly also on that portion of the town of Jamaica extending south from Liberty av and South st to Jamaica Bay in the expectation of having a map ready for adoption before the end of next summer.

To assist the developers in laying out their property in safety, tentative maps have been given out, such as are likely to be adopted by the city.

The plans as prepared under the advice of Chief Engineer Nelson Lewis, of the Board of Estimate, in all the level or slightly undulating sections of Queens that have thus far been adopted has been that of rectangular blocks with avenues running the longest way through the various section from 80 to 150 ft. in width, and the cross streets 60 ft. in width. The other level sections in the towns of Jamaica and Flushing will undoubtedly be laid out on the same plan, taking into consideration also the grades required for an efficient sewer system. It is recognized that the thousands of acres of Queens will in the main be occupied by families of moderate means who cannot afford to buy lots in expensive park residence sections.

Housewrecker

I wish to call your attention to my work in pulling down the old buildings on the site of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, corner of Broad and Beaver Streets. These six 6-story buildings occupied an area 120 x 100 feet. I demolished them and removed everything, including dirt and rubbish, leaving the cellars broom clean, ready for the contractors, in 15½ clear working days. The leading experts in wrecking estimated from 23 to 33 days. There were no accidents, no damages and no trouble from any source. I took possession November 8th and turned it over to the George A. Fuller Co. November 30th. Among the large contracts for razing which I have completed in record time and at the lowest possible cost are the Old Trinity Building, 111 Broadway; Boreel Building, Broadway, Cedar Street, Thames Street and Trinity Place; old Lord & Taylor Department Store, on Grand Street.

I give personal attention to the small contracts as well as to the large, and am always ready to furnish estimates promptly and reasonably. Am equipped to execute any work at a moment's notice and guarantee satisfaction.

"THE ARROW CAN"

Patented November 22, 1904

An Improved Pressed Steel

ASH AND GARBAGE CAN

Has No Rivets to Pull Out Linked Hoops to Pull Off or Thin Bottom to Rust Out

REINFORCED
GALVANIZED

"The Arrow Can" is a neat heavily reinforced galvanized Ash and Garbage Can, which cannot be collapsed, broken or pulled apart. It is scientifically designed and constructed to give the greatest amount of strength at points of greatest strain, and will stand any amount of rough handling.

The side reinforcement of flutes, made in the body of the can itself, cannot be bent sideways or torn off, as in the case of wooden slats or metal pieces riveted to the outside of the can with small rivets. When emptying the can, two of the reinforcing flutes always rest on the side of the cart, taking the whole strain.

The entire can is made of sheet steel in its natural state, and is heavily galvanized inside and out after it is all assembled, which adds two gauges to the thickness of the metal and greatly strengthens the can. This is a very important feature, as it prevents rust and corrosion from eating out the bottom and is greatly superior to any form of japanning or painting.

Only the best malleable iron drop handles are used, with heavy clips. These cans are protected by patents. No can genuine without our registered trade marks and red label. The Arrow is also stamped in the bottom and cast on the handles.

IRREGULARITY and uncertainty continued in Wall Street this week. The market has been dull and weak by turns with an occasional spasm of strength. It is not an uncommon admission in large Stock Exchange offices these days that customers have not made any money during the past year either on the long or short side of the account. The violent swings up and down while theoretically constituting an ideal trading market have instead practically wiped out traders on both sides. The result is that operators are afraid of the market and one of the biggest of them made the remark this week that "an archangel couldn't beat it." Its natural tendency seems still to be upwards, but it goes down just the same. Money is getting very easy and plentiful and a good bank statement today is a fair expectation. On Wednesday President Schuster of the Union Bank of London, at a meeting of that institution in the British metropolis, said in speaking of the financial situation in this country, "signs are not wanting that your great activity is now nearing its end and a period of liquidation is at hand." He added, however, that the contraction of business would, in his opinion, be gradual and that over-speculation and over-trading would be checked without material harm resulting to the welfare of the community. An opinion from so high a source is worthy of note, but even British bankers are not infallible in their predictions regarding the development, the progress and the material prosperity of this country, for it has broken all records and precedents and rendered former standards useless. Financially and commercially the United States is in a class by itself. The appointment of Chairman Theodore P. Shonts of the Isthmian Canal Commission to the presidency of the Interborough Railroad Company in place of August Belmont was viewed with satisfaction by Wall Street. Mr. Shonts has resigned from the Canal Commission and his continued prominent connection with the Toledo, St. Louis & Western Railroad, better known as the Clover Leaf, is by his Interborough presidency looked upon as an argument in favor of an advance in that stock. In the transactions in the stock market this week much of the buying of the general list represented covering of the "shorts," of which there is undoubtedly a large number outstanding.

PROPERTY-OWNERS in the vicinity of Twenty-third Street can certainly make a strong argument in favor of an express station at that street in the new East Side subway. There is no valid reason why the express stations should be situated at equal distances one from another, or that the express stations on the different underground routes should all be at the same streets. The one consideration of dominant importance is the convenience of the public; and the public convenience will surely be promoted by the location of the express stations at different streets in different subways, so that a passenger can more quickly reach any particular destination by taking his choice of routes. Thus Fourteenth Street has an express station on the Fourth Avenue route; Twenty-third Street should have one on the Lexington-Fifth Avenue route, and Thirty-fourth Street on the West Side route, which passes near the Pennsylvania Terminal. An express station at Twenty-third Street would be of more use to more people than one at almost any other single street. The cross-town traffic on that street is the heaviest in the city. Madison Square is destined within ten years to be surrounded by sky-scrapers; and whatever it may lose by the shifting of retail trade to points further north it will gain in the number and population of its office-buildings. Moreover, at the end of ten years, it will be the centre of a wholesale section, including a multitude of tall buildings. Taking all these conditions into consideration the Record and Guide believes that it would be a grave mistake not to situate the express station at Twenty-third Street. A very good distribution of these stations would be to locate one at Ninth Street, the point at which the subway would cross the Astor Place extension of the New Jersey tunnel; one at Twenty-third Street and one at Fifty-ninth Street. Assuming that the East Side subway will be constructed south of Forty-second Street, we fail to see any sufficient reason why there should be an express station at Forty-second Street. The existing subway contains a station at this point, and that subway should be for the time being sufficient for the needs of the people who wish to travel to and from Forty-second Street quickly. Everybody cannot be entirely satisfied; and the object should be to give the best possible service to the largest possible number of people. Given the existing express stations at Fourteenth and Forty-second Streets, that object would be best attained by similar stations at Ninth, Twenty-third and Fifty-ninth Streets in the new subway.

The Condemnation of Land for Public Purposes.

THE Record and Guide has received among others a letter from Mr. Lawson Purdy, President of the Tax Department, in reference to the proposed changes in the method of condemning land for public purposes which reads in part as follows: "I am particularly interested in your proposal that when the city condemns land for a public improvement it shall condemn a larger area than is required for the improvement, in order that it may reap the increased value given to the adjacent land by reason of the improvement. I am somewhat familiar with the experience of the City of London, and that experience demonstrates that the city may gain so large a profit in the enhanced value of the land condemned as to pay the entire cost of important improvements. We shall be lacking, indeed, in a proper progressive spirit if we do not obtain the power necessary to follow this good example. I trust that the Record and Guide will keep the matter before the people until such power as may be necessary is gained for the City of New York."

The Record and Guide has been preaching the necessity of such a reform, for a great many years, but until recently the responsible city officials, whose approval is necessary before the matter can be carried to the Legislature, have exhibited little or no interest in it. Yet there can be no doubt that increased power in condemning land for public purposes is as necessary in its way to the future welfare of the City of New York as is increased rapid transit or an increased water-supply. The necessity is not so immediate, and the consequences of inaction would not be so distressing in the near future; but most assuredly the extreme difficulty with which new streets are laid out at present in the older parts of the city will, unless it is remedied, seriously and permanently impair the prosperity of the city. For reasons which have frequently been pointed out the existing lay-out of Manhattan makes in every way for congestion; for the concentration of business and traffic along certain lines and at certain points. The result is not only that thoroughfares like Broadway and Fifth Avenue and cross-town streets like Twenty-third or Forty-second Streets become so over-crowded that traffic is much delayed, but that the business of the city has to carry a much heavier burden of rental charges. A better lay-out would mean a much better distribution of business, and consequently of real estate values, and a much lower average of rental charges. A few property-owners on Fifth Avenue or Broadway might lose thereby, but their loss would be more than counterbalanced by the benefit which would accrue to thousands of owners whose property is now side-tracked by comparative inaccessibility. The City of New York is proposing to handle the most concentrated and voluminous body of business and traffic which the world has ever seen by means of a street system which is that of an overgrown country village; and it will wake up some day and discover that its negligence is costing it millions of dollars a year.

The difficulties of laying out new streets in the older parts of the city are derived from two sources—the opposition of local property-owners and the expense. Local property-owners always fight such proposals because they realize that existing methods of condemnation mean to them not merely partial expropriation but frequently severe losses. The consequence is that such proposals rarely get through the local boards of improvement. Even when the property-owners are united in admitting the necessity of the street opening or widening, as in the case of Fifty-ninth Street, they seldom agree as to the lines of the new lay-out. Each man always wants the other fellow's property to be taken. But in such a matter as the widening of Fifty-ninth Street the general public interest is vastly more important than the interest of local property-owners, and the machinery of condemnation should be reorganized for the purpose of enabling the general public interest and will to prevail. The other difficulty is that of expense. In a city of tall buildings and high real estate values like Manhattan, the cost of running new streets through old districts is staggering, and the city officials, who are obliged to struggle constantly to keep expenses down, are naturally dismayed at the cost. The one practicable method of financing such improvements is that of making them in some measure pay for themselves, and they can be made to pay for themselves only by enabling the city to reap the benefit of the improvement. If the city had the power to condemn all the land between Fifty-eighth and Sixtieth Streets, First and Fifth Avenues, at existing values, and to sell off the land it did not need after Fifty-ninth Street was widened, there can be no doubt that this necessary improvement could be effected without actually costing the city a penny. As Mr. Purdy points out, the City of London has made similar improvements pay their own cost; and it may be added that the City of Paris has, we are informed, actually made a profit out of certain analogous operations. The point is, however, not that the city might make a profit in cases which now mean a public loss and ill-distributed benefit-assessments upon property-owners, but that in the existing condition of our municipal finances, necessary improvements are in this way made possible. Every person or organization in New York who understands the indispensability of street improvements should bend all their energies towards the obtaining of a constitutional amendment to enable New York to escape the cost and the eventual disaster of an intolerable congestion of traffic and business.

Meeting of the Minds in Contracts.

ONE of the most important things to the validity and creation of a contract is the "meeting of the minds" of the parties contracting. A "consideration" is also a very important integral part of a contract, but it may be implied, or if omitted altogether, it may be waived through ratification, part performance and other legal theories devised to accomplish the doing of justice, where some formal necessity of law has been omitted.

But when in a case the minds of the parties have not really met, and it becomes a manifest fact, then the law is powerless as a science to do much, and the reliance must be on the jury, which makes many a contract binding to which neither party had ever originally agreed.

Perhaps this is why the jury system has so long been retained, when everybody knows it to be really obsolete, and but a cloak of escape, more often, for the rogue or party in the wrong than vice versa. A jury settles questions at issue, one way or the other, as to which the courts would be powerless. It is a law unto itself, and where not too glaringly unjust (and it is rarely very far astray, as a matter of abstract evenness between man and man, when not warped by passion or prejudice), its rough-handled findings and verdicts are generally allowed by the courts in the effort to clear the calendar and do business.

Thus is many a contract "found" by a jury where its validity, dependent on a legal actual meeting of the minds, would be in law absolutely nil. Such a case has recently come forward for solution by a jury, which if left to the courts for decision, as based on law and precedent, would result in a deadlock, and failure to enforce the contract, from a lack of meeting of the minds.

The facts are about as follows: A large corporation, desiring its books audited at the close of a year, sent a messenger to a bookkeeping and auditing firm which had frequently been employed by it in the past for such purpose, to send a bookkeeper or two up for the work. On the arrival of one, and he being told what was desired, he found that it was another firm of bookkeepers than his own which had previously been in the habit of making up these books, and he very frankly stated the fact, but asked, since he was there, why his firm could not take the job as well as any other. On being told that the only reason was that the firm previously employed had been compensated for such services always in the supplies which the corporation dealt in, he still persisted in desiring to do the work, saying that form of compensation, he thought, would be satisfactory; and later he brought assurance of this fact, and entered upon the task, a matter of a few hundred dollars, at per diem compensation.

While working on the books he made many changes in their form and system, with a view to render them, as he stated, more efficient and up to date. By degrees an entirely new set of books had been set up, and the job had grown into one of several months' duration. Matters had run along so insensibly from one change to another that neither party had ever spoken of any change in the agreement, the corporation probably considering the compensation in supplies as in some measure making reasonable a day's-wage job which from its increasing size should otherwise have been made a matter of estimate and contract, and the bookkeeper perhaps fearing to disturb a good thing in the way of an almost carte blanche employment.

Finally things came to an end, as all things will, even in "the day's work"—as well as other forms of contracts—the bookkeeping firm sending in its bill and the corporation auditing it and sending an order for supplies on one of its departments to the amount of the bill. This order the bookkeeping firm promptly returned, saying the compensation for all work above the original first audit of the books must be cash, and that no one could suppose it was meant to undertake the larger task of inaugurating and setting up a new system of books with the large expense which such a matter involved for any form of compensation other than cash.

And here the parties broke off and matters were relegated to the courts for a decision.

This case is recited as being exactly in point with our subject, the question of the meeting of the minds of the parties to contracts and how it is gotten over by the jury system. It may very justly be that the bookkeeping firm expected that having secured an entrance into the employment of the corporation by taking compensation for a start "in kind," that for further and other work it might obtain employment, and secure cash for that. But, as appears by the testimony they carefully avoided ever making mention of such a change of compensation being expected; and so gradually did the new work grow out from the old that no point of demarcation could readily be adopted. On the other hand, the corporation probably felt that it was getting a good house-cleaning and renovating of its system of accounts, even if at wasteful per diem rates, rather than as a matter of estimate and contract, since the inequality might be fairly made good by the form of compensation being in the goods in which it dealt, rather than cash.

However just or fair these surmises of ours as to the exact working of the minds of the several parties, one thing is certain, the minds of the parties did not meet, in relation to the further and extended (as claimed by one side), or entirely new work (as claimed by the other), and which from any standpoint, finished up the further relations of the two parties.

The argument of the plaintiff's counsel, that no sane mind could expect so large an undertaking to have been contemplated to be paid for on a "supplies" basis, or on any other than a cash one, is ingenious, but as it seems to us, rather ingenuous also. Seamen shipped for a whaling voyage, expected to be rather a short one, on a "share and share" basis, would naturally feel aggrieved, if on an extension of the voyage, without reshipping articles being signed, the owners of the vessel should urge on the return of the ship, after a very profitable outcome of the latter part of the voyage, as compared with the earlier that the men should be paid ordinary wages in cash for the extended part of the voyage, instead of on the more profitable share-and-share basis, because no one could believe so fat a thing intended to be thrown to the men as a share in the profits of the greater and more extended voyage, as against the usual monthly sea-wages.

And yet to try and do rough justice as between man and man, the jury in such a case is counted on to make meet the minds that never met, and by cutting down the claim of the plaintiff, and changing the form of compensation by the defendant to a cash one, to clear the decks of the courts for further actions; forcing the legal conclusion of a "meeting of the minds" without which such an action must legally and logically fall to the ground, and which the very compromise nature of the verdict itself shows not to have been really believed in by the jury. For, granted the fact of the minds of the parties having really met, the verdict could logically but be for the full amount claimed by the plaintiff, whether in cash or supplies.

Once in a while a juryman is found with a logical mind, which refuses an approximation of justice in a compromise verdict of this kind, a "disagreement" ensues, and the action fails, but such a one is usually regarded as a crank and an obstructionist to justice (?); and his holding out to a finish, though occasional, is rare.

Dinner of Acmy Real Estate Club.

On Monday evening the Acmy Real Estate Club of the Y. M. C. A. sat down to an informal dinner at Reisenweber's 58th st and 8th av, on which occasion about fifty members and friends listened to interesting and instructive remarks on the subject of "Real Estate Organization and System." The first speaker was Mr. Joel S. De Selding, representing the Real Estate Board of Brokers of Manhattan. Mr. De Selding said that the Board was established in 1896 with an approximate membership of 37, but that it could now boast of 150 members. After explaining the workings of that body, referring to its system of records, etc., the speaker alluded to the great care exercised in admitting responsible brokers to membership. "We want representative members, rather than numbers," he added. Mr. De Selding particularly pointed out the advantages of appraisals by a committee delegated by the Board, stating that this feature is rapidly growing in popular favor. In closing his remarks, he said: "Other boards have been established as a result of the success of our association, and you cannot do better than become a member of the Real Estate Board of Brokers."

Mr. W. H. Britigan, the educational director of the Association, told about the start of the real estate classes, saying:

"I am sure you will all agree with me that the real estate classes and this club have done a great deal in the past two and a half years for the real estate business. Prior to the organization of these classes there was little or no opportunity for young men to learn the business, and no opportunity for conferences and discussions, such as we have had in the classes and this club. When the classes were being organized some men were enthusiastic over the proposed courses, while many others were very skeptical. They thought the only way to learn the real estate business was by getting into an office and learning by experience. One man said that he thought the best way was to study the Record and Guide and walk the streets. I could name over a number of men whom all of you would know who threw some pretty cold water on the proposition. Those same men are to-day enthusiastic over the classes and co-operate in every way possible.

"On the opening night of the first classes in real estate in this country, in October, 1904, 500 men were present. The first year 230 men enrolled as members. The second season the enrollment in the three classes was 289, and this season, the third of the classes, the enrollment is 316. Every one of these men were interested in some way in real estate. Many of them were real estate men who had been in the business for years.

"When men like Joseph P. Day, William P. Rooney, Walter Stabler, and many others who have been in the business for years, come to the classes and get benefit from them, we feel the classes are doing good work. And when many other large educational institutions over the country start courses in real estate patterned after our courses, and all of these classes are successful, we feel that we have started a work that has not only done good in New York, but throughout the country.

"Some men have had the impression in the past that the Y. M. C. A. was composed of a lot of boys. I remember one of the lecturers came to the class with an address written to boys. He was told that the class was not composed of boys, but of men, many of whom were not beginners in the business. When he saw the rather old boys who were members of this class he had to forget his manuscript and talk to the class that was before him. I am quite sure, however, that that impression of the Y. M. C. A. is no longer in the minds of business men in New York. They know of the classes we have, not only in real estate, but in many other lines, and they know of the work they are doing.

"Near the end of the first season of the classes many of the members were sorry that the classes were nearing a close. The members had come to know each other, and they regretted that it would soon be necessary for them, as a class, to separate. Then it was that the club was thought of. I know that those of us who took part in the bringing of this club into existence look upon it with pride to-day.

"I can remember the long meetings we had at the beginning. This club was not organized in a day. There was a lot of planning by the members and some mighty good work was done in effecting the organization. The classes then met every other Thursday evening. On the alternate Thursday evenings the meetings of the club were held in the Association building. These meetings continued until the end of the classes in April. After that the club held field outings every month on Saturday afternoons. These outings were always well attended and were very profitable as well as enjoyable.

"We believe in the Board of Brokers, and we know they believe in us. We have some of their members in our own membership. We are not trying to cover their field. There is plenty of room for the two organizations. We know that we have the support of the real estate men of New York. There are many men who are watching with much interest the growth of this organization, and we want them to watch us."

Mr. Joseph P. Day was the last speaker. He explained the modern system of a progressive real estate auction business, interspersing his remarks with numerous anecdotes.

The seventh anniversary dinner of the Contractors' Protective Association, which was held Saturday, January 19, at Shanley's, was largely attended and very interesting. BUILDING NOTES

The man behind Mr. McAdoo in his tunnel constructions is now said to be Mr. Ryan. For a time the Pennsylvania interests were thought to be backing McAdoo. And Mr. Ryan is supposed to be yoked up with Mr. Belmont. But what difference do mere names make to Jersey real estate interests?

At the regular monthly meeting of the trustees of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on Tuesday last, a gift of $50,000 was announced from H. C. Fahnestock, of the First National Bank, Manhattan. This amount is to be applied to building the west arch of what is called the "crossing" of the cathedral.

Attention is called to an advertisement in our "want and offer" columns of first-class general building contracting firm for a manager for its New York office. Must be a man with wide acquaintance among architects and the general building trades in New York and vicinity, of good address and capable of successfully soliciting contracts from architects and owners.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination on February 27-28, to secure eligibles from which to make certification to fill the following named vacancies in the offices of the surveyors general of the Land Office Service, at the places indicated, and similar vacancies as they may occur: One draftsman, $1,400 per annum, San Francisco, Cal., and another at $4 per diem; two copyists-draftsmen, $4 per diem each, Phoenix, Ariz.; one draftsman and three copyists-draftsmen, at $4 per diem each, Reno, Nev.; one draftsman, $1,400 per annum, Bismarck, N. Dak.

The first International Exposition of Safety Devices and Industrial Hygiene will be held at the American Museum of Natural History, Jan. 29 to Feb. 12, under the auspices of the American Institute of Social Service. Hughes, Governor of the State of New York; His Excellency, the Italian Ambassador, Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, Washington, D. C.; Hon. Carroll D. Wright, former United States Commissioner of Labor; Hon. Charles Stewart Smith, former President of the New York Chamber of Commerce; Melville E. Stone, President of the Associated Press.

It appears that the members of the Brotherhood and Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners of Greater New York, who are now employed as carpenters in various departments of the city are receiving less than the prevailing rate of wages paid by private contractors and others in the City of New York, namely: In the Borough of Manhattan, the prevailing rate is $4.80 per day, and the city pays its employees $4.50; in the Borough of Brooklyn, the prevailing rate of wages is $4.50 and the city pays its employees $4; in the Borough of the Bronx, the prevailing rate of wages is $4.50, and the city pays its employees $4.—President Tower of the Consolidated Board of Business Agents has petitioned the Board of Aldermen to pass legislation to enable the city departments to pay the higher rate.

CORRESPONDENCE

Why Forget the Assets?

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

The frequent statements and discussions in the daily papers as to the debt of the city of New York, it seems to me, should bring up the question whether it is proper to consider the entire amount of the bonded debt of the city as its real indebtedness.

Has the city no assets? Is there nothing to show for what this money has been spent?

The city bonds are sold to raise funds for the purchase of property for sites for schools, engine houses, court houses, police stations, public libraries, and for the erection of suitable buildings thereon, for the lay-out of streets, for the building of our water system, sewer system, for the building of our bridges, subways, docks, etc.

Would it not be proper to consider the various works in which the funds raised by the issue of bonds are invested as an asset?

Certainly our parks, schools, police stations, engine houses and fire plants, court houses, our water supply system, bridges, docks, ferries, and all other properties have some value.

Why should these not be considered as an asset to offset the between seven and eight hundred millions of bonded debt?

True, it would be an interesting problem to arrive at a value for these varied investments.

Central Park, situated as it is, could not be valued on the basis of abutting land values, these being what they are because of Central Park's proximity. So with all our parks and public places.

Yet, at any price, however reasonably valued, what a snug little asset Central Park would be.

The buildings erected for the use of the various public utilities could possibly not be figured at their actual cost, their value being affected by the necessity of their existence, such as environment and population.

Place a value on the Brooklyn Bridge, for instance. To us it is worth millions as a public utility, yet to a possible purchaser its value might be nothing.

Our schools, the finest buildings of their kind in the land, or perhaps in the world, might not be worth very much as an asset, if the population which renders them necessary were not within the limits of our city.

The city of New York, being still a great big husky boy, full of good solid business sense, with a long, useful and prosperous life before him, then when striking his balance why not encourage him by crediting him with some of the many good things in which he has invested his money?

JOSEPH WOLF.

Notice to Vacate.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Will you kindly answer the following question? A owns a house, rents the same to B. B has a son, a doctor, who conducts his business in the same house. B has a lease for one year, this lease containing the usual covenants and agreements with no special understanding. Lease expires May 1st and has the three months' clause as in the house agreement. A offers the house for sale and puts a "for sale" sign on the building. C wants to buy the same now and have the contract to close May 1st. Nothing has been said to the tenant (but he has agreed to show the house and allow the sign to remain on the premises) about moving on May 1st. Now in order to get the house vacant on May 1st, must A notify B on February 1st that he wants possession May 1st, or is it implied that B must give up possession when lease expires if nothing is said by either party concerning the renewal? B spoke to an agent about the lease, saying that he would not stay in the house if the owner would give it to him for one-half on the rent he is now paying, but agent is not a party of the lease, as the owner collects her own rent. E says that the owner does not need to say anything and will get possession. G says that the owner must notify B that he must vacate May 1 on February 1. B asked A to put a sink on the second floor for him, and she said she would not. B puts one in at his own expense, and when A goes through the house to look at some repairing, she sees the sink and does not say anything to B about how the sink got there. But the lease says that B must not make any alterations therein without the WRITTEN consent of A, under the penalty of forfeiture and damages. Does this break the lease?

Answer—(1) The landlord is not obliged to notify the tenant that he will require possession of the premises on May 1. In case, however, a sale is made of the premises, it would doubtless save possible friction to tell the tenant that the premises had been sold and that the new owner will want possession on May 1. (2) If the landlord has collected rent since he found out that the sink was put in, he has waived his right to forfeiture, and if a reasonable time has expired since the discovery of the new sink, and no objection has been made to it, the forfeiture is waived. The law does not favor forfeitures.

When a Commission Is Earned.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Some weeks ago we had an occasion to look up a certain piece of property and obtained details from the owner of record. After submitting the property to our client, we learned that in making a tentative offer that the realty company, who were and are owners of record, demanded one-half commission as brokers in the event of the sale. We, of course, do not understand how any company or individuals who are owners of record could claim any part of the broker's commission. The sale in question is now pending on the full commission, which this firm demands. What is our position regarding the adjustment of a sale of this kind.

Answer.—As in the very nature of his business, the broker does not earn his commission until he makes the sale, it is evident that not having yet made the sale, either he or his employer may insist upon different terms; for instance that the commission shall be more or less than the usual commission, which terms, if accepted, would take the place of the usual terms, and entitle the broker to the commissions agreed upon, rather than to the usual commission; but if not accepted, then there is no employment of the broker, and the matter of compensation is still open to be arranged between the employer and the broker before the sale. The broker cannot ignore the terms offered and demand full commission on making sale. If he should go ahead without making new terms he would only in this case be entitled to one-half the commissions.

Restrictions.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

A piece of property was sold under restrictions against certain lines of business, and since these restrictions were placed upon the property the neighborhood has so deteriorated that unquestionably the surroundings do not warrant these restrictions. What steps, if any, can be taken to have such restrictions removed?

Answer.—A very complicated system of consents to abrogate might be undertaken and perhaps successfully carried through, but the general course is to disregard the restrictions.

Colored Tenants.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Will you kindly give your opinion regarding the following: A sells to B an apartment house on which he takes back a second mortgage payable two years from date. B subsequently leases house to C, who vacates premises of white tenants and puts up sign, "To Let for Colored Tenants," without, however, being able to rent same. House has been empty for three months with the exception of janitor, which, of course, does not improve the property. Can A do anything to make his mortgage more secure, provided B pays taxes and interest when due?

Answer.—The renting of the mortgaged premises to colored tenants is no ground for interference by a mortgage holder.

Effect of City College on Surrounding Property.

Amsterdam avenue, between Manhattan valley and 168th st, consists of a multifarious accumulation of tenements, flats and apartments. They consist of both the "walk-up" and the "elevator" type, also a few of the old motley frame landmarks, with scarcely any unimproved property left. On the hill, directly north of Manhattan st, we find a thickly settled district of cold water tenements, with some vacant stores, which may be attributed to the many new buildings, of which there are several block fronts in proximity to 133d and 136th sts. Most of these are about or have already been completed, and owners are offering inducements to newcomers. There are several charitable or public institutions in this vicinity, such as the academy of the Sacred Heart, with its beautiful grounds and buildings, which extend from 130th to 135th sts, bounded on the east by St. Nicholas terrace, and on the west by Convent ave. On the block bounded by Convent and Amsterdam aves, between 134th and 135th sts, is located an aqueduct station, with the remainder of the block enclosed as a park. On the northwest corner of Convent ave and 135th st is the new Orphans' Home and Asylum of the Protestant Episcopal Church. On Amsterdam av from 136th to 138th sts, running through to Broadway, still remains the Old Hebrew Orphan Asylum. A little farther up, on the east side of the same avenue, we are confronted with the unique as well as artistic and massive structures of the College of the City of New York. With its numerous scholars it constitutes a colony in itself. It is said that the adjacent storekeepers hope to get considerable trade from this source, in such commodities as are needed in the daily life of the students, as soon as all the buildings are opened up.

Amsterdam av, from here on, is intermixed with high class as well as common houses. There are some, and no doubt many of the newly constructed buildings nicely finished, but allowed to run down through poor service, or by the landlord or his agent permitting any element whatsoever to tenant the premises with the mercenary object in view of disposing of his holdings or for the purpose of realizing an immediate income on his investment. Above here there is a great deal of vacant land, with the exception of the district near Fort George.

A New Idea for Fireproof Apartment Buildings

Fireproofed throughout with Terra Cotta Hollow Tile under Special Design and Construction of NATIONAL FIRE PROOFING CO.

We will be happy to demonstrate to any architect designing apartment buildings, the value and economy of this method of fireproof construction and to assist in adapting it to plans of other new buildings.

SHOWING METHOD OF FLOOR AND ROOF CONSTRUCTION

STRUCTURAL STEEL was almost totally eliminated in this building. The floors and roof, which are the Johnson System of Hollow Tile, are carried by the walls and the partitions.

The partitions are of 4 in. x 8½ in. x 8 in. Johnson Column Blocks of medium hard tile.

This of course made an extremely economical method of construction, in fact the cost was almost within the figures for a wood structure.

The Chicago Building Department questioned the strength of the tile partitions to carry the necessary loads, and before the plans were O.K.'d by the Building Department we made a special test of a sample partition in the presence of the City Officials, demonstrating the ultimate strength of these partitions to be over 3,000 pounds per square inch, equivalent to 64 tons per lineal foot.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Comptroller Metz has begun to advertise the sale of all buildings which are to be razed to make way for the new Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge.

The Board of Estimate on Friday authorized the purchase of 137 Baxter st and 201, 203 and 205 Hester st, for a school site. The cost is not to exceed $112,001.

The firm of Eckerson & Davis, real estate, 200 Broadway, Manhattan, has been dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. H. O. Curtis Davis will continue the business at the same address.

Charles Steele, of the firm of J. Pierrepont Morgan & Co., is the buyer of the plot, 100x102.2, at the north corner of 5th av and 92d st, sold recently for Perry Belmont. He will erect on the site a handsome residence from plans by C. H. P. Gilbert.

Work is advancing rapidly on the 11-sty building now in course of construction for Oppenheim, Collins & Co., at 33 and 35 West 34th st and 48 to 52 West 35th st. All of the steel framework is practically completed. The facade will be almost entirely of limestone and the structure will cost about $500,000 when completed.

Pease & Elliman have opened their second branch office on the northeast corner of 125th st and Amsterdam av. Mr. W. French Baker, who was formerly one of the staff of the uptown office, Broadway and 82d st, will manage this office. Mr. Baker states that it is their purpose to secure the management of high-class apartment property of that locality.

There is a well-founded report that the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad directors are negotiating for the purchase of water front property on the North River, in the vicinity of 134th and 135th sts. They already own land west of the N. Y. C. & H. R. R. R. tracks, from about 143d to 146th sts. It is said they are planning the removal of their 60th st yards to this location.

The employees of the real estate firm of Pocher & Co. gave their employer, I. J. Pocher, a unique entertainment on Wednesday night, Jan. 23. A theatre party was given at the New Circle Theatre, after which a beefsteak dinner was served in the "Kitchen" at Reisenweber's. Favors were given in the form of cigar-holders representing houses, and on each favor was inscribed the number of some property of special interest to the firm. The entertainment was a testimonial of the esteem in which Mr. Pocher is held by his employees, and it is proposed to make this dinner an annual affair.

The engagement is announced of Miss Katherine Bossert, of Brooklyn, to Mr. Louis Becker, of Manhattan. Miss Bossert is the only daughter of Louis Bossert, Esq., well known in Brooklyn business and social circles. Mr. Becker, who is a prominent real estate broker, is a graduate of the New York University class of 1896 and also a post-graduate of the Columbia University School of Political Science, from which he received the degree of Master of Arts in 1898. He is a member of Company A, 7th Regiment, N. G. N. Y., the Waverly Boat Club, the J. J. McCormick Association, the Washington Heights Tax Payers' Association and the Benevolent Lodge No. 28, F. & A. M. He is also a leading member of the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity, of which Vice-President Charles A. Fairbanks was the National President for many years.

Legislative Digest.

Bills introduced in the Legislature thus far, particularly affecting real estate and building interests, have not been numerous. Some important tax measures, and bills framed with the object of improving transit conditions, are expected.

Hackett—Providing for a recreation pier at 38th st and North River.

Hackett—Establishing public park between 34th and 42d sts, west of 10th av.

Hackett—Compelling New York City railways to issue transfers good on any line, surface, elevated, or subway, and making a refusal punishable by a fine of $500.

Senator Fuller, of Brooklyn, introduced a bill apropriating $175,000 by New York City for the erection of a fireproof museum building for children in Bedford Park, Brooklyn.

Bill known as No. 135, Cohalan, requiring real property adjudged to be sold, to be sold in the borough where it is located, has been introduced in the Assembly.

A searching investigation of traffic conditions in this city is provided for in a resolution introduced by Assemblyman Wagner, of the Twenty-second (New York) District. It is also provided that the committee may investigate the question of fares. Authority is given to enforce the attendance of witnesses and compel the production of books, records and reports of the companies in question, and $40,000 is appropriated to meet the expenses of the investigation. Similar resolutions introduced last year were killed. It is said in this connection that the information sought in the Wagner resolution will be presented in some form this winter, whether by a committee investigation or not. When the bill providing for a local railroad commission is before the Legislature it is expected that the congestion of traffic and the question of fares will be thoroughly set forth at the committee hearing.

Senator Owens has introduced an act to amend the tax law in relation to the taxation of mortgages of real property recorded prior to July 1, 1906, by adding to Article Fourteen a new section to be known as Section Three Hundred and Two, and to read as follows:

"Any mortgage of real property situated within the State recorded prior to the first day of July, nineteen hundred and six, may be again recorded, and upon such second recording the principal debt or obligation which is, or under any contingency shall be, secured thereby, shall become subject to the tax imposed by section two hundred and ninety-three of this article, and shall have the privilege of all the exemptions from taxation given by section two hundred and ninety-one of this article as limited by section two hundred and ninety-two thereof, and all the provisions of this article in reference to mortgages recorded on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred and six, and the taxes thereon, and upon the principal thereof, shall be applicable to mortgages recorded pursuant to the provisions of this section."

Meeting at Mr. Henry Morgenthau's Office.

At a meeting held at the office of the Henry Morgenthau Company, 32 Nassau st, Friday afternoon to discuss the proposed closing of 218th, 219th and 220th streets, including 9th avenue, within the boundaries of the latter named streets, the following named property owners were present to express their views on the subject: Henry Morgenthau, R. E. Simon, Daniel F. Mahoney, Emanuel Alexander, Minturn P. Collins, Richard Alexander and J. N. Butterly.

W. B. Isham, who owns 40 acres in the section, said he was utterly opposed to any concessions being yielded to the company. Mr. E. P. Bryan, chief engineer of the Interborough Co., said that if the owners would concede the closing of 218th, 219th and 220th streets, the Rapid Transit officials might withdraw their request to close 9th av, otherwise they would erect any class of structure upon the land they now own, at the least expense; but if consent was given, they would agree to build a plant to cost forty thousand dollars, more than they otherwise would. Mr. H. H. Vreeland and Alfred Skitt were also in attendance.

Robert E. Dowling, Purchaser of Hotel Empire.

Robert E. Dowling, president of the City Investing Company, was the purchaser of the Hotel Empire, the sale of which was announced in the Record and Guide last week. The building is situated at the intersection of Broadway, 63d st and Columbus av, covering a plot of 116.2 ft. on Broadway, 128.2 in 63d st and 100.5 on Columbus av. This hotel was built so far in advance of the time that it failed to prove a good paying investment and was sold in foreclosure proceedings on July 20, 1904, to satisfy a mortgage held by the Dime Savings Institution of Brooklyn, being bought in by the plaintiff at public auction. The amount of the mortgage was $450,000. The property was appraised for $900,000, which was deemed fictitious. The amount claimed by the institution was $501,340.84 and with taxes $546,301.16. The amount realized on the sale was $420,000, leaving a deficiency judgment of $126,000. The late William Noble, builder and operator, sold the site to Thomas H. Brush, who was named defendant in the proceedings, owing to the fact that his name was on the bond. Mr. Noble failed in 1899 for $1,000,000, never regaining his loss. The property was then bought by former Senator William Cauldwell in 1895 for $900,000, giving an old building at 3 Park Row in part payment for the same. In 1903 the hotel came into possession of the Rogers estate by Mr. Cauldwell turning it over as collateral security.

CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a. G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed considertion, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyence, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers, that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only, the the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.

YOUR SYSTEM OF RECORDS?

BETTER USE OURS

It costs a dollar a mile to go to Chicago in a Special Train, but only a few cents a mile on the Empire State Express.

The same is true of the RECORD AND GUIDE QUARTERLY. Each subscriber receives for Twenty Dollars a year a service that would cost him thousands of dollars.

A system of records is as necessary to a real estate broker as the "ticker" to a stock broker. Conceivably a man might get along without either, but he would suffer immensely both in person and estate.

By means of the RECORD AND GUIDE QUARTERLY, which occupies only a few square inches on a shelf or a desk, the real estate man is put in possession of a system of records in which he could find any particular transaction, be it conveyance, mortgage, auction sale or lease, as easily as he can find the name of one of his clients in the telephone book. It is permanent in form, ever ready and available. It does not go "out" like the office boy, or make mistakes like the stenographer.

The annual number of the RECORD AND GUIDE QUARTERLY contains ALL the legal records for the past year concerning real estate and projected buildings, arranged alphabetically and numerically, with invaluable annotations.

These are supplemented by tables of important transactions, with typical prices, covering the past quarter of a century or more, accompanied by expert comments.

TO say that Wall Street has been in a state of gloom this week fails to describe the despair and blackness of that precinct. People have looked at each other aghast as prices crumbled away undeterred by bullish facts mountains high. Of course there will be a violent upturn some day. Holders of securities will not indefinitely continue to allow a state of mind to take the place of their reasoning powers for they must know that all securities are selling very much below their value. Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York, has been talking about these anomalous conditions in Wall Street to the Paris correspondent of a New York paper. The banker thinks that our prosperity is too great and that we are suffering from an excess of prosperity, which is simply overwhelming us. He says "our industries cannot find labor with which to master the orders pouring in upon them; our railroads are in need of equipment and additional facilities to handle the immense business of the country and the banks can only furnish part of the working capital with which to do the unprecedented commerce which has developed." He further points out that the great corporations find themselves in need of large amounts of capital to provide the facilities which the business of the country demands, consequently a scramble for corporate funds has arisen, which to some extent is frightening money lenders probably to a greater degree in Europe than at home. Mr. Schiff summarizes the situation by asserting that it is neither unhealthy nor serious and that public opinion, the great corrector in the United States of all evil, has already asserted itself and is having its proper effect upon all corporate management. Yet the result of the fear referred to may tend, after a while, to diminish the demand for material and labor and a falling off in business will follow. When this occurs, even to a moderate extent, money is certain to become superabundant and investors will again compete one with another for the replacement of their funds. It will not be amiss for operators to take the remarkable utterances of Mr. Schiff to heart. All revulsion in trade and real estate naturally begins at the apex of conditions. We already see that improved real estate values represented by certificates of stock dealt in on the New York Stock Exchange have been almost cut in two in market value by plethoric prosperity and might not the same thing happen to values dealt in outside of the Exchange.

WITH all the dulness that has marked the week in real estate, we find brokers busy with negotiations and contending with a market in which buyers are plentiful, but bargains few. Sales have been fewer in number than usual, and none of first importance. Perhaps the transaction of most significance was the sale at the Vesey st auction room of the northwest corner of 6th av and 27th st at a figure so large as to indicate a remarkable recent enhancement of values in that part of the avenue lying between 23d and 34th sts. Reasons will array themselves together in anyone's judgment to vindicate this new quotation, and to force the prediction that this sale may be the beginning of a movement of extreme importance within that area. It would be strange indeed if the tunnel line to the Jersey shore now under construction through this thoroughfare to a terminal at 33d st should leave the several blocks intervening between the two great retail shopping centers of the city in their present mediocre estate. Rather is it now to be expected that the 6th av shopping district will be eventually extended to that other center of trade which, beginning at Broadway, is extending through 34th st to 5th av and thence northward. As matters are at present brokers and builders might with advantage to themselves once more make a comprehensive study of Manhattan conditions. There are various districts, some quite new, which have claims to consideration. For instance, the Lower West Side, and now the Middle West Side, as well as the 5th av section. Which of all the business sections that might be named in this catalogue offer the best opportunities, and what are those opportunities? What forms are the demands of Progress likely to assume, and to what extent is the future of this or that quarter of the borough involved in the tangled problem of traction? So far as the lower half of Manhattan is interested, it is time to banish fears of any further reaction from present conditions, though for other boroughs there may have existed "abnormal" conditions. To-day as yesterday and the times before a long series of facts and circumstances guarantee the permanence of Manhattan values. But speaking for the city as a whole, the public at the present time may be considered as out of the market. There are plenty desirous of buying, but their conditions and limitations cannot be met. Brokers' books are filled with the names of inquirers, but are bare of real bargains. Mortgage money is still an obstacle, but as such seems to be gradually dissolving. Signs are multiplying that New Jersey real estate will be the subject of much attention from Manhattan speculators very soon, and a number of downtown brokers have recently bought in there.

THERE should most assuredly be passed at the current session of the Legislature a bill permitting the owners of mortgages recorded prior to July 1st, 1906, to take advantage of the mortgage recording tax. At the present time this cannot be done except by means of a wholly new mortgage with all its attendant expenses; and the effect of this limitation is to discriminate in favor of some mortgagors and mortgagees and against others. In certain cases, that is, the attendant expenses would, owing to favorable conditions, be small, and benefit can be taken of the exemption from the property tax which follows upon the payment of the recording tax. In other cases, owing to accidental conditions, they would be large and the liability continued. There is no reason for such a discrimination. The passage of the recording tax bill was an admission that the property tax as applied to mortgages was an unjust tax; and the injustice should not be allowed to press any more heavily upon the owners of existing mortgages than it does upon future lenders of money on real estate. Any loss in revenue, which the towns and cities might suffer therefrom, would be more than made up by the increased returns from the recording tax. That tax is accomplishing all the results claimed for it by its advocates. It has proved to be an effective producer of revenue, and while, owing to an extreme scarcity of loanable capital there has been no reduction of interest charges as yet; such a reduction is bound eventually to come. The last vestige of the old unjust property tax on mortgages should be swept away; and all holders of this class of security placed on the same footing before the tax laws of the State.

IT is evident that Fifth Avenue, south of Fourteenth Street, and the adjacent side streets, will bear watching in the near future. Hitherto that part of Fifth Avenue has escaped for the most part the business invasion which has transformed the avenue between Fourteenth and Forty-eighth Streets. It has retained on the whole its quiet, pleasant residential character, and the only improvements in the vicinity have been apartment houses and hotels. But recently there have been purchases both on the avenue and in the side streets, which apparently have been determined by a purpose to erect business buildings; and it remains to be seen whether this neighborhood can maintain its existing residential character. The Record and Guide sincerely hopes that its existing character can be maintained, because the few blocks to the north of Washington Square retain more of the flavor of old New York than any other part of Manhattan. Such neighborhoods add immensely to the general interest and the pleasant appearance of the city; and it is convenient also to many people to have such a residential neighborhood perserved in the heart of Manhattan. But it is a question whether such preservation is possible. Fifth Avenue south of Fourteenth Street has not shared in the advancing prices of the avenue to the north. Real estate continues to be cheap, compared to other parts of the avenue; and now that so little vacant space remains north of Fourteenth Street, it may well be that the streets between Fourteenth Street and Washington Square will become more valuable for loft-buildings than for residences and apartment houses. If so, the old residences will have to go.

The New Hoffman and the Albemarle.

OWNER NOW HAS NO INTENTION OF RENOVATING THE PRESENT ALBEMARLE BUILDING.

New York, Jan. 30, 1907.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide.

On pages 150-151 of the Jan. 26 issue of the Record and Guide appears an article entitled "The New Hoffman House." Accompanying this article is a half-page picture of a building represented as the "New Hoffman House—Broadway and 24th st view," with the names "Thompson-Starrett Co., Builder; Francis S. Kinney, Owner; Rudolph L. Daus, Architect," printed below the representation. The article recites that this building is to be erected by me in connection with the Hoffman House; that the scheme first is to erect an L-shaped building with a frontage on Broadway and also on 24th st; that later, when possession shall have been secured of the corner plot lying in the angle of the L, the building now on this corner plot "will be demolished and the entire plot will be replaced with this handsome edifice." Details as to material and construction are then given, and the Thompson-Starrett Co. is named as the general contractor and R. L. Daus as the architect.

Barring the fact that I am actually engaged in having erected, through the Thompson-Starrett Co. as contractor and Mr. Daus as architect, an L-shaped building with a frontage of 50 ft. (No. 1113 Broadway) and about 48 ft. (Nos. 1 and 3 West 24th st) in connection with the Hoffman House, the statements in the article, and the representation in the picture are entirely incorrect, and the matter was furnished to the Record and Guide without my authority or knowledge. The real facts are as follows: The corner plot lying in the angle of the L building is now occupied by the Albemarle Hotel, also owned by me. I have formed no intention to destroy the present Albemarle building or to extend the Hoffman House over the Albemarle premises. Several years ago the idea of putting up a building on the entire property was tentatively considered, but abandoned, and the L structure is the only structure contemplated.

As the article was prominently printed in your paper and is injurious to me, as owner of the Albemarle Hotel, I request you to give this letter an equally prominent place.

Very truly yours,

135 Broadway. FRANCIS S. KINNEY.

[The Albemarle Hotel building became tenantless this week, in consequence of dispossess proceedings for non-payment of rent. Mr. O. B. Libbey, the late lessee of the Albemarle, has made a statement of the case to the general press, in which he says:

"I have been the tenant of the Albemarle for over 11 years. Last June my landlord, Mr. Kinney, bought the old Hoffman House property and began to tear it down on the north and west sides of the Albemarle. The work was carried on night and day, and eventually the guests here began to complain and then to move out.

"Of course there could be but one result. With such a falling off of business I obviously couldn't pay the rent, and so on Oct. 1 my counsel advised me not to pay any more until the danger and nuisance were removed. My landlord, Mr. Kinney, was fully indemnified against any possible loss that he might suffer by the large indemnity bond given by the Thompson-Starrett Co., which is doing the construction work on the Hoffman House, but of course I have no protection save through long and expensive litigation.

"I hate to have to discommode my patrons by taking the stand that I have, but there was no other way out of it. I tried to make an arrangement with my landlord to keep the house open to the end of this season, but was unable to do so, and then the court did not accept my reason for the non-payment of rent."]

The Prussian Income Tax.

The Prussian income-tax returns for 1906 show the largest increase registered in any of the past thirteen years. These returns, covering all incomes of £45 ($218) and more, indicate a gain of £35,250,000 ($170,449,100) in the pepole's incomes for 1905 over 1904. Since the income-tax law was introduced, fourteen years ago, the number of persons taxed has risen from 2,440,000 to 4,680,000, and their aggregate income from £298,000,000 ($1,445,300,000) to £536,000,000 ($2,608,444,000).

Mr. Payton's Defence.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

The recent reports in the press have caused me some annoyance because of the entire misrepresentation as to my connection with and the facts and circumstances surrounding the formation of the Afro-American Realty Company and its subsequent operations.

It is true that I am president of the Afro-American Realty Company, and have been its general manager since its organization, and that an action has been brought by Charles B. Crowder, representing less than five per cent. of the stockholders of the company, alleging that extravagant statements in the prospectus induced them to purchase their stock. This action was instituted at the behest of Wilford H. Smith, who was the sole legal adviser of the company from its incorporation until a few months past, when he severed his connection with the company, after failing in an effort to secure for himself and his friends control. Shortly after this he began the action referred to.

Mr. Smith took an active part in the prospectus complained of, took part in, was interested in, and advised every transaction which, as the attorney for Crowder, he now criticises. The purpose of the action seems only to be to harass and discredit me if possible. This is made clear by the resort to an order of arrest in an equity action, which is most unusual and, as I am advised, is not sanctioned in legal practice.

Beyond causing some personal annoyance, the only effect of this action has been to draw my friends and business associates more closely to me. Had these few people who have yielded to the importunities of a disgruntled stockholder and former director come to me and stated their grievances, I should, I feel sure, been able to convince them that their investment was sound and profitable, or I would have purchased their stock at cost and interest. They not having done so, I am given no chance but to meet them with their own weapons and fight the matter out in the courts.

That the Afro-American Realty Company is not a detriment to the investor is proved by its printed annual statement, prepared by a certified public accountant, showing a net earning of over 15 per cent. on its entire outstanding capital stock for the past year, a copy of which statement I am sending herewith.

The policy of the company is toward conservatism, and the officers have served thus far without compensation or remuneration. The Afro-American Realty Company continues business and will continue so to do, all efforts to injure it notwithstanding. This statement is made that the public may be advised as to the true facts. Very truly yours,

PHILIP A. PAYTON, JR.

Committee to Revise the Building Code.

The chairman of the Committee on Buildings of the Board of Aldermen made public announcement on Saturday last of the names of the ten experts appointed to aid the Committee on Buildings to revise the Building Code, as authorized by the resolution passed in March last. The committee of experts is as follows. Two architects—Charles H. Israels and Electus D. Litchfield; one structural engineer—Rudolph P. Miller; one sanitary engineer—Charles O. Brown; one engineer recommended by the Board of Fire Underwriters—Charles G. Smith; two master builders—Theodore Starrett and George Vassar, Jr.; two mechanics skilled in building trades—Thomas F. Cosgrove and George Harsch, and one lawyer—William Blau. The members of the committee were called together on Monday last, and they organized by electing Mr. Israels as chairman and appointing a stenographer and a messenger.

While none of the members of the expert committee ever served on any previous commission or committee of revision, yet the committee contains much good timber to do the work of revision in a creditable manner; indeed, it contains an exceptional amount of ability, notwithstanding the scramble there has been for these places and all the circumstances surrounding the appointment of the committee. The two architects are men of standing and recognized ability in their professions, and well able to judge of what is right or wrong in a building code. Mr. Miller was for several years the chief examiner of plans in the Bureau of Buildings in the Borough of Manhattan, and is thoroughly versed in the building code. Mr. Brown, who is appointed as a sanitary engineer, is not known as such, but is recognized as an able mechanical engineer and has had much experience both as a consulting engineer and manufacturer of iron work for buildings. Mr. Starrett and Mr. Vassar are well known as master builders, and are fully competent to decide wisely and well any and every proposed alteration to the code. Mr. Smith, who is selected from the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, is the secretary of the German-American Fire Insurance Co. He is a member of the Board of Examiners (of building plans), and as such has had good opportunities to familiarize himself with the building code. He is the chairman of buildings of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and in this latter position, aided by the best talent at his command, prepared the Model Building Code issued by the National Board a year or more ago, and which code is the New York Building Code revised and brought up to date, and also containing much new matter not previously covered by the New York Code or the building code of any other city. This Underwriters' Code embodies all the work required to be done in a revision of the New York Building Code. Mr. Smith has given many months of time to the preparation of a model code. The lawyer can do but little; he is not likely to want any part in amending the technical sections of the code, and anything he proposes to do to the legal sections can only be done after receiving the sanction of the Corporation Counsel. Whatever is prepared by the committee has to run the risk of the Mayor's veto.

This expert committee is on a different footing from the commission appointed in 1899 to prepare and report to the Municipal Assembly a building code. This expert committee of ten is an advisory committee to the committee on buildings, and to report to the latter. The committee on buildings can do what it will with the expert committee's report—take as much or as little as may be pleasing, or amend it or kill it entirely. The committee is not an independent body reporting directly to the Board of Aldermen, and on whom responsibility can be directly placed.

After a delay of a whole year, no sooner had the names of the experts been announced than a cloud appeared on the political horizon of the Board of Aldermen, and rapidly assumed such proportions that in the storm to be precipitated next Tuesday in the Board of Aldermen the expert committee will not only be eliminated but the committee on buildings will be entirely reorganized. If there is to be a revision of the building code it will have to start anew, and be done by others than the expert committee just named. In the Board of Aldermen neither the Democrats or Republicans are in a majority; the Municipal Ownership (Hearst) Aldermen hold the balance of power. The Republicans and the M. O. men early united their forces, thereby making a majority of two, and organized the present board, taking all chairmanships of committees to themselves, and treated the Democratic minority with scant representation on committees. This condition of affairs continued until quite recently, when the M. O. men went over in a body to the Democrats, completely changing the political control of the board. When the committee on buildings finally dealt out its patronage—the expert committee appointments—the M. O. Aldermen received none of it, nor did the Democrats receive any of it. The Republicans kept it all, although when the resolution for the code revision passed the Board of Aldermen it was by a unanimous vote of all the members, irrespective of politics. Besides the mistake of naming Republicans only on the expert committee, another political blunder was made in selecting nearly the entire committee from one borough instead of distributing the appointments through the five boroughs, as is the usual practice.

The committee on buildings was authorized by the resolution "to engage the services" of ten experts. It probably was not necessary that the committee should report to the Board of Aldermen the names of the experts selected, and ask for approval of the same, but the leader of the present majority in the board says it was discourteous of the chairman to give to the press the list before making a report to the board. A report has been ordered to be made at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Tuesday next, and then there seems to be a settled plan to reject the report. The leader of the majority has declared there will be no money appropriated in any event for services of the expert committee. If the expert committee went on with the work as a labor of love and completed it, the finality would be a rejection of its revision by the Board of Aldermen. The end has been reached at the very beginning, and the words of the mortuary poet, slightly changed to fit this case, applies:

"If it were so soon to be done for,
What was it begun for?"

Mass Meeting to Protest Against Transit Conditions.

Mr. J. Clarence Davies is planning to have the Bronx and Manhattan boards of brokers to arrange for a public mass meeting to protest against the conditions existing in transit arrangements and to ask the cooperation of all citizens to obtain remedial legislation, better service from the present operating companies and expedite the introduction and construction of new roads. Complaints are coming in from all districts.

Mr. Davies lays stress on the poor transportation facilities accorded to the people of the Borough of the Bronx, and calls attention to the unused tracks which have encumbered parts of 149th st, also St. Ann's av. Something should be done, he thinks, to agitate this improvement, as there is no competition in railroad circles, the Interborough simply waiting to suit its own convenience. Regarding the subway system, pleasure-seekers boarding trains in the evening at Prospect av for places of amusement are compelled to stand up in the cars all the way downtown. Conditions at 149th st and 3d av have particularly aroused the indignation of Borough President Haffen, who with members of the Board of Estimate has made a personal inspection of these congested transfer stations at rush hours.

It is estimated that 37,000 transfers are daily given out at this point, where passengers change from elevated to subway. It was stated that Comptroller Metz, President McGowan and Borough Presidents Ahearn, Coler, Bermel and Cromwell agreed that the situation was simply incredible and must be remedied at once.

Public Real Estate Records.

SYSTEM OF RECORDING DOCUMENTS IN OTHER LANDS.

By Edwin P. Clark.

IT IS of considerable importance to the real estate man to be able to estimate to some extent the value of the evidences of ownership which may be offered by those persons who seek to deal with land as owners; to verify their statements, when necessary, from the proper sources; and, if no such evidences are presented, to be able to ascertain where reliable information bearing on this point of ownership can be obtained.

The indications of ownership may be divided into two classes: First, possession, or occupancy of land; second, documentary or "paper" title.

Possession may consist of actual occupation of a house, which carries with it possession of the land commonly understood to belong to the house, any real use of the land for farming or other purposes, or mere enclosure by a fence which separates the parcel of land from other lands; it is evidence of a perfectly good title as against every person who cannot produce satisfactory legal evidence of a better one, and can only be overcome by an actual suit at law for ejectment, in which the better legal title must be proven. Possession has been recognized as a source of title from the times of the Roman law, and, under some circumstances, may develop, with the lapse of time, into the best kind of a title, even as opposed to that of a person having a better documentary right, particularly where the original entry into possession was made under some kind of a claim adverse to this other originally better title. Consequently, nobody can deal safely with real estate without giving attention to the claims of the persons in actual possession of the property, and ascertaining what their rights are; whether they claim to be the real owners or recognize somebody else as owner, in which case this other person must be disclosed and identified, for the possession of one claiming to hold as the tenant of another is, technically, also the possession of this other person. Failure to follow up the indication of ownership given by possession will be at your peril.

Documentary or "paper" title, which constitutes the legal evidence of ownership of real estate, carrying with it the right to possession, may be divided into two sub-classes: (a) The actual legal documents themselves. (b) The Public Records of the documents. We are to deal with the latter branch of the subject this evening,* but some brief attention can be given to the first with profit, and not without interest, I hope.

The common legal document giving evidence of ownership of land is a deed. A deed is a written or partly printed paper which states that on a certain date a piece of land was sold by one person to another for a certain consideration. It should also state what kind of interest or title or power of use is given by the seller to the purchaser. Some deeds contain much more than this, such as certain statements as to ownership, claims of others against the land sold, and willingness to protect the purchaser against defects in the seller's title, or attacks upon it by third parties; furthermore, many deeds at the present time contain clauses restricting the use of the property in various ways. All deeds must conform to certain legal requirements in order to be effective, and they must be delivered, that is to say, they must be understood to be handed by the seller to the purchaser in consummation of the sale of the land. All other documents, of a voluntary nature, dealing with the ownership of land may be considered as modified deeds, curtailed, amplified or altered for various special purposes. For instance, a mortgage is a temporary deed granting a piece of land as security for the loan of a sum of money, with the proviso that when the money is repaid the grant shall become void. An assignment of a mortgage is a deed of the mortgage. A lease is a deed of the right to use and occupy land for a limited time only, the ultimate ownership still remaining in the original owner. And all the various forms of agreements and releases giving special rights, such as party wall privileges, rights of way and easement, or releasing from the claims of mortgages, judgments, or dower, etc., are nothing but special forms of deeds.

The use of deeds is very ancient. Many have been found in the libraries and temple record rooms of Assyria and Babylonia which have been excavated in recent years. These are written on baked clay tablets, many being enclosed in envelopes of the same material, and are from three to four thousand years old. They contain the same essential elements of our present day deeds—date, parties, consideration and description of the land. Many deeds written on papyrus have been discovered in the course of the excavation of the tombs in Egypt which has been going on for some years. I have in my possession a facsimile copy of such a deed written in the Greek language, dated about two thousand years ago, conveying a piece of land in the ancient city of Thebes, described as bounded "on the south by the Royal st, on the north and east by the land of Pamonthes and Bokon of Hermis his brother, and the common land of the city, on the west by the house of Tephis, the son of Chalomn." The description of the parties is much more definite and exact than we are in the habit of using to-day, and is quite curious and interesting. One of the grantors, a woman, is described as "aged about 22 years, of middle size, yellow complexion, round-faced, flat-nosed and of quiet demeanor," and the grantee was "Nechutes the Less, the son of Asos, aged about 40 years, of middle stature, yellow complexion, cheerful countenance, long face and straight nose, with a scar upon the middle of his forehead."

This deed has a marginal certificate showing that the sale was registered in a public office on the payment of the duty or tax, but there is no indication that among the Egyptians or the other ancient oriental peoples who used deeds there was any system of public records maintained for the purpose which is the object of modern systems, namely, notoriety of the transfer and consequently of the ownership.

This custom of making the transfer of the ownership of land, and, consequently, the name and person of the owner, a matter of public notoriety was in use among the citizens of Rome in early times. In the ages when very few could read or write a written document or record would not have served the purpose very well, but it was accomplished by means of a public ceremony, known as "mancipation," which was in realty an acted living dramatic deed.

It required the presence of the seller and purchaser and not less than five witnesses, full-grown Roman citizens, who were to be the vouchers to the census officers for the regularity of the procedure, and who, thus representing the people, fortified the conveyance with a public sanction. There was also present a semi-official personage called the Libripens, who brought with him a pair of scales to weigh the uncoined copper money of ancient Rome. Then the purchaser, holding a piece of copper, or in later years a single coin, said: "I say that this property (naming it by its designation on the valuation roll) is mine in Quiritian right, and that by purchase (for such and such a price) with these scales and this bit of copper." Then he struck the scales with the piece of copper, or the coin, and handed it to the seller, as "the first pound and the last" and thus representative of the whole; and the seller, by accepting it, parted with his ownership, which thus became vested in the purchaser. In earlier years the copper seems to have been weighed in the scales on the spot; in later times the money was provided, counted and paid over either before or after the ceremony.

There was also another notoriously public ceremonial conveyance in use among the Romans known as cessio in jure, in which the parties appeared before a public magistrate, the purchaser stating that the property was his, using a form of words very similar to that used in mancipation, whereupon if the seller interposed no denial or objection, the magistrate decreed that the property belonged to the purchaser.

The later Romans also established the germ of our present systems of public real estate records in the form of an institution known as "insinuatio." This consisted in the reading of the document before any public authority having the right of authenticating deeds. This authority kept a complete copy of the instrument in his books, and the name of insinuatio finds its etymology, as well as its meaning in this duty of copying the deed. Insinuatio was made obligatory by the Emperor Constantius Chlorus, and his son, the famous Constantine, enforced the obligation by additional rules. It is thought, however, by students of the Roman law, that the main object of this institution was not so much to make the transfer and ownership a matter of public notoriety as it was to prevent deeds of donation, as they were called, which were conveyances of property, without any consideration, in certain illegal directions; for the power of disposal among the Romans was considerably restricted by law, and a man had not the absolutely free power of alienation which is common among us to-day. This view is substantiated by the fact that insinuatio was somewhat restrained by later legislation, but its merits and uses were such that it survived, under certain conditions, and within rather narrow applications, throughout medieval centuries and up to the time of the French Revolution. It was embodied, with a new meaning, in the Code Napoleon, which is the foundation of the legal systems of France, Belgium and part of Germany at the present time.

During the prevalence of the feudal system in Europe, when property in land carried with it political significance and power, and the ownership was divided up into sections, and distributed among graded ranks of individuals, there was very little dealing with real estate and no real estate market to speak of, so that the general public had no interest in knowing for a certainty who were the actual owners of the land, and, while there was a semi-public ceremonial institution of title known as livery of seizin, there was, nevertheless, no purpose in, or attempt at, making these facts generally known.

The land became entailed and encumbered and practically tied up by intricate private family arrangements of no interest to the general public, the documents giving evidence of these facts being kept secret, and there was no way of learning the facts which they contained without actually inspecting them. This situation exists to-day throughout a large part of England, where public systems of real estate records exist in only two counties, although the spread of the commercial spirit, in antagonism to that of ancient feudalism, is bringing land more and more into the market and consequently demanding an extension of some kind of public record system to new localities, and it is generally being so extended.

Our system of title by the public record, while distinctively an American system, is not new with us, nor used by us alone. We will glance for a moment at some of the systems in use elsewhere before describing our own.

In England, as already mentioned, the system has been, pretty generally, no public record at all—except as to what are known as copyhold lands, something unknown in this country. The investigation of the ownership of land is confined to an inspection of the papers in the possession of the owner, which are delivered to the purchaser or deposited with the mortgagee whenever there is any dealing with the land. In the counties of Middlesex and York there has existed a system of recording deeds and mortgages somewhat similar to our own for about two centuries. There are, however, defects in the system, notably as to the Yorkshire acts, in that the record of an instrument does not constitute such a notice as to give it priority over unrecorded papers in all cases, and also in that permission is given to record an abbreviated memorandum of an instrument instead of the whole document, thus concealing parts of it from public attention. The fact that the system has not extended to other countries indicates that it does not meet with public approval, and there are some expressions of opinion to the effect that it is a hindrance rather than a help.

In Scotland there has been a recording system for about three centuries, which of late years has been accompanied by a very valuable method of indexing the recorded documents relating to each property on a special "search sheet" for that property, every estate or parcel of land being provided with one, and thus rendering it possible, by procuring a certified copy of this search sheet, to ascertain what has been done with the land in former years.

The French method has, for a long time, permitted the recording of certain classes of documents only—mortgages and donations, transfers of property without consideration. Since 1855 it has been permissible to record all classes of deeds, and the public real estate records are maintained on systems quite similar to our own.

In some countries of Europe, for instance Holland and Belgium, the system of recording documents is supplemented by the custom of having all papers drawn up by notaries, and signed by the parties before the notary, who keeps the originals in his office. The notary furnishes the parties with copies, and the duty of sending copies to the proper offices for record is also imposed upon him.

The systems prevailing in Germany and Austria-Hungary are radically different from those in use in the countries already mentioned. The Germans and Austrians use the method of public records known as registration of title, and in some parts of their territories it has been in use for a great many years. This contemplates a complete register of all ownerships and claims arranged on a system referring to the individual pieces of land, which arrangement is founded on a very complete and accurate survey of the whole country. It has been made compulsory wherever it has been established. Changes of ownership and the validation of claims can then be effected only by personal application of the parties at the public registry office, and their compliance with the formal regulations prescribed by law.

Registration of title is also in use in many of the British colonies, such as Canada, and notably Australia, where it was established by Sir Robert Torrens, without, however, the very valuable German adjunct of the official cadastrae survey. It has also been introduced in England and some of the States in this country. It will be explained to you more fully hereafter, I understand, in one of the later lectures of this course, so I need say nothing further regarding it, except to remark that there are some objections to its use among us which are not applicable to these other countries where it is in operation and which consequently render fallacious any arguments urging its introduction in this State, founded on its success elsewhere.

Changing Values in the Pennsylvania Terminal Section.

I BELIEVE it can be safely said that no large or important improvement has ever been made that has had a greater and more beneficial effect upon real estate than the location of the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal in the heart of New York City. For a time longer than the memory of the oldest inhabitant the property acquired by the railroad and that in the immediate vicinity has been what might be called "dead." The land, covered largely by very old buildings, many of them partially occupied and others rented to undesirable tenants, had presented no attraction to the investor or the speculator.

FRANK D. AMES.

This section, which for four years has been the field of the largest speculation known in the history of real estate, where enormous profits have been made by buyer after buyer, was during my knowledge of it for over twenty years probably less active than any other section of the city. Many owners who were local tradesmen and who struggled to pay interest and taxes out of a meagre and uncertain income from their houses were suddenly, almost in a day, enriched beyond any dream by the enormous increase in the value of their land. This was particularly so of the property immediately adjacent to the land upon which the station is to be built, and also on the avenues and in Thirty-fourth street, where the hundreds of thousands of people will pass in going to and from the station.

Property which was not salable at over $20,000 five years ago sold for $50,000 the same week that the railroad plans were made public, and has since sold for $75,000 and is now held by the present owner at $100,000. A piece of property in Thirty-fourth street extensively offered at $55,000 five years ago recently sold for $150,000 after having passed through several hands, netting each owner a handsome profit. A Seventh avenue corner recently selling for $110 per square foot could not have been valued at over $15 a square foot six years ago. These are but few instances of the effect upon values of the location of the Pennsylvania terminal. The records of my office show a very large number personally negotiated. In fact, it is simply the history of every piece of property to a greater or less degree.

Conservative investors and mortgage lenders refused for a considerable time to accept the new basis of values, but when it was evident that they were not fictitious and that no slump followed the first excitement and prices continued to maintain a higher level they followed the lead of the speculator who had the nerve and daring to first risk his money in what appeared to be a spectacular market.

It has been said that real estate is worth what it will sell for. This seems self-evident, but is not exactly true. It is well known that the value of real estate is based upon its income producing ability when suitably improved. Considering this, it is unquestionably true that the present values have somewhat discounted the immediate future, but not incorrectly, in my opinion, although it is impossible to realize at this time the exact effect that the outpouring of an estimated number of 110,000,000 of people per annum will have upon different streets and avenues in the vicinity. It does mean the establishment of new enterprises, new department stores and mercantile buildings and a great centering of trade within a comparatively small radius, resulting in congestion, which makes values.

THE REALM OF BUILDING

Ravitch Brothers to Leave Manhattan.

The firm of Ravitch Bros., engineers and contractors for steel and ironwork, of 81 to 89 Mangin st, have again found themselves compelled to increase their already large facilities. Although they now have two plants in operation—a structural one at Madison av, 136th st and the Harlem River, and an ornamental and finishing shop at 81 to 89 Mangin st—they have found both inadequate to handle the greatly increased business.

To overcome this condition, and to combine the two plants, a plot of several acres of water front has been purchased at Ravenswood, Long Island City, opposite East 70th st, Manhattan, where the work of grading the site and constructing the new buildings is well under way. The new plant is situated at the northwest corner of Vernon and Pierce avs, extending to the East River, which has been deepened across the front of the property, in order that the largest lighter can tie up to the new bulkhead and deliver or receive the heaviest girders, columns, etc.

New and modern machinery has been purchased to fabricate the heaviest girders, trusses, etc., as well as smaller structural members, and this will be installed as soon as the buildings are ready to receive them. All material will be handled by electric cranes and travelers—in fact all the machinery will be run by electric power generated on the premises.

When the buildings are completed and the present shops are moved to their new quarters, which will occur about May 1, the general office, engineering and drafting departments will be moved from 81 Mangin st into the new office building at the Vernon av end of the plant, facing directly on the Vernon av electric car line between Long Island City and Astoria, and not more than ten minutes ride from either place. The estimating and contracting departments will remain in Manhattan and will be located in some centrally located office building to be selected later.

New Post Building More Than Three-Fourths Filled.

The new building of the Evening Post, 20, 22, 24 Vesey st, will be ready for occupancy March 1, 1907. It is a modern 13-sty structure, being complete in all the appointments requisite in a strictly high-class office building. Besides being equipped with four plunger elevators, steam heat, electric lights, etc., the building is to contain a pneumatic cleaning apparatus. The ground floor has been rented to the Home Trust Co., of New York, and the first and second floors to the U. S. Title Guaranty & Indemnity Co. Among others who have engaged space are the Consolidated Rubber Tire Co., Parsons Bros., paper manufacturers, Manual of Statistics Co., Yachting Publishing Co., Burroughs Adding Machine Co., J. F. Jack, real estate, Jas. E. Duross, attorney, Jules P. Storm, the Army and Navy Journal, the Boston Herald and the Coal Trade Journal. Each floor contains about 4,500 sq. ft. and space can be arranged to suit. Particular attention is directed to the fact that as the structure is situate opposite St. Paul's Churchyard, tenants occupying space in the front will be assured of permanent light. Even the offices in the rear are benefited by good light owing to the existence of low buildings in Barclay st. The location is considered central, being convenient to the new Church st terminal of the New Jersey Railroads, the post-office, Fulton st subway station, and the Real Estate Sales Room. Street noises that are so noticeable in some other office building sections have been reduced to a minimum in Vesey st by the paving of the thoroughfare with wooden blocks.

Transformation of Fourth Avenue.

It is learned that several mercantile structures are about to be erected on 4th av, north of 23d st. Apparently the avenue will be improved in this direction earlier than supposed. A building is to be erected on property controlled by a Mr. Schwab, who a year ago leased property for a term of twenty-one years. Mrs. Phillipine Friedeberg, No. 2304 Bassford av, Bronx, is about to erect at Nos. 330-332 4th av an 11-sty mercantile building, 50x88 ft., at a cost of about $150,000. Francis H. Pfluger, 32 Union sq, is the architect. No building contracts have yet been awarded. On the block bounded by 4th av, Lexington av, 32d and 33d sts, the probability has become a certainty that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. will establish a terminal station on the site of the old car stables. It is also stated on apparently very good authority that there is also to be another Belmont hotel erected, in close proximity of these holdings. How far property values will rise in the immediate vicinity of these contemplated improvements remains to be seen. A well-known real estate broker in the neighborhood recently said: "That some great change is about to take place on Murray Hill, there can be no doubt, and I believe that a verification of current rumors will soon be made that will result in a widespread buying movement in this locality."

Elevator Apartment for Morningside Heights.

116TH ST.—Paterno Bros., Incorporated, Riverside Drive and 116th st, inform the Record and Guide that they will begin immediately the erection of another high-class elevator apartment house on the south side of 116th st, 125 ft. west of Broadway. The building will contain 12 stories, and will be similar in plan and design to the other structures they are building on the same side of 116th st, 250 ft. west of Broadway. This site is one of the most attractive in the city for apartments. The exterior of the house will be in light brick and limestone trim, equipped with electric lights, elevators, steam heat, porcelain tubs, shower baths, tile floors and halls. The firm estimate the cost at about $400,000. Messrs. Schwartz & Gross, 35 West 21st st, in all probability will be the architects.

C. T. Wills to Build the Morgan Art Gallery.

Plans are well under way by Architect Benjamin W. Morris, 5 West 31st st, Manhattan, for an art building, which is to be erected for the Athenaeum by J. Pierpont Morgan, as a memorial to his father, at Hartford, Conn. Mr. Morris is also designing plans for the Colt Gallery, which is to be erected at Hartford adjoining the Art building. The estimated cost of the latter is about $50,000, and was left by the late Mrs. Colt. Chas. T. Wills, Inc., 156 5th av, Manhattan, will perform the general contracts on both buildings. Work will not be started for about three months yet.

City Acquires Site for Insane Asylum.

EXTERIOR ST.—The whole block front on Exterior st, between East 73d and 74th sts, facing the East River, has been purchased by the city on which a new insane asylum, large enough for present and future requirements, is to be erected at an early date. The site is immediately south of the large electric power station, also fronting on Exterior st. The property was recently sold by John F. Doyle & Sons, No. 45 William st, to an investor, who now resells to the city at a large advance. So far as can be learned no plans have yet been drawn, or architect selected.

BUILDING NOTES

Oswin W. Shelly, architect, formerly of No. 31 Union sq, moved to No. 156 5th av Feb. 1.

Nathaniel G. Foster, a well-known retired architect of Manhattan died at his home in Cranford, N. J., Jan. 17, of heart disease, aged 74 years.

A report was made to Congress Jan. 15, recommending that another story be added to the New York post-office building, giving about 40,000 sq. ft. additional floor space.

Frank L. Getman, engineer, of Ithaca, N. Y., has been appointed Deputy State Engineer of New York. He will be in charge of the good roads work, and will receive a salary of $4,000 per year.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment on Jan. 25 authorized an appropriation of $3,000,000 for repaving during the year 1907. Brooklyn is to receive $1,000,000; Manhattan, $1,000,000; the Bronx, $350,000; Richmond, $300,000, and Queens, $350,000.

Navigation is closed against all the brick ports on the Hudson, and the visible supply is temporarily limited to what is here in the brick market, leaving out of account the stocks at manufacturing points. Quotations for common, though apparently unchanged, are consequently firmer.

The contract for the mason work on the new 41-sty Singer tower and building now under course of erection at Broadway, northwest corner of Liberty st, will be awarded within the next few days. Builders are watching the progress of this structure with great interest, as it will rise to a height of 612 ft. above the curb line.

Frederick P. Kafka, C. E., has tendered his resignation as manager of the New York office of the Unit Concrete Steel Frame Co., to accept a similar position with the General Fireproofing Co., of Youngstown, Ohio, whose New York office is 156 5th av. Mr. Kafka will have full charge of the reinforced concrete department, and will give special attention to pin-connected girder frames and cold twisted lug bars manufactured exclusively by this company.

Mr. I. W. Horn, formerly of the firm of Lampert & Horn, dealers in second-hand building materials, of East 107th st, has formed a new firm, to be known as Horn, Michel & Co., who have opened a new yard at 316-318 Vernon av, near Bodine st, Long Island City. Their business will consist of three departments, viz.: (1) house-wrecking and second-hand building materials, (2) bluestone and granite for new work only, and (3) new lumber of all grades and dimensions; all at moderate prices.

Arthur E. Silverman, the Harlem builder, called a meeting of fifty creditors at the office of J. Charles Weschler last Tuesday, who stated that the builder's liabilities, outside of mortgages, reach $248,000. He claims $362,500 equities in realty, including the block front of new 6-sty flats on Manhattan av, from 110th to 111th st; Arthur Hall, at Madison av and 96th st, and an adjacent flat house; also a few small parcels. The creditors agreed to take shares in the new Arthur E. Silverman Building Co., which will take over his properties.

Work has not yet been resumed on the six new 6-sty apartment houses on the south side of 135th st, beginning 100 ft. west of Amsterdam av, as litigation is still pending. It is hoped, however, that the premises will soon be offered at public auction, so that the present difficulties will terminate, enabling the new owners to complete the unfinished operations and fill their vacancies. By doing this they will realize a return on their investment, enhance the value of their holdings and be thereby the better enabled to raise a more satisfactory mortgage on the property and a much higher price should they wish to sell their parcels.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Lampert & Horn, dealers in second-hand building materials, foot of East 107th st, by two creditors—John L. English, $8,000, and Standard Audit Company, $65. Alleged insolvent preferential payments, $2,000, and transferred real estate, materials and accounts, $12,000. In business since 1901. Judge Hough appointed Charles D. Chase receiver; bond, $5,000. Liabilities, $50,000; assets, $17,500. Mr. Horn, of the company, informed a representative of the Record and Guide that there were ample assets to pay all liabilities in full and that the proceedings were voluntary on their part.

The Architectural Engineering Co. has established in the Hamilton Bank Building, Nos. 213-217 West 125th st, an estimating and quantity surveying bureau, the merits of which must necessarily claim the approval of architects, builders, contractors and owners, both in New York City and wherever its methods are operated. By means of these methods a reliable list of quantities of each kind of material and workmanship included is obtained by experts in each particular branch, being checked and rechecked before being tabulated. Then a copy of each item or all can be furnished to those requiring the same for estimating or other purposes. To those contractors who have quantities surveyed in their offices, it will prove a very satisfactory and inexpensive check, especially where large amounts are involved. This method of furnishing quantities for estimating purposes has been in vogue in the larger cities of Europe for many years past (known as an estimating and computing bureau). Mr. L. Saussez, who is a graduate of the Ponts-et-Chaussees, and who is well known among the building trade for the past 20 years in this city, is president of the company. They also act as experts in litigation, arbitration and valuation of all classes of construction and property. They also furnish estimates on all kinds of work. In conjunction with this bureau they have a realty and loan department and will finance construction operations, making building and permanent loans. They have a Canadian office at Montreal, Canada.

Legislative Digest.

THE COHALAN BILL.

Senate bill No. 135, introduced by Mr. Cohalan, requiring that property which has been adjudged to be sold shall be so disposed of in the borough where it is situated, is receiving considerable attention. The measure is confessedly in the interests of real estate interests of the Bronx, and while it will nominally apply to all boroughs it is only in Bronx sales that it will cause any change in existing methods, for every other borough is a county in itself and the courts almost invariably order sales of real estate in the county in which it is located.

Mr. J. Clarence Davies says the Bronx has 350,000 people who are interested in realty speculations and investments in at least the same proportion as other communities. They have money to buy with and are in a position to know values and pay accordingly.

On the other hand it is claimed that the bill, should it become a law, would put a heavy ban upon properties in the Bronx disposed of under forced sale. It is conceded that Manhattan offers the best market for real estate. Most of the money with which the Bronx has been developed comes from Manhattan, and nearly all of the bidders on local property are either residents of Manhattan or have their business offices in the lower part of this borough. All of the Manhattan auction sales will of course continue to be held in the auction room designated by the Judges of the Supreme Court.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Mr. Cuvillier has introduced in the Assembly an act to amend Article 6, Section 190, of the real property lawn, known as Chapter 46 of the general laws in relation to landlords and tenants. The section as amended will read as follows, with the new matter in capitals:

"Section 190. THE LANDLORD MAY RECOVER A REASONABLE COMPENSATION FOR THE USE AND OCCUPATION OF REAL PROPERTY, BY ANY PERSON, UNDER AN AGREEMENT NOT MADE BY DEED; AND A PAROL LEASE OR OTHER AGREEMENT MAY BE USED AS EVIDENCE OF THE AMOUNT TO WHICH HE IS ENTITLED. Any tenant who occupies or rents any house, store, dwelling, apartment or apartments or flats in the cities of the first-class of the State of New York, shall be entitled to occupy and keep possession of said house, store, dwelling, apartment, apartments or flats for the period of one year from the beginning of said tenancy or hiring at the same compensation as then agreed upon between the landlord and tenant from the beginning of said renting or occupancy of said house, store, dwelling, apartment or apartments or flats, and it shall be unlawful for the landlord to increase said compensation of said rent or hiring of said house, store, dwelling, apartment, apartments or flats during the term of the year in which said tenant rents or occupies said house, store, dwelling, apartment, apartments or flats. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed."

Once again a bill to authorize the Torrens system of registering titles appears in the Legislature. The advantages of the system are alleged to be "its cheapness, expedition and immunity from fraud. A title is carefully examined once for all and a decree entered confirming the owner's title. The average cost of the initial registration in Illinois is $24, and once registered no further search is needed. An ordinary sale of mortgage cost but $3 usually, and is completed upon the same day on which it is negotiated. All mortgages, liens, judgments and other claims can be entered upon the original certificate. In place of a long search now necessary to be made by a lawyer or title company and the necessity of insuring the title, it is necessary only to examine a single page in a single book, where all one needs to know about a title will appear."

Assemblyman Ezra P. Prentice, representing the Twenty-fifth New York City district, has introduced a bill in the Assembly amending Section 6, Chapter 415, which constitutes Chapter 32 of the general laws pertaining to the hours of labor on brick yards. Ten hours, exclusive of the necessary time for meals, is constituted a legal day's work on brick yards owned or operated by corporations. No corporation owning or operating such brick yards shall require employees to work more than ten hours in any one day, but over work or extra compensation may be performed by an agreement between employer and employee. By the provisions of this amendment the clause in the original law, prohibiting any brick yard from being operated before seven o'clock in the morning, is eliminated.

In the interests of the West End Property Owners' Association, a bill has appeared in the Senate (Saxe) providing for the transfer of jurisdiction over upper Broadway from 59th to Manhattan sts from the Commissioner of Highways to the Commissioner of Parks. For a year or more there have been complaints that the park plots in the center of upper Broadway have been neglected. The bill gives the Park Commissioner "authority to maintain the beauty and utility of such spaces and to plant trees, erect seats and drinking fountains, statues, and works of art," the Board of Estimate being required to make the proper appropriations for the work.

More stations are requested on the elevated in Harlem, and a bill in the Assembly (Francis) compels one at 8th av and 150th st, and another Assembly bill (Reece) requires a new station at 120th st.

Bills embodying the transit reforms advocated by the Governor have not yet appeared, but Senator McCarren has introduced a measure in the upper House providing for the abolition of the Rapid Transit Board and the assignment of its duties to the Board of Estimate, in the hope, no doubt, that then Brooklyn will receive more consideration.

Assemblyman Duell has introduced three bills relating to the investments of banks and trust companies and life insurance corporations. One provides that a trust company may invest its capital in the bonds of individuals or solvent corporations secured as collateral security by bonds and mortgages on unincumbered real property in this State. The limit of such loans, as compared with values, is fixed at 40 per cent. for savings banks, 50 per cent. for insurance companies and 60 per cent. for trust companies.

Mr. Cuviller has introduced in the Assembly a bill authorizing the city of New York to spend $5,000,000 for enlarging the Brooklyn bridge.

Mr. Burns (Assembly) has introduced a bill to pay mechanics and laborers for holidays and half holidays.

Anti-fire insurance trust legislation was introduced in the House by Assemblyman Alfred E. Smith of New York. The bill imposes a fine of $500 on any member of the fire insurance "pool" who combines to arbitrarily raise rates. This bill is aimed primarily at the Board of Fire Insurance Underwriters.

Judgment of Foreclosure.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

I have put a lien on a house in Manhattan and obtained a judgment with costs. How long does it take to foreclose on the house in order to collect the judgment?

Answer.—If you have a judgment of foreclosure and sale, the sheriff of the county or the referee named in the judgment can sell the property and give deed on three weeks' notice. But if your judgment is a money judgment, only the sheriff of the county can sell the property on execution on six weeks' notice; but if you become a purchaser at such sale or execution, the owner of the property sold, his heirs, devisees or grantees may within one year redeem from the sale by paying the sum of money paid on the sale with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, or a creditor of such owner may redeem from the sale within fifteen months from the sale by paying said sum of money with interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, and if not redeemed at the end of fifteen months such sale is final and a deed given.

To Tear Up 32d and 33d Streets.

Eugene A. Philbin as counsel for the United Engineering & Contracting Co. and the Pennsylvania, New York & L I. R. R. Co., has made formal application to the Rapid Transit Commission for permission to open up the greater part of 32d and 33d sts, between Madison and 7th avs. Mr. Philbin said that this was necessary owing to the presence of quicksand and subterranean streams which have been encountered by the tunnel workers in that locality. The plan is to open the streets from curb to curb, shore up the sides, and, in short, adopt the "cut-and-cover" method.

Mr. J. Romaine Brown, 53 W. 33d st, does not think the plan proposed will have a bad effect on surrounding property. The contractors would, of course, be liable for any damages to buildings during the construction work and they would be likely to select the safest method of conducting their operation. "They will probably follow the lower Broadway plan," he added.

Mr. Webster B. Mabie, 41 W. 33d st, practically agreed with Mr. Brown in his opinion. "Thirty-third st recently caved in opposite the Waldorf-Astoria, due to the unfirm bottom, and I believe it would be good judgment while they are about it to tear up the whole street," he continued.

Mr. Benj. R. Lummis, 28 W. 33d st, said that he did not think the tearing up of the roadway would make very much difference if the sidewalks were left untouched.

"But we must have a clear passageway for pedestrians on each side of the street," said Mr. Lummis.

Board of Brokers' Dinner.

A notice has been issued by a committee of the Real Estate Board of Brokers for the Annual Dinner, which is to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria on Monday evening (7 o'clock), February 18. The committee is composed of John R. Foley, chairman; Edward L. King, Edwin H. Hess, Joseph P. Day, John P. Kirwan, T. C. Smith, Wright Barclay, John F. Doyle, M. V. Lenane, David A. Scully, Francis E. Ward, A. N. Gitterman, David A. Clarkson, Walter Stabler, Wm. C. Lester, Chas. E. Schuyler, F. E. Smith.

The notice is this year in a unique form, but quite appropriate to the occasion, being in the style of a regular printed "contract of sale," with modifications by the typewriter.

Enclosed with the notice is a plan for the dining-room, showing the situation of the tables, in which the aisles are designated as "Fifth Avenue," "Broadway" and Riverside Drive," and the guests' table as "Central Park." Also the following:

41156. Wm. Henry Folsom—offers a guarantee of good fellowship to all future members of the Real Estate Board of Brokers.

41157. Wright Barclay—offers good music from the windows of the brown-front flats in the balcony.

41158. David A. Clarkson, William C. Lester and Walter Stabler—offer you in behalf of the "Board" an opportunity to subscribe to the dinner, and want a prompt response in the shape of an acceptance of the enclosed contract, which we would ask you to return as soon as possible.

Sixth Avenue Corner Brings $291,000 at Auction.

That there is no lack of buyers for well located business property in the Pennsylvania terminal section was evidenced by the sale at auction on Wednesday noon at the New York Real Estate Exchange, 14 Vesey st, of 446-448 6th av, being the northeast cor. of 27th st, 4 and 5-sty buildings on a plot about 49x100. The parcel was sold by the Underhill estate and purchased by the Corlears Realty Co., of which Emanuel G. Bach is president. The sale was conducted by Bryan L. Kennelly and opened on a bid of $200,000, and after rapid advances reached the price of $291,000, at which figure the property was knocked down to the successful bidder. Distributed among the gathering were many well known Manhattan real estate operators and investors, a number of whom were largely interested in realty in the 6th av district. The figure realized at this sale is said to represent a fair market price for real estate in that vicinity, and its effect will be to stimulate to a still further degree the strong speculative interest which is now centered in the Pennsylvania terminal section.

NEW YORK CITY

The company reports unearned premiums and all other liabilities $7,712,310, leaving a surplus of $4,623,651. The surplus is somewhat smaller than last year, but the decrease is not as large as might be expected in view of the fact that the company has paid out fire losses on account of the San Francisco disaster aggregating $4,522,905. The New York directors are Charles H. Marshall, chairman; John Crosby Brown, Walter C. Hubbard, John A. Stewart, Edmund D. Randolph. Henry W. Eaton, resident manager.

A reliable authority asks us to correct a statement contained in our issue of Jan. 26, 1907. He says that Mr. William J. Taylor, Nos. 5 and 7 East 42d st, New York City, was the sole constructor and alone financed the four buildings in West 67th st, near Central Park West, which were erected on a purely co-operative basis; in the first instance for the benefit of an aggregation of prominent artists who organized themselves into a corporation to take the building on its completion. Mr. Henry W. Ranger, the artist, was the first president of this corporation, and was in many ways the prime mover in the enterprise. Mr. Taylor is further erecting and financing the apartment building in West 86th st, and on Lexington av, in 66th and 67th sts. These are also on a purely co-operative basis. The statement that Mr. Walter Russell was instrumental in financing the building in West 67th st and is connected with the enterprises above mentioned and with the Co-operative Building Construction Co. was an error and contrary to the actual facts.

—Mr. Wm. H. Goodyear, curator of fine arts in the Brooklyn Museum, has been elected an honorary member of the Royal Academy of Fine Arts in Milan, in recognition of the contributions to mediaeval architectural research in Italy which has been made by the Brooklyn Museum.

Martha Washington Hotel Leased.

John H. Fife Company, hotel brokers, leased the Martha Washington Hotel, a 12-sty fireproof building, 75x100, containing 396 bed-rooms, located in East 29th st, and running through to 30th st, Manhattan, for the Woman's Hotel Company to Arthur W. Eager, proprietor of the Westminster Hotel, Irving pl and 16th st, for a long term of years, at an average rental, including taxes, of about $65,000 per year. Negotiations were carried on through a committee, representing the company, consisting of Lawrence B. Elliman, chairman; Mrs. Frederick Nathan and Mr. Arthur Coppell, who had received hundreds of applications from prominent hotel men throughout the country, both for the management and lease of the hotel; but after careful consideration, they finally selected Mr. Eager as the most capable for the operation of a woman's hotel. Among the stockholders of the Woman's Hotel Company are: Mr. George T. Bliss, Miss Helen M. Gould, Grace Church, John D. Rockefeller, James Talcott, Mrs. John B. Trevor and Mrs. Frederick Nathan. In accordance with provisions set forth in the lease, Mr. Eager will continue to operate the hotel as a strictly woman's hotel. The entire second floor will be given up for women's hotel purposes. The space formerly occupied on this floor, and known as the American-plan dining-room, will be used as an assembly and banquet hall, with a seating capacity of about 300. The Martha Washington Club will be organized at once, with permanent headquarters at the hotel.

CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a. G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed considertion, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyence, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers, that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only, the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.

THERE has been nothing either new or remarkable in the action of the stock market this week. Bear doctors and bull doctors disagree. On the one hand we are told that the market must go up occasionally that bears may have something to sell on, and on the other that one fine morning the extensive short interests will realize their position and will be tumbling over one another in their efforts to cover. The market cannot always go down, just as it cannot always go up, a fact which some people disregard entirely and thereby manage to lose more or less money. Would-be prophets on both sides of the accounts profess to see indications of a better state of things in the near future. One of these straws is that on Wednesday last the market became dull on the recession in prices, while ordinarily dullness has followed rallies. This fact may be a crumb of comfort to some operators, but as all experiences and precedents apparently go for nought in Wall Street in this twentieth century, it is safer to follow the late Josh Billings' advice and not to prophesy unless you know. There is undoubtedly a large short interest in the market which should result in an advance in prices, though how long such a recovery would last would depend on the amount of new buying. Certain stocks have been features during the week, but it can scarcely be said that their movements up or down have had much significance. Missouri Pacific broke on a report that the company was to borrow fifty millions on short-time notes. The rumor, while not confirmed, had its effect on the list and Great Northern made a new low record, but recovered. Thus Wall Street would seem to be for the time being a pretty good place for the average operator to keep out of until the market begins to act in a logical manner and more consistent with fundamental conditions. It is encouraging to real estate and building interests to know that time money is daily becoming easier, and that the demand for it is consequently more active. In connection with this burning money question it may be said that Wall Street and banking sentiment is still hopeful about immediate Congressional legislation regarding the currency.

FEBRUARY'S first week has given the real estate market a foretaste of spring activity. From time out of mind February has always been the starting point for the season's real business throughout the whole country. Though there have been in New York City some local modifications of the custom, in general it is true of February that it is the month when landlord and tenant are expected to arrange with each other for another year or term of years; and out of this fact grows a widespread activity in all the departments of real estate and building. It is therefore significant that the very first week of February, 1907, has brought to Manhattan and the Bronx an exceptional amount of business and public interest in real estate, as it can be taken as a prophecy of a normal and satisfactory spring market. Several features of the week's transactions stand out prominently. The sudden activity in Thirty-third street east of Fifth avenue points plainly to a continued enlargement of commercial interests in the region around the Waldorf-Astoria. The sale of the Everett House, following soon after the report of the Court House site commission, might be hailed as the beginning of a revival for Union Square, if it were yet assured that the recommendation of the commission is to be accepted. Sales of small apartment houses on the west side of Manhattan and of building lots and private dwellings in the Bronx have this week been more numerous than usual, and can mostly be ascribed to public interest. Fulton street near the McAdoo terminal announces an important sale to add to a number of others that have taken place recently, and to give evidence of the quiet campaign which is going on in that quarter. Statistics for January printed in this paper last week disclosed that the number of conveyances in Manhattan during that month were about fifty per cent. less than in the first month of 1906, and the building projects announced were only one-third as many. In the Bronx plans for 13 more buildings were filed in January this year than were filed in January last year and in Brooklyn about two hundred more than last year. With mortgage money accessible on fair terms, Brooklyn and the Bronx, as well as Queens, will carry on an enormous amount of building this year.

IT is very much to be hoped that the Board of Estimate will not alter the site of the new Court House chosen by the Commission. Public opinion in the county, particularly the opinion of those people most immediately and specially interested, is unanimous in its favor. The judges, the lawyers, and the press have all approved; and unless better reasons can be given than any which have yet been alleged, their approval is justified. The site will be expensive, of course, but no cheaper site of similar area and similar excellence of location could be found in Manhattan. The only alternative plan proposed is wholly undesirable. This plan is, as we understand it, to buy the remainder of the block between the Hall of Records and Broadway and erect thereon a structure large enough both for a court house and a municipal office building. Such a course would be a mistake, both as a matter of architecture and as a matter of economy. A municipal office building is all very well; and we know of no good reason why a municipal office building should not be a skyscraper. But there has always been a tradition that court houses should be buildings of some architectural propriety and dignity; and this tradition is a good one, because an appropriately stately habitation for a court of justice assuredly increases the respect for the law in the public mind. To herd the supreme and county courts in a big skyscraper, together with the tax and water departments, would be a grave impropriety, and when to this consideration is added the importance of giving the court rooms quiet surroundings, the Chambers Street plan looks ill-advised. If the city needs an office building, in addition to a court-house, why not erect such a building on land which the city is already acquiring? There is no engineering reason to prevent the construction of a 30-story skyscraper on the three triangular blocks, which will contain the new Brooklyn Bridge terminal, and it would be a real economy to put this expensive land to such good use. The city could get more room, and room better adapted for its purposes, at about the same expense by using the Union Square site for the Court House, and the terminal property for a skyscraper than by purchasing the enormously expensive Chambers Street site and building upon it exclusively.

THE controversy as to whether an express station on the new East Side subway shall be situated at Fourteenth or Twenty-third Street ought to lead to a declaration on the part of the Rapid Transit Commission as to the proper principle governing the selection of streets for express stations. The question at bottom is whether express stations on the different longitudinal routes should be located at the same or at different important streets, and the advocates of the station at Fourteenth Street, would do well to argue in favor of the general principle of one street for all express stations rather than to argue in favor of the peculiar availability of Fourteenth Street. Of course Fourteenth Street is convenient for a great many people; but a station at Twenty-third Street would be convenient for even more at the present time, and by the end of ten years it would serve fully double the business population. The convenience of Twenty-third Street to a comparatively larger number of people is so manifest to any but prejudiced people that the only reason which can be alleged in favor of the Fourteenth Street station is the desirability of enabling people to transfer from an express or local train on one route to an express train on another route. This undoubtedly would be a great convenience to the public—particularly in the present instance, when the two would be only a few hundred feet apart. But is not this advantage more apparent than real? The express stations in the lower part of the city will also be very near together, and a passenger can select the East or West Side route at that point according to his convenience. The only passengers who would be much discommoded by an express station at Twenty-third Street would be people boarding a local on the Elm Street subway south of Fourteenth Street and desiring to reach a destination on the upper East Side; but no distribution of the express stations will be entirely suitable to the needs of all the passengers. It seems to the Record and Guide that express stations situated at different cross-town streets will be more convenient to more people than their concentration along particular lines; and this will particularly be the case, whenever each of the important cross-town streets is provided with a subway for collecting and distributing the passengers.

Upper Broadway.

AMONG those parts of Manhattan in which speculative activity has been during the current season very marked, one of the most prominent is upper Broadway. The two miles and more of this thoroughfare lying to the west of Central Park has passed through many vicissitudes. When originally widened under the Tweed rule and planted with trees the idea was that it would become a favorite site for handsome residences; but when the building of the West Side was begun it was immediately proved that this anticipation was erroneous. Riverside Drive was preferred as the location for the best residences in that part of the city; and it was not apparent for a long time just what the fate of this part of Broadway would be. Residences being excluded, it was too fine an avenue to be lined with small flats, and there was not enough demand for elevator apartment houses to warrant the erection in large numbers of that type of dwelling. Whatever retail or general business found a place on the West Side naturally concentrated along the line of the Columbus Avenue elevated road. The consequence was that for many years the owners of lots on Broadway did not know what to do with them. Up to 1897, twelve years after the improvement of the West Side had begun, the only buildings of any importance on the thoroughfare were a few rows of ordinary five-story brown stone flats. About that year a change was introduced by the building of some blocks of seven-story elevator apartment houses, and for several years this type of improvement was very popular. During the same years evidence began to accumulate that this part of Broadway had a very considerable future as a business avenue. Many small but good retail shops were opened on the ground floor for the two-story tax-payers, which the property-owners began to erect, and it became apparent that Broadway would push Columbus Avenue hard as the business thoroughfare of the West Side. Broadway lots began to increase considerably in value—in spite of the set-back which the actual work of constructing the subway gave to the residence and business growth of the avenue.

All this development was, however, merely preliminary to the growth in business and population which has taken place since 1902; and this growth has been brought about in the main by three important causes. In the first place the erection of the Ansonia and its success demonstrated the availability of this part of Broadway as a location for huge apartment houses and hotels; and during the past five years many such buildings have been erected. In the second place the opening of the subway gave the apartment houses on Broadway the best transit service in the city, and enabled the owners thereof to fill their houses at increased rents. At the same time it increased the growing business importance of Broadway, which gained every year in this respect over Columbus Avenue, and this business supremacy was confirmed by the appearance of a third cause, which was wholly unexpected and contributed to the increase in values. During these years the business of selling automobiles was growing by leaps and bounds; and the width of Broadway made it an admirable location for the large number of new "garages" which were needed. The combined effect of all these causes has been a considerable increase in values, which has of late been felt most of all in property available for business purposes. The New York Sun has recently given a remarkable instance of this increase in values. The southerly half of the block front on the east side of Broadway between Seventy-ninth and Eightieth Streets is owned by Robert E. Dowling, and the northerly half by Gustavus L. Lawrence. The parcels are about equal in size and include four full lots. About two years ago Mr. Dowling erected a two-story building on his plot and rented it to two tenants at figures which were then regarded as unusually high. Under existing leases the store floor is bringing in $10,000 a year and the upper floor $5,000. The adjoining owner has recently completed a similar building and has already leased his ground floor. The corner has been taken by the Auto Car Co. at $7,200 a year, and the other three stores have brought $4,500 each. Consequently Mr. Lawrence is getting over $20,000 a year for his ground floor alone; and two out of his four tenants are automobile companies. Such increases in rentals mean, of course, almost a corresponding increase in values, and it is not surprising that Mr. Dowling and others have recently been making purchases even at existing prices in other parts of Broadway.

It will be seen from the foregoing instance that the recent prosperity of Broadway has been due chiefly to the increased demand for room for stores on the ground floor; and this increased demand has been due partly to the increased population of Broadway and partly to its popularity as the seat of the automobile salesroom. There can be no doubt also that in both of these respects Broadway has an assured future. It is not to be expected that general business will invade this part of Broadway during the life of the existing generation, because it will spread further east and west as well as north and will have plenty of territory to occupy south of Fifty-ninth Street. The part of Broadway between Seventy-second and Fifty-ninth Streets will doubtless become more and more available for theatres and restaurants, but these will be the only other uses to which it will be subjected. On the whole, Broadway west of Central Park will simply be the central business thoroughfare of a population living in big elevator apartment houses. It is probable that the erection of apartment buildings particularly on the lower part of the avenue will not continue very far into the future. The avenue itself will become more and more of a business thoroughfare, although a thoroughfare which will be restricted only to certain limited kinds of business. But it is evident that hereafter the side streets which run off of Broadway and which are now covered with residences, will slowly be improved with apartment houses. The experience of every successive year confirms the conviction that the West Side has no future at all as a section devoted to private residences. For seven years there have been more private dwellings destroyed each year in Manhattan than there have been new ones built; but the benefit of this diminution of the supply compared to the demand has been felt almost exclusively on the East Side. The two important transformations of the West Side which may be expected hereafter will be the gradual displacement, wherever restaurants do not forbid, of residences by apartment houses, and the growing business importance of upper Broadway. After Washington Heights and Inwood are built up and fully populated it is entirely possible that Broadway will become a favorite location for general as well as special stores. Its diagonal layout and its possession of the subway will coöperate in the long run to give it a character in its upper portion corresponding to its character further south.

Reasons For a Modification of the Tenement House Law.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Since the Tenement House Act became law the burdens of the poor have in a measure increased. The law has caused increase in rentals, but the wages of the lower grade of workers, those who cannot live except in tenements, have not increased. There is no fault to be found with the principles of the law; the framers of the law intended well; intended to benefit the poor. The Tenement House Department was hailed as a blessing; was supposed to be established as an honest, impartial institution free from political influences and never to become corrupt or a factor in local politics.

Mr. de Forrest, the first Commissioner, a true and able man, however, had to admit the law was faulty and required amending. Mr. Crain, the second Commissioner, declared in the presence of a responsible committee of five that the law required amending, and that if he was not the Commissioner he would aid the committee in framing the proposed amendments. Governor Odell, when he approved the amendments of 1902, declared before an audience of several hundred that the law required amending, and again amending, and that no new law was perfect and would not be perfect until amended many times.

No one can thoroughly understand the law the way it is framed; it contains provisions impossible to obey; it is contradictory. It is the only law from which there is no appeal, even the local authorities of the City of New York, the only city of the first class, are prevented by law from in any way interfering. One commissioner can issue rules and regulations, and these rules and regulations must be obeyed by owners of buildings, and perhaps at great expense; then when another commissioner is appointed these very rules and regulations might be set aside and another set promulgated; and again the owner has to obey, and at more expense undo what a former commissioner ordered him do, and the owner has no redress. Is that sound law? Is that in accordance with our Constitution? Is it to be wondered at that owners increase rentals and that dispossesses are more numerous than before?

Why should not the law provide for the proper qualification of the officers appointed to administer the same? Why should there not be some provision for appeal? Why should not some one be invested with some discretionary power?

The population in lower Manhattan is congested and becomes more so every day. In addition to the increase produced by immigration, thousands of poor families are being dispossessed, owing to buildings being taken down to make room for tunnels, bridges, approaches to bridges, etc. Why should these people be compelled to seek homes outside of the city limits or in nearby States when they could be provided with more comfortable homes, more healthy surroundings in the outlying districts within the city? Amend the tenement laws, and these people need not emigrate. Permit owners to construct small houses on common sense principles. Consider, for instance, these popular, comfortable, healthy houses known as three-family houses. Why should a small house—say 20 feet wide and perhaps 60 or 65 feet deep, only three stories or about 35 feet high, constructed to be occupied by one family on each floor or three in the whole house, each room provided with light and air, each of the three families living separate and independent—be classified the same as a house 50 feet wide, nearly 70 feet high, with four to six families living together on one floor, and thirty to thirty-two families in the house? Is it not time that part of the law was amended?

What kind of justice is it to prevent the owner of a 25-feet wide lot improving the same in a proper and sanitary way, and so that it will bring income to pay expenses? Why should a final certificate for occupancy be refused because the inspector discovers one door lock perhaps missing, one side of a small outside shaft not finished white, though men are working at it, and other paltry, trivial points? Several builders have been financially ruined on that account.

Only three or four weeks ago Mrs. Stokes during an address described a tenement known as the "Bee Hive" in which one thousand human beings were housed, and in which the average rental was $15 for two to three rooms without any special accommodations. The Citizens' Union has investigated the question of enormous increase in rentals and reports that $4 to $8 per room are charged in the very poorest tenements and localities.

Help the people in advocating some common-sense, beneficial amendments to be embodied in the tenement house act without interfering with its fundamental principles; aid by advocating legislation for immediate improvements in transit facilities, and in the outlaying districts of Greater New York, the people can be accommodated with far superior houses, in much more healthy localities and with better surroundings for children, and all at much below lower rentals.

The Tenement Act is very imperfect, one section contradicts another. The amendments proposed will, if adopted, in a measure improve it; but the most practical way would be for the Legislature to enact a law to provide for a Commission to revise it.

Copies of proposed amendments are herewith enclosed which show that it is not the intention to interfere with the principles of the law.

HARRY ROBITZEK, Chairman Legislative Committee Taxpayers' Alliance.

JOHN HAFFEN, President Property Owners' Association of 23rd Ward.

ADOLPH C. HOTTENROTH, President Alliance.

CHARLES H. BAXTER, Chairman Committee Building & Tenement Laws.

These proposed amendments have been approved by nearly all the taxpayers' associations in Greater New York.

Future of the Bartholdi Hotel Property.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Contradictory statements have been made during the week regarding the lease of the Bartholdi Hotel property, southeast corner Broadway and 23d st, also as to certain building operations which were to take place in 1909. The lease originally made by us was for a term of 27 years, but owing to difficulties in securing possession, the agreement between the Pike estate and Harry Levey was cancelled by mutual consent and a new lease at an aggregate rental of about $1,500,000 entered into for a term of 24 years, dating from Oct. 1, 1909, which is the expiration of the old lease that was taken over by a company formed to carry on the business of Milton Roblee, the former lessee. No definite plans have been determined upon for the future of the property. However, extensive alterations are contemplated with a view of remodeling the present structure into a modern store and office building at the expiration of the existing leases. Very truly yours,

M. & L. HESS.

New York's Realty Gains.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

An analysis of the figures recently announced by the Department of Taxes and Assessment of real estate values in New York City for the year 1907, is most interesting. Exclusive of the property of the city, churches and charitable institutions, which are exempt from taxation, the total is now nearly five and a half billion dollars, the increase for the year alone exceeding $400,000,000, representing a percentage of 7.4% over 1906. The complete figures were as follows:

Borough.	1906.	1907.	Increase.
Brooklyn	1,007,805,022	1,089,511,420	81,706,398
Queens	151,630,705	206,577,520	54,946,815
	$5,400,127,590	$5,800,632,132	$400,504,542

Queens comes first with the tremendous gain of 36.2% over the previous year, the immediate, practical influence of the vast Pennsylvania Tunnel scheme, the Belmont Tunnel, the Blackwell's Island Bridge, and the completed East River Bridge, being proved beyond cavil or discussion. The most prosperous Western boom town would envy such a showing.

Next comes Richmond Borough with a gain of 13.9%, due largely to the city's wise policy regarding an adequate transportation system—and establishment of the Municipal Ferry—a showing which from all present indications will be largely increased this year. Indeed, it is probable that the new transportation systems planned for Staten Island, subway connection under the Narrows, and two new bridges and a new ferry to New Jersey, will put Richmond first in the percentage list at the next annual statement.

The Bronx is comparatively disappointing with only 8.8% gain, Brooklyn showing nearly as much—8.1%, while Manhattan is way down the list, with a total of only 5.8%, in spite of the fact that its net gain was nearly double those of the other four boroughs combined. It will be seen that Manhattan is the only borough below the average, this of course being natural in view of the gigantic values already represented by the "old city."

The figures are taken at the opening of the books of January of each year. F. H. S.

LETTERS FROM OVER THE STATE—WORDING OF PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO LAW OF 1906.

EXEMPTION for all old mortgages from annual taxation is the purpose of a bill now before the Legislature amending the Recording Tax Law; and the essential parts of the proposed amendment are as follows:

"The holder of any mortgage of real property recorded prior to the first day of July, 1906, may present such mortgage to the recording officer of any county in which it is recorded, and file with such recording officer a statement setting forth the names of the parties to the mortgage, its date, the date when it was recorded, the liber and page of the record and of the assignments or other instruments by which the mortgage was acquired, the greatest amount of principal indebtedness which was secured thereby at any time, and the amount of the principal indebtedness which is or under any contingency thereafter may be secured by such mortgage; such statement shall be verified by affidavit of the holder of the mortgage or of an agent or officer of such holder. The holder of such mortgage may thereupon pay to the recording officer a tax upon such mortgage at the rate of 50 cents for each $100 and each remaining major fraction thereof of principal indebtedness which is or any under any contingency thereafter may be secured by such mortgage. The recording officer shall receive such payment and indorse a receipt therefor upon the mortgage. Mortgages with respect to which tax has been paid pursuant to this section, and the debts and obligations which they secure shall be exempt from taxation in the same manner as is provided in Sections 291 and 292 with respect to mortgages taxed under this article. The recording officer shall note upon the margin of the record of any mortgage upon which tax is paid under this section the date of such payment, the amount thereof, and name of the person who makes the payment. The receipt indorsed upon any mortgage pursuant to this section, or the note made on the margin of the record of any mortgage pursuant to this section, shall be conclusive proof that the amount of tax stated therein has been paid upon such mortgage. Trustees and other persons holding mortgages in any fiduciary capacity shall be considered to be holders for the purpose of this section. Mortgages made by corporations in trust to secure payment of bonds or obligations shall not be brought under the operation of this section, nor be entitled to the exemption conferred by this section, unless with each mortgage all the bonds or obligations secured thereby are presented to the recording officer and a copy of the receipt which by this section he is directed to put upon the mortgage shall be stamped upon each bond."

Notice that the closing sentence of the amendment provides that mortgages made by corporations to secure bond issues cannot obtain exemption unless all the bonds secured by a mortgage are presented to the recording officer and his receipt for the tax stamped upon each bond. It is argued that this is a condition practically impossible to comply with, and hence large corporations could not exempt their enormous mortgages given to secure bond issues.

Of the other two amendments to the Recording Tax law one provides for the recording, without payment of tax, of supplemental mortgages and of mortgages correcting defects in the original instruments, where no new or further indebtedness is sought to be secured. The other change has to do with that part of the law relating to the tax on prior advance mortgages, and its effect will be that of restricting the tax to such mortgages of this class as were recorded under the annual mortgage tax law, that is, between June 30, 1905, and July 1, 1906.

LETTERS FROM CORRESPONDENTS THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

Letters from the Allied Real Estate Interests of the State of New York, informing correspondents of the proposed amendments to the Mortgage Recording Tax, and asking for expressions of opinion of the operation of this law in their respective localities, have elicited the following expressions:

Auburn.—There is no desire to return to the old annual tax. * * * The majority of the mortgages here are drawn at 5½ per cent. for the first year and 5 per cent. thereafter. I am sure that the people of this county would favor the amendments which you propose.—D. E. French.

Batavia.—We think the provision for the registering of old mortgages should have been included in the original law. We have had a great number of cases where it was the desire of the mortgagee to record his mortgage under the law and thereby exempt himself from the taxation under the old law.—Day & Day.

Buffalo.—I think there can be no doubt in Buffalo but that the Recording Tax is much more satisfactory than the Annual Mortgage Tax.—F. Howard Mason, Sec'y Chamber of Com.

Canandaigua.—I know of no desire to return to the Annual Mortgage Tax. I know that that law materially increased the rate of interest to the borrowers and at the same time was very unsatisfactory to the man who had a large number or any considerable number of mortgages outstanding. He felt that he was in constant danger of violating the law, without intent, especially where his mortgage investments were in many different counties.—Cyrus D. Henry.

Canton.—It seems to me that the amendments that your association have prepared are highly desirable.—W. N. Beard, Vice-president and Cashier First National Bank.

Carmel.—No one wishes to go back to the Annual Tax.—E. C. Weeks, Clerk of Putnam County.

Corning.—In my opinion the proposed amendments to the existing Mortgage Recording Tax law are essential and necessary to perfect it. Whatever criticisms have come to my ears respecting the law as it now is have been brought about on account of the elimination from its provisions mortgages recorded prior to July 1, 1906.—Frank D. Kingsbury.

Dunkirk.—I have heard of no complaints in this vicinity in regard to the Recording Tax law of 1906, nor have I heard of any opposition to it from any source. I believe that with the amendments proposed in your letter that the present tax law would be greatly improved and be generally satisfactory.—R. Mulholland, Pres. Dunkirk Bd. of Trade.

Oswego.—From all information that I am able to gather I find that the present Recording Tax law is popular, if there is to be a tax on mortgages.—Norman L. Bates, real estate.

Oyster Bay.—The Recording Tax law of 1906, amended as is proposed by your committee, will, I think, be most just and satisfactory, both to loaner and borrower.—E Morgan Griffin, Cashier, Oyster Bay Bank.

Poughkeepsie.—The law is working most saitsfactorily in this locality.—Allison Butts.

Schenectady.—We are opposed to annual tax. Present law seems all right.—Schermerhorn & Co.

Syracuse.—The provisions for bringing old mortgages under operation of the new law by permitting them to be registered and paying the recording tax of ½ of 1 per cent, is an excellent provision and one that I have thought of much and hoped would be adopted. Several of my clients have been confronted with the necessity of executing new mortgages, with all expenses attendant, in order to avoid the payment of the local municipal tax of 2 per cent. and over. If this provision is adopted, it will avoid the necessity and expense to these people, which I should like to see accomplished.—Frederick S. Wicks.

Utica.—Most emphatically the new law is satisfactory.—W. D. Jones.

Watertown.—The experience of the people in Jefferson County with the new Mortgage Recording Tax law is exceedingly satisfactory.—James A. Ward.

Troy.—There is no general opposition to the tax law or a desire to return to the Annual Mortgage Tax from this locality. However, we think the amendments proposed would give better satisfaction.—Irving Hayner, attorney.

Geneva.—My observation since the new law took effect is that it has resulted in reducing the annual rate one-half per cent. Mortgages that were drawn at straight 6 or 5½ per cent. in this locality are now, as a rule, drawn 5½ per cent. the first year and 5 per cent. thereafter, and I have met with no dissatisfaction on the part of either investor or borrower as to the result of the law. Every one seems to be satisfied with the condition.—John G. Farwell, attorney.

Building Code Revision Halted.

WITH all previous arrangements for revising the Building Code annulled, the proceedings have taken a new start under a new resolution and with another political party in charge. At Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Aldermen the resolution of May 29, 1906, by which the Building Committee was directed "to prepare and report" a building code "in amended and revised form," and which "authorized" the committee to "engage the services" of experts to assist, was rescinded by the terms of a resolution offered by Alderman Sullivan.

The new order authorizes the Building Committee to propose to the Aldermanic Board for appointment the names of eleven experts, who, together with the Presidents of the five boroughs, or representatives named by them, and the chief of the Fire Department, shall assist the Building Committee in revising the code. Nothing prevents the chairman of the committee from proposing to the board the names of nine who were appointed under the authority of the previous resolution, if the majority should so select, but in that event the board would have the power to reject any or all.

No change having been made in the organization of the Board of Aldermen, the membership of the Building Committee continues as formerly constituted, and Alderman Grifenhagen (Republican) remains chairman, because the Democratic leader, Mr. Sullivan, prefers not to use the new power that has come to his party through the action of the M. O. aldermen. He plainly announced it was not the intention of the new majority to reorganize the committees, but he reminded everybody that he had "a little motion to lay on the table" which he could use if necessary. Meanwhile there is a question if the board, having once delegated power to the committee to "prepare and report" a revised code and to "engage the services" of experts, can now invalidate the acts of the committee. This question it is the announced purpose of the majority of the committee to ask the courts to decide. Under the Sullivan resolution the next proceeding scheduled is a report from the committee proposing names.

When the order of business came up (Feb. 5), the following minority report was adopted instead of the majority (Grifenhagen) report:

"As members of the Committee on Buildings, the undersigned dissent from the majority report and offer the following resolution for adoption, the text of which is identical with Special Order 92:

"Resolved, That, in pursuance of section 407 of the Greater New York Charter, the Building Committee of this board be and is hereby directed to prepare and report to this board a "Building Code" in amended and revised form, providing therein for all matters concerning, affecting or relating to the construction, alteration and removal of buildings or structures erected, or to be erected, in the city of New York; and it is further

"Resolved, That for the purpose of properly preparing said Building Code the said committee be and is hereby authorized to propose to this board for appointment as a commission, the names of the following experts, each of whom shall be a resident of the city of New York, and shall have been engaged not less than five years in his respective calling, to-wit:

"Two (2) architects, one (1) structural engineer, one (1) sanitary engineer, one (1) engineer recommended by the Board of Fire Underwriters, two (2) master builders, two (2) mechanics skilled in building trades, two (2) plumbers; also the Presidents of the respective boroughs, or representatives named by them, and the chief of the Fire Department of the city of New York; and be it further

"Resolved, That any and all resolutions or ordinances, or parts thereof, inconsistent or conflicting with the provisions of this resolution be and they are hereby repealed.

(Signed) "Wm. P. Kenneally, Charles Kuntze."

A resolution to the same effect was then offered by Mr. Sullivan, and approved by a party vote.

THE REALM OF BUILDING

Design for New Bowery Branch, Y. M. C. A.

(With Illustration.)

Herewith is the accepted design of the proposed building which the Bowery Branch, Young Men's Christian Association, is soon to build at the Bowery and Broome st, to meet the requirements of the increased work. It will be of fireproof construction, with modern sanitary appliances, to accommodate about 500 men. The first floor will have a restaurant, kitchen and barber shop, on the main floor will be offices, correspondence, reading, coat, game and reception rooms. The next floor will contain an assembly hall, board room and individual rooms for Bible classes. The fourth story will be for locker and shower baths, and the gymnasium. The fifth for open dormitory, shower baths and isolation room. Each of the remaining floors above will contain 35 individual bedrooms, 8x10 ft., with toilets. In the basement will be a bowling alley, baggage room, laundry, fumigating plant, and in the sub-basement the boiler, engine and dynamo room, vacuum cleaner plant and storage room. The following gentlemen have been appointed to serve as the building committee, to take entire charge of the matter of financing, etc.: Messrs. Wm. M. Kingsley, Samuel Sloan, Jr., J. Frederick Talcott, Banyer Clarkson, M. C. Fleming and C. F. Mathew. H. W. Hoot, 153 Bowery, is the branch secretary. The building will measure 75x100 ft., 14 stys in height, and cost about $350,000. Messrs. Jackson & Rosencrans, 31 Union sq, are the architects. No building contracts have yet been issued. Operations will begin as soon as the necessary additional property is obtained.

Plans for Broadway and Thirty-Third Street Corner.

BROADWAY.—Plans for the improvement of Nos. 1270 to 1280 Broadway, the southeast corner, and Nos. 60-62 West 33d st, 118.6 ft. on Broadway and 97.4 ft. on the street, in Herald sq, are now said to be nearing completion. Mr. Felix Isman, of Philadelphia, Pa., purchased the property in December, 1905, from a Mary E. Hanley, with lease and option for $1,525,000, on which he proposed at that time to erect a 25-sty office structure some fifteen months later, as announced in the Record and Guide of issue Dec. 16, 1905. In place of the office building first planned, a 20-sty hotel will now be built in the style of the French Renaissance. George B. Wilson, of Philadelphia, Pa., is behind the enterprise, and Ralph E. White, of Philadelphia, Pa., is to be the architect. There will be five (plunger system) elevators installed, and the second story is to be fitted for a great banquet hall and private dining-rooms. The exterior will be of granite up to the fourth story, with terra cotta above. The entire project, excepting the site, is estimated to cost about $2,000,000. No building contracts have yet been awarded.

Jones Speedometer Building.

(With Illustration.)

This building represents the development of the automobile industry to the extent that the owner, who is a manufacturer of the "Speedometer," is enabled to put up what promises to be the finest sample of architectural ensemble devoted to the automobile business in Manhattan. Mr. Oscar Lowinson, the architect, has spared no pains in making this the finest building of its kind, which the accompanying illustration shows.

The building is four stories high, situated on the northeast corner of 76th st and Broadway in the center of the automobile district. It has been designed in the Art Noveau style and is intended to give a maximum amount of light. The structure is a skeleton frame front and is intended to have an automobile salesroom in the first story; the remainder of the building to be used by the "Jones Speedometer." It will be equipped with every convenience that modern science has developed. Attention is called to the ornamental cornices on the front, a combination of copper and iron; at the store cornice "Speedometer search lights" will throw a flash across and down Broadway. These lamps will have a dial similar to the "Jones Speedometer" and it is the intention to have the registering hand register the current consumed in place of the ordinary functions of this, which is to show the speed at which the automobile is traveling. Mr. Lowinson is to be congratulated on the happy solution of the problem of placing a building of this character on this plot.

BUILDING NOTES

So far this year bricklayers have averaged not more than ten hours a week.

Gordon, Tracy & Swartwout, architects, 244 5th av, announce the dissolution of their partnership.

We are informed that if the price of copper continues to advance, pin makers may be forced to make a large proportion of their pins of iron instead of brass.

The steel framework of the 16-sty office building known as the "Marbridge," in course of construction at northeast corner of 6th av and 34th st, now reaches the seventh floor.

Consolidation of the "Zoo" in Central Park with the one in Bronx Park would be strongly opposed, and the Board of Business Agents of the Building Trades have entered an official remonstrance.

An interesting and attractive photograph calendar comes from the Richards Mfg. Co., of Aurora, Ill., which manufactures door-hangers and hardware specialties. Copies of the calendar are obtainable upon application.

Attention of architects and builders is called to the removal notice of the American Hydrolit Co. in our Want and Offer Department. The factory of this company, formerly in Hoboken, and the New York offices at 1 Madison av, have been combined in their new building 316 East 65th st. Mr. Charles B. Hood is manager of the contract department.

Owing to the continued advance in the cost of materials entering into the manufacture of boilers and furnaces, heating firms have raised the price of repairs considerably this winter. An announcement sent out this week by the McCrum-Howell Co., of 46 East 20th st, states that an advance of 10 per cent. for repairs for Richmond boilers and furnaces will be made.

The Acme Stone Renovating Co. has taken larger offices at No. 432 West 40th st. Park Commissioner Moses Herrman has asked the Board of Estimate to appropriate $75,000 with which to renovate the interior of the Central Park Arsenal. The building was erected in 1840 by the State to house arms and explosives for the National Guard. In 1857 it was deeded to the city, and since that time has been used as a headquarters for the police and the Park Department.

Steam boilers in the city of New York number altogether 18,426, of which 13,476 are stationary boilers in buildings. There are 2,517 portable boilers used for excavating and drilling, 166 used for asphalt paving, 269 on scows for pile driving, 75 on scows for dredging, 152 on lighters for hoisting, 240 portable boilers on barges, 847 locomobiles, 24 steam wagons and 12 steam trucks. Last year there were nine arrests for violations of the steam boiler law.

Recently a mill was added to the construction facilities for the trim and cabinet work. Their telephone numbers are 2614 and 2364 Bryant.

As the time has arrived to clear the way for the Manhattan Bridge approaches, an ordinance was this week introduced and referred to the Committee on Finance providing for the sum of $3,000,000 with which to continue the construction of approaches on both sides of the river. Manhattan's anchorage is 50% completed, and Brooklyn's 60%. Together they have used up so far $2,427,774. Tower foundations cost $1,123,443.90, and metal work in anchorages, towers, cables, etc., have taken $6,493,223. On Friday of last week an application was made to the courts to appoint commissioners in condemnation proceedings.

Public Real Estate Records.

"LET THE PURCHASER BEWARE"—HOW THE RECORDS ARE KEPT.

(Part II.*)

LET us now inquire what is the purpose of the system of public real estate records in use among us? Its design is to aid any person who may desire to deal with land in ascertaining the owner of it, and the claims against it. Such persons are divisible into two classes—purchasers of the land itself, and creditors who loan their money and receive security for its repayment by a pledge of the land. The latter class should, properly speaking, also include all creditors having claims against the owner generally, even though not secured by specific pledges of the land itself. To both of these classes, purchasers and creditors, it is of vital importance that the statement of the owner that he is the owner can be verified, and that it cannot be altered by unknown facts and claims which may not be discovered until after the transaction into which they are about to enter has been completed and the former owner out of reach, for the rule of caveat emptor ("let the purchaser beware") applies to real estate as to all other commercial dealings. Consequently, our recording acts provide that any deed or other document relating to land, duly recorded in accordance with the legal requirements, shall not be affected as to its validity or application, or the rights derived under it in any way altered, by any other document, not so recorded, unless the existence of this other document was actually known to the purchaser or creditor before the transaction was consummated.

The language of section number 241 of the Real Property Act of this State is as follows:

"RECORDING OF CONVEYANCES.—A conveyance of real property, within the State, on being duly acknowledged by the person executing the same, or proved as required by this chapter, and such acknowledgment or proof duly certified when required by this chapter, may be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county where such real property is situated. Every such conveyance not so recorded is void as against any subsequent purchase in good faith and for a valuable consideration, from the same vendor, his heirs or devisees, of the same real property or any portion thereof, whose conveyance is first duly recorded."

It results from this if an owner presenting a deed as evidence of his ownership, which the record shows to be the last deed, has really conveyed his land to somebody else who has neglected to record his deed, and the alleged owner conceals this fact, and it does not otherwise become known to a proposed purchaser, that this second purchaser, by promptly recording his deed and entering into possession of the property gets an absolutely good title as against the first purchaser, who loses his rights by his negligence in not recording his deed, which it was his privilege and, in fact, duty to do. This is a hardship on this negligent first purchaser, but, as you can readily see, if it were otherwise, great confusion and uncertainty would arise in dealing with land, and many more and more serious hardships and injustices would ensue. In the English practice of no public record, and no dealing with the land except by deposit of all the title papers with the new owner or creditor, business in real estate is only carried on because it is comparatively small in volume. With us, however, reliance on the public record gives the owner security in his ownership, and gives a proposed purchaser safety in dealing with the owner on a transfer, even if he has not a single document in his possession to support his claim of ownership.

It also results from our system of public records that a creditor who loans money to an owner of real estate and receives from him a mortgage as security for the money loaned, and then neglects to record his mortgage, may lose all benefit of this security if the owner sells his land or secures other loans giving mortgages to other parties, and these other parties are more diligent in recording their papers, and have no actual knowledge of this mortgage made first. This, however, would be his own fault, and the law cannot always protect negligent and careless persons at the expense of more careful and prompt individuals who comply with its requirements.

As between several mortgages of the same land that one has priority of claim which is first recorded, and the claims of several mortgages upon the land are in the order of their dates of record, unless otherwise altered by statements contained in them or some other supplementary documents between the same parties relating to them.

You should, therefore, make it an invariable rule to see to it that all documents which should be recorded are promptly sent to the proper record office; and, if you have not personal control over them yourself, follow them up and make sure that it is done. For this is of vital importance for the protection of the interests of your clients.

In connection with the public record system, the legal doctrine of notice requires some attention. All persons dealing in any way with land are bound by all facts of which they have notice, "for it is manifestly fraudulent for anyone having notice of an adverse claim of another to attempt to deal with the land to the prejudice of the interests of this other claimant of which he is aware, and on the other hand it is obvious that the culpability involved by the notice must depend altogether upon the kind and degree of notice received."

There are three kinds of notice—actual, implied and constructive. Jones on Real Property, Sec. 1510, says: "Actual notice literally means direct personal knowledge. Yet the term is often used in a broader sense as including notice implied from indirect or circumstantial evidence. Whether it exists in any particular case, and whether it is sufficient to charge the party whom it is sought to affect by it, is a question of fact to be considered and determined upon the evidence in each particular case. It is deemed effectual and sufficient when the evidence shows that the matters relating to the prior claim or interest of another, constituting notice of it, are brought distinctly to the knowledge and attention of the person it is sought to affect."

This notice may be given by written or verbal communication from the claimant, or some other person, or by some other equally positive indication, such as occupancy of the property, or it may be less definite, but must be sufficient to cause a careful person to make inquiries with the possibility of ascertaining the true state of facts by a proper investigation, and it may consist of such indefinite indications as the offer of the property for a grossly inadequate price, or some other suspicious circumstance. Jones says: "If in such case the purchaser or mortgagee wilfully closes his eyes and remains ignorant of facts he would ascertain by a reasonable inquiry, he is affected with notice of them just as much as he would be had he made the inquiry." When not in possession, and as against a bona fide purchaser for actual value paid, the burden of proof is always upon the person who seeks to bind the purchaser or mortgagee with notice of his prior rights, and he must make out affirmatively that the other had the notice, and if his rights are such as could have been thoroughly safeguarded by recording his documents he will generally find his task of establishing this proof a very difficult one.

Implied notice is that which is imputed to a client when his broker or attorney has knowledge—or, as Jones well expresses it (Section 1532), "When an agent acquires a knowledge of any matters or instruments affecting the title of any lands, about the purchase or mortgage of which he is employed, and this knowledge is such that it is his duty to communicate it to his principal, the law imputes this knowledge to the principal; or, in other words, notice to the principal of such matters or instruments is implied."

Constructive notice is that which is given by matters properly contained in the public records. Every person is bound to take notice of the contents of the public records, whether he has actual knowledge of them or not, and ignorance is no excuse. There is no escape from this. Constructive notice is also "imputed upon a strictly legal inference of matters which a person necessarily ought to know," or when a state of facts exists which could be easily learned if ordinary care and diligence in investigation were followed. To quote Jones once more (Sec. 1544), "Whether the person charged with such notice actually had knowledge of the facts affecting the property in question, or might have learned them by inquiry, or whether he studiously abstained from inquiry for the very purpose of avoiding notice, he is alike presumed to have had notice." "Constructive notice is imputed either upon the ground of fraud or negligence."

It, therefore, behooves you to give attention to all facts or intimations bearing upon the question of ownership which come to your knowledge, whether they are matters of public record or not.

Before looking in at the public record offices themselves we must consider one other matter, namely, the prerequisite legal requirements which it is necessary to conform to before a document can be recorded. In order to protect owners, and the public generally, from fraudulent and bogus conveyances, the recording acts prescribe that before any deed or other document can be received by a public record officer for the purpose of recording, it must be acknowledged by the party whose act it is, or be proved by one of its witnesses. This acknowledgment or proof is evidenced by a certificate, attached at the end of the document, made by a notary public, commissioner of deeds, judge or other public official authorized to make such certificates, as specified in the statutes.

This certificate, if an acknowledgment, must state that on a certain date the parties executing the paper appeared before the notary, or whatever officer makes it, who knew them to be the persons they are stated to be, and also knew that they were the persons named in the document and who executed it, and furthermore that they acknowledged to him that they had done so. If the certificate is a proof by a subscribing witness it must state that the witness, giving his place of residence, appeared before the notary or other officer, who must know him, and swore that he knew the parties, knew them to be the persons named in and who executed the document, saw them sign and execute it, and that he subscribed his name as witness.

If this certificate is made in some other county than that in which the paper is to be recorded, it must also have attached a supplementary certificate from the county clerk authenticating the officer making the primary certificate, and if made in another State or country still another supplemental certificate is sometimes necessary. All of these requirements are minutely regulated by statute and must be strictly complied with, for the record of any document not acknowledged or proved in conformity with the legal requirements, although it may have been received and recorded in the public records, is not constructive notice of the existence of its original.

After a paper has been recorded, and unless the records are destroyed by fire or otherwise, the document itself becomes of secondary importance, and its loss is not a very serious matter, the important thing being the record itself, upon which the owner depends in deducing his title. Of course, in any litigation where evidence is required in court, the original papers are to be first produced, but if these are unobtainable, and that fact is established, the record will serve the purpose equally well.

We now come to the consideration of the various public real estate record offices; and, for the purpose of illustration, we will take up those in this, our own, county of Kings. They are:

(1) The Register's Office,
(2) The County Clerk's Office,
(3) The Surrogate's Office,
(4) The Office of the Commissioner of Records,
(5) The various Tax Offices,
(6) The Offices of the Clerks of the Federal Courts,
(7) Certain miscellaneous minor offices.

In the Register's Office are recorded all deeds, mortgages and other documents, of a voluntary nature between the parties, conveying or affecting any interest or claim in or to land. There are but three counties of the State in which there is provided a separate office known as the Register's Office for recording these papers, namely, Kings, New York and Westchester. In all other counties of New York State these papers are recorded in the County Clerk's Offices, as was the case in this county until 1853, when the Register's Office was established.

The statute prescribes that the recording officer in each county shall provide a set of books in which to record deeds, and other instruments conveying absolute rights in land, and a separate set of books for recording mortgages, instruments relating to mortgages, and other instruments intended as security for loans. In Kings County there has also been provided since 1846 a separate set of books for powers of attorney.

The earliest records in Kings County date from about 1679, and between that date and 1800 fill about a dozen books. Prior to the end of the eighteenth century many papers relating to land titles, in fact most of them in some towns, were recorded in books kept in the offices of the various town clerks, which are now in the custody of the Commissioner of Records, with the exception of those of the town of Brooklyn, which were carried away to England, at the time of the evacuation of New York City, in 1783, by John Rapelje, the Town Clerk, who was a loyalist in sympathy with the British Government; and have never been recovered from there. Prior to 1830, when the Revised Statutes became effective, the county records were comparatively small in volume, there being only 27 books of deeds and 19 books of mortgages at that time. Since 1830 the statutes having made it much more important to record papers, the ever increasing activity in real estate has made the volume of the record increase enormously, so that on January 1, 1895, there were 2,276 books of deeds and 2,595 books of mortgages, 4,871 in all.

As every document contained in these books was of importance to some piece of land, and a person intending to deal with the land was bound, at his peril, to take notice of those relating to his parcel, the question of some kind of index was of great importance. The statutes early prescribed that the recording officers should provide separate alphabetical indexes for the deed and mortgage books, or "libers," as they are called, two sets for each, grantor and grantee indexes for deeds, mortgagor and mortgagee indexes for mortgages. These were sub-divided so that all surnames beginning with the same letter were placed in the same index, the entries being made chronologically. Then in investigating any property it was necessary to consult the indexes as to each owner, to find out what conveyances and mortgages he had made during the time he had owned the land, and then carefully consult all these deeds and mortgages, as recorded in the libers, to determine whether or not they had any relation to the piece of land under investigation. When any individual had been particularly active as a dealer in real estate this became a very heavy task, so that the system became very onerous for any person using the public indexes, and resulted in the preparation of better, more subdivided and thoroughly annotated indexes by the searchers in the Register's Office, and a few other persons, who thus secured, to a large extent, a monopoly of this searching work, as, of course, their indexes were their own private property.

These conditions led to the agitation of the question of an improved method of indexing, which, after considerable discussion, was settled by the introduction of the block index system, which went into operation in New York County on January 1, 1891, and in Kings County on January 1, 1895. By this system Kings County is divided into 25 sections, and the blocks are numbered from 1 up to over 8,500, a block being defined as an area of land bounded by the centre lines of the surrounding streets. This arrangement is shown on the Land Map of the County of Kings. It is possible to apply this system to this county because, while it is not wholly laid out in streets on the ground, there being large sections of the county still in the condition of country property, it is entirely mapped out, and every part of the county is laid out in streets on paper shown on official maps, known as Commissioner's Maps. Every document recorded after January 1, 1895, and from now on, must have endorsed on it, or noted in the body of the paper, the numbers of the section and block or blocks where the land is situated to which the instrument relates.

The statute distinctly provides that if the document is not properly marked with the correct sections and blocks, and consequently not correctly indexed, it is not constructive notice when recorded; and furthermore makes it the duty of the person recording the paper to supply these numbers, he being responsible for any mistakes therein. This is wrong in principle, for this marking with the proper section and block numbers is quite a technical operation, and very difficult for an inexperienced person, and should be the duty of the Register, who has in his employ experts, who are, or should be, fully competent to perform this service for the public, and who actually are very acute in discovering those cases where errors have been made, so that the persons who recorded the papers can be notified and come and pay the extra fees and penalty for the mistake.

Hunt's Point Av. Soon to Be Completed.

The chief engineer for the Borough of the Bronx, Mr. Josiah A. Briggs, believes that Hunt's Point av will be completed by next summer. This will mean a complete transformation of this section in a very short period thereafter. There are now many two-family houses in the course of construction in proximity to this intended thoroughfare. The road leads to the historic Hunt's Point burying ground. Former Tax Commissioner James L. Wells and the members of the Bronx League have prevailed on the city to make a new park surrounding this graveyard, which will then be of increased interest to the general public. The park will be bounded by the Eastern Boulevard, Longfellow st, Hunt's Point av and a new street. The advisability of adding to this plot is now under official consideration.

For nearly two centuries and a half the little hillock on the northerly side of the Old Colonial Road to the Point has been known as the "Hunt Burying Ground." The quaint old cemetery is less than half an acre in area. In an unmarked grave, within the lines of Whittier st, have peacefully rested since the autumn of 1666 the remains of Magistrate Edward Jessup, commonly known among the people of his day as "Good-Man Jessup." This Yorkshire Puritan was one of the two original patentees of all that portion of the Bronx, about 1,300 acres, called by the Indians "Quinnahong" and by the English settlers the "Great Planting Neck," situated between the "Sacrahong," now known as Leggett's Creek, and the Bronx River, and extending from Long Island Sound to 182d st, near 3d av. Edward Jessup was remarkable, not simply because he was a magistrate and a large land owner, but because being a brave, upright man and full of restless energy he was the recognized champion of the rights of the colonists.

Near the grave of Edward Jessup are the final resting places of his daughter, Elizabeth, a remarkable woman of her time, and his son-in-law, Thomas Hunt. This Thomas Hunt was the son of Thomas Hunt, of the "Grove Farm," who was one of John Throgmorton's 35 English families which came from Rhode Island in 1642 and settled in West Chester, in order that they might enjoy religious freedom. Thomas Hunt, the son-in-law of Edward Jessup, was a delegate to the celebrated Colonial Assembly that met at Fort James in this city on Oct. 17, 1683, whose first act was the passage of the memorable Charter of Liberties and Privileges.

In this cluster of graves also lie the remains of Thomas Hunt III., an Alderman and freeholder of the ancient Borough of Westchester in 1729. He was the father of the Revolutionary patriot, Thomas Hunt the fourth, who also lies here, and grandfather of Montgomery Hunt, a noted financier, a presidential elector in 1816, who voted for James Monroe for President, and who was the father of Judge Ward Hunt, of the Court of Appeals of this State and of the Supreme Court of the United States, by appointment of President Grant.

Among other honored dead are John Richardson, the joint patentee with Edward Jessup; the active and courageous Gabriel Leggett, son-in-law of John Richardson and father of William Leggett, Alderman in 1730, Mayor of the Borough of Westchester in 1734 and Judge of Westchester County in 1752. There, too, rests his son, Abraham Leggett, the associate of Thomas Hunt, the patriot, on the Committee of Safety, and in raising the West Farms and Fordham Company of Minute Men, in which several of his family enlisted. He served the people after the Revolution as an efficient Supervisor of the Town of Westchester.

This little cemetery is also the final resting place of veterans of the various colonial wars and continental soldiers, members of the Hunt, Leggett and Willett families. The inscriptions on their primitive grave stones have become illegible by the lapse of time.

A few feet south of the grave of Thomas Hunt, the patriot, is the modest monument erected by sorrowing friends to mark the grave of Joseph Rodman Drake, the son of Col. Jonathan Drake, of the Continental Army. He was interred in the Old Hunt Burying Ground, as he wished to be, among his friends and near his grandmother, the wife of Thomas Hunt, the patriot, who had sheltered and cared for him when bereaved of his parents.

Glass as a Building Material.

Michael Cohen & Co., 1133 Broadway, have a very remarkable structural material in what is called the "Novus Sanitary Structural Glass." "It is a creation, not an imitation," says Mr. Cohen, but nevertheless it looks like white building marble of the kind that has no striation or veining, and which the public is just now regarding with special favor.

It looks like marble and is used as if it were marble for wainscoting, floors, partitions, walls, counter-work in public institutions, hotels, hospitals, baths, kitchen, toilet rooms and in fact in any place where sanitary conditions are desired, and it is furnished to architects' and engineers' specifications.

It is made by the Penn-American Plate Glass Company at Pittsburg. Though it looks like marble, it is glass, not the kind that breaks easily, or that is transparent, but still it is only glass. While it is called "sanitary" glass, it will be used, we fancy, for its beauty as a structural material in places where it is good taste to use marble when one can afford it.

This Novus glass does not cost what cut marble does, nor can it be used in all respects as marble is. It can not be used in the form of moldings, or carved like marble, but for flat surfaces it is bound to come into great vogue because of its moderate cost. Many home-builders who would not think of specifying marble work for the interior of their houses will be asking soon about this Novus glass. Some of us have seen it at Mount Sinai Hospital, in the male surgical ward, in the operating amphitheatre and in the examining room. The laboratory of the Pratt Institute in Brooklyn has its table tops and shelves made of white slabs of Novus glass. The table tops and counters in the kitchen of the St. Regis were described as "white marble" when the hotel was opened a year ago, though the material is not marble, but Novus glass.

Glass is a comer in building materials. It should not stain, fade and get grimy. In times past we have all read that houses would eventually be built of glass, and now we can almost believe it.

Convention of Granite Manufacturers and Quarry Owners.

A large body of granite men assembled at Young's Hotel, Boston, Tuesday, Feb. 5, to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Granite Manufacturers and Quarry Owners which was held that day. The gathering was the largest in the history of the association in spite of the severe storm which prevailed at that time. The proceedings began in the banquet hall of the hotel at 10 A. M. Many points of interest to granite men were discussed, among which were matters pertaining to the labor question and the unions. Among the New York City delegates were W. R. Arnold, president of the New York Association of Granite Manufacturers; Mr. Orr, John Hynes, Messrs. Engeman and Smith, of the Benvenue Granite Co. Mr. Smith, quarry superintendent of Ryan & Parker's quarry at Stonington, Me., was present, and accompanied the New York delegation on its return to this city.

Brooklyn Builders' Dinner.

Three hundred attended the fifth annual banquet of the Brooklyn Builders' Association at the Union League Club on Wednesday.

Frederick W. Rowe, president of the association, acted as toastmaster. Seated with him at the guests table were the speakers of the occasion, Building Commissioner David F. Moore, ex-Congressman Edward M. Bassett, Frank Bailey, Thomas P. Peters, Gilbert Evans, Congressman William M. Calder.

Frank Bailey, vice-president of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, spoke in a humorous way of some of the interesting manipulations of the real estate market. "We have had an emotional impetus of the real estate market, when men bought any old thing and never looked at the property because it might spoil the deal. But now those conditions are done with. They have passed beyond recall.

"The real development of this town has been caused by the influx of population into it and great wonders have been accomplished by it. Within five years the great operators of New York will be at work here in Brooklyn."

Mr. Bailey spoke of the harmony between the builders and the material men that was fast being effected and stated his belief that no more would the scenes of discord of the troublous old times when material supply men and builders were forever at loggerheads be enacted. "And pretty soon," said Mr. Bailey, turning his attention to the monetary phase of the building situation, "there will be enough money to meet the calls for all legitimate work. Within twleve months, I venture to predict, there will be much money obtainable at 4½ per cent., when the mortgage tax law will have had a chance to work out its course."

City Work.

The new year finds a large amount of building for the municipality under contract, and considerable more for which contracts have not yet actually been issued. Last year the city ordered over thirty million dollars' worth of work calling for building plans.

Ten fire houses were begun or planned in the year 1906, at an average cost of about $75,000 apiece. Six park shelters were put up in the year, chiefly in Brooklyn, and some small bridges were built.

A new building for the Health Department in Brooklyn is now building. Its cost will be about $200,000.

Work has begun on the Staten Island Tuberculosis Hospital. There will be fourteen buildings, intended for patients from all parts of the city, who will here receive fresh-air outdoor treatment. The structures, which are to be of reinforced concrete, will cost about $2,000,000. Raymond S. Almirall, 51 Chambers st, is architect.

Plans have been drawn and approved for the Whitehall ferry terminal, for the Staten Island, the Thirty-ninth Street, and South Brooklyn lines. This will cost about $1,500,000. Messrs. Walker & Morris, 24 East 23d st, are the architects. (See issue Dec. 15, 1906.)

Work is in progress upon a new wing for the American Museum of Natural History, at 77th st and Columbus av, being the south wing of the west facade, to duplicate the west wing of the south facade. It is to contain five stories, with exterior walls of red granite. This wing is being erected by the city under the jurisdiction of the Park Department, at a total cost of $326,000. Guldone & Garlardi, 1 Madison av, are the general contractors, and Chas. Volz, 160 5th av, architect.

The Municipal Art Commission disapproved the plans submitted for the Hudson Memorial Bridge, and the Bridge Department is drawing new plans. An appropriation of $3,000,000 for this work was made by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment last year.

Steady progress is being made by the Department of Docks with the water-front improvements; for example, the Chelsea section, which has reached a stage where it remains to build the pier and bulkhead structures, which are to be of steel and iron. Work will be begun on them this year, but it has not yet been contracted for. These piers will probably be used by the big Atlantic steamship companies. The entire cost of the Chelsea improvement is placed at about $8,000,000, exclusive of the cost of the land acquired by the city.

Plans were approved for the Home for the Aged and Infirm, and other charitable buildings on Blackwell's Island, about a dozen in all, to cost from $10,000 to $150,000 apiece. Work upon them will be begun this year.

Work is soon to begin on the Coney Island Hospital, near the Ocean Parkway, a group of six buildings, under the Charities Department, intended as a free hospital for the lower part of Brooklyn. The cost is estimated at $200,000.

Work on the public bath at the foot of East 23d st is well under way. A new public bath near the foot of East 54th st is to cost obout $100,000.

Of the new structures for Bellevue Hospital, one section, to cost about $1,500,000, is now being built. The detailed plans and working drawings for another section, to cost about $900,000, have just been approved. Messrs. McKim, Mead & White, 160 5th av, are the architects. Work is now in progress on the Bellevue Hospital Training School, close by the hospital buildings. The John H. Parker Co., 225 4th av, is general contractor.

Plans, involving a cost of about $1,500,000, have been drawn for the Queens County approach to the Blackwell's Island Bridge, but work has not yet been begun. The plans for the approach to the Manhattan end of the bridge are now in course of preparation.

—During the past week the various branch managers and department managers of the H. W. Johns-Manville Co. held their annual convention at the headquarters of the company, 100 William st, New York. This company has a world-wide reputation as being the largest manufacturers of asbestos, magnesia and electrical products in the United States, if not in the world, having factories at Brooklyn, Milwaukee, West Milwaukee and Hartford, Conn., and branch offices and warerooms in the following cities: Milwaukee, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Kansas City, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Dallas and Buffalo. Representatives from the various branches and factories were present, and the meeting was not only profitable but interesting to everyone present. As a fitting finale, the convention wound up with a banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria.

A late report states that the officers of St. Thomas's Church have finally decided to build on a new site, and that the lot at the northwest corner of 5th av and 53d st is being negotiated for.

With some sales soon to mature, Messrs. Gibbs & Kirby, of 2705 Broadway, at 103d st, have numerous inquiries for private houses in that section, one of the choicest residential quarters of the town.

The firm of Reiss-Loewy Realty Co., 3164 3d av, Bronx, has been dissolved by mutual consent. Milton R. Loewy will continue the business at the same address under the firm name of Loewy Realty Co.

One hundred and fifty members of the Harlem Property Owners' Association attended the New York Theatre on Thursday night and afterwards dined at Churchill's, where there was a presentation to one of the members.

William F. Koch, real estate broker, for some years on upper Broadway, has formed a partnership with Oscar F. Bower, under the firm name of "Koch & Bower," and has opened offices in the Mail and Express Building, 203 Broadway.

Mr. Albert B. Ashforth, 4 W. 33d st, is to be congratulated on the volume of business which has been transacted by his office since the first of the year. During the last fortnight nine sales of realty were concluded by Mr. Ashforth.

Madison sq, already the prettiest in the city, when wholly framed with skyscrapers and monumental edifices, will rival any public square in the world. It is a long look ahead when this frame will be finished, but it is steadily growing.

Eugene J. Busher is of the opinion that the coming spring will be an active one in Bronx realty circles. Mr. Busher is about to reconstruct his house at 627 East 149th st, near 3d av, where his office now is, and convert it into an office building. Work will begin Feb. 15.

The J. Nathaniel Glass Co. has recently opened offices at 104-108 West 42d st, for the conduct of a general real estate and insurance business. Associated with Mr. Glass, who has been identified with Manhattan real estate for a number of years, is Mr. James A. Nooney, formerly with John Finck.

At the office of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment it was learned that new plans have been formulated so as to take in the entire block bounded by 2d and 3d avs, 59th and 60th sts, and also to provide for the widening of the west side of 2d av 65 ft. from 57th to 59th sts, and 67 ft. from 60th to 61st sts.

S. Osgood Pell & Co., 537 5th av, report leasing as being very active, owing in part to the forced evacuation of buildings in the path of improvements, as for instance the Grand Central Palace, which must come down. Among the new office and loft buildings that are filling up are 27 West 32d st, 47 West 33d and 42 West 34th sts.

Mr. Lawrence Veiller announces that he has resigned the offices of secretary of the City club and vice-president of the Allied Real Estate interests, and has been appointed director of the department for the improvement of social conditions of the Charity Organization Society, with offices temporarily in the Flatiron Building, 949 Broadway, Room 1510; after May 1st, in the United Charities Building, 105 East 22d st.

The United States Express Company has leased about sixty per cent. of the space in the new building at 2 Rector st. Among the new tenants are the American Agricultural Chemical Co., Crucible Steel Co., Safety Car Heating and Lighting Co., Standard Coupler Co., Chas. H. Keys, Steel Rail Supply Co., Midland Construction Co., Fidelity and Deposit Co., Chas. P. Perin, Coudert Bros., Brown & Welles, Duell, Warfield & Duell, Knevals & Perry, O'Brien, Boardman, Platt & Dunning, Escher & Fox, and John J. Delany.

The European and American National Bank of New York, which was recently incorporated with a captial of $200,000, will be located on the northeast corner of Dey and Greenwich sts. This corporation will do a general banking business and have an active realty department. Among the incorporators are: Mr. Frank Zotti, of the firm of Frank Zotti & Co., banking and realty, who is the president; the directors being Lyman McCarthy, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway; Chas. S. Lee, general passenger agent of the Lehigh Valley Railway; S. F. B. Morse, Frank A. Marsh, of Portchester, N. Y., and Wm. G. Brown, of the firm of Campwell & Brown.

Paul Mayer, the well-known real estate operator and agent, died last Tuesday at his residence, 244 West 102d st, after a brief illness. Mr. Mayer was born in Carlsbad, Germany, in 1864, and came to this country twenty years ago. After a brief connection with Emil S. Levi in handling Bronx properties, he opened a real estate office in 135th st, near 8th av, and became manager of the Bernheimer properties, including many flats and apartment houses. This position he retained until his death, with offices at Broadway and 96th st. He leaves a wife and four young children. The business will be continued by Charles E. Lauten and John L. Meyer under the firm name of Lauten & Meyer.

Mr. Williamson, of the firm of Williamson & Bryan, 2796 3d av, near 149th st, has closed a number of deals recently and holds great hopes for an active spring market in the borough. As Harlem is now all built up, people are flocking to the Bronx, and he believes that there is more good money there for builders than anywhere else. As an illustration, Mr. Williamson quoted the value of full city lots in his vicinity, in side streets near transit stations, as being from $3,000 to $7,500, while in Harlem similar lots would bring from ten to fifteen thousand, with no difference in rental returns. Rooms in this neighborhood rent for about $5 each per month with improvements, and approximately $4.50 without. In 125 apartment houses of which Mr. Williamson has charge, there are but five or six vacancies.

What a Moving Platform Would Do on the Bridge.

An illustrated lecture was delivered on Tuesday evening before the Brooklyn Heights Citizens' Association, at the Berkeley Institute, in Brooklyn, by Max E. Schmidt, president and chief engineer of the Continuous Transit Securities Company, upon the proposition of that company to install moving platforms upon the Brooklyn Bridge.

Mr. Schmidt stated that the elevated loop, having failed of approval, it was now proposed to build a subway loop in which, for good reasons, the elevated cars of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, as at present constructed, would not be admitted. The citizens of Brooklyn could therefore not expect much benefit from such a loop. At the same time the Bridge Department was going ahead with the construction of the new terminal station, recently authorized, at the Manhattan end of the bridge. This terminal, Mr. Schmidt believes—taking the Bridge Department's own figures—will not increase the capacity of the bridge tracks at all, and in the end the conditions will be more intolerable than ever.

Continuing, Mr. Schmidt said that the need of the hour was an immediate improvement. Moving platforms offered the only means of effectively relieving the bridge crush, because, first, a moving platform equipment would be lighter and more uniform in weight than the existing car and train equipment, would therefore cause less strain on the bridge and make reconstruction of the bridge unnecessary. Second, a moving platform equipment would have a seating capacity of not less than 84,480 passengers per hour, would therefore carry all the passengers who desire to cross the bridge on seats without crowding.

Mr. Schmidt believes that moving platforms can be placed on the bridge under an arrangement by which the five-cent fare can be maintained.

As to the time required to make the moving platform installation on the bridge, Mr. Schmidt stated that after the material to make such an installation had been manufactured and delivered, which would probably require from six to eight months, the installation of the moving platforms could be made on the bridge in one week. During this week Mr. Schmidt suggests to suspend the vehicle traffic and carry passengers across the bridge by trolley cars on additional temporary tracks, or else run the present trolley cars with trailers and thereby double their capacity.

Resolutions were passed favoring the immediate installation of moving platforms on the Brooklyn Bridge, and calling upon the Mayor to give a hearing to the trustees of the association on the proposition; also calling the Mayor's attention to the statement contained in the lecture by which it is claimed that the new terminal will not increase the capacity of the bridge.

Hardships From the Recording Tax.

OPPRESSION of borrowers, in many cases, has been a consequence, direct or indirect, of the Recording Tax law, notwithstanding the benefits which it gave rise to. This is the testimony of authorities. Hope of relief rests on the measure now before the Legislature whose purpose is to permit old mortgages to be recorded under the terms of the old law. This state of affairs is made the subject of a portion of the annual report of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, wherein these remarks are made:

"The repeal of the annual tax made the mortgages on which it had been paid subject to the regular personal property tax. The necessity of protecting investors who had purchased them from the company on the assurance that they were tax exempt, put a great amount of labor on the company. Wherever possible, it was arranged with the borrowers to execute new mortgages and pay the recording tax, leaving the new investment, tax exempt, in the holder's hands. The company has found some unreasonable lenders and some unreasonable borrowers, and has been in the unpleasant position of getting the blame for the situation from both parties, when, in fact, the law-making power of the State alone has been responsible for it. While the measure was pending, the company foresaw the situation that would arise and urged strongly that old mortgages be given the right to be re-recorded and pay the tax and secure the same exemption as new mortgages. Such a provision was included in the first bill, and seemed to be the principal cause for its veto. The only hope of relief from the burdens of the first law, therefore, was in yielding this point and taking a recording tax measure that should apply only to new mortgages. The result has been so unpleasant and has led in many cases to such real oppression of the borrowers that it is confidently hoped that the present Legislature will pass an amendment allowing the re-recording of the old mortgages. If this is done the mortgage tax laws of the State will at last be in such shape as to greatly favor mortgage investments, and induce, we believe, the lending of largely increased sums on this desirable security. The company's mortgage sales for the year amounted to $73,121,000, against $74,689,000 for 1905."

Site for a New School.

The Board of Education has selected and determined as a site for school purposes in Baxter and Hester sts, adjoining P. S. 130, the premises known as 201, 205 and 207 Hester and Nos. 133, 135 and 137 Baxter. The assessed valuation of these parcels is $122,000. The property in question is situated on the northeasterly corner of Hester and Baxter sts, in the Borough of Manhattan, and is known by the lot Nos. 1, 2, 25, 36, 37 and 38, in Block 236, on the land map of the Borough of Manhattan, city of New York.

Lots Nos. 1 and 38 are in one ownership and are represented by Mr. H. Nelson Flanagan, as agent, the property being known by the No. 207 Hester st and Nos. 133 and 135 Baxter st. Negotiations are pending for the acquisition of this property at private sale. There is situated upon the property a 2-sty frame building on the corner with two 3-sty brick buildings on Baxter st, the size of the plot being 25 ft. 1 inch by 49 ft. 9 inches on the corner, and 49 ft. 10 inches by 50 ft. on the street.

Lot No. 2 is known by the No. 137 Baxter st, there being situated thereon a 6-sty tenement building 87 ft. deep, the size of the lot being 24 ft. 5 inches by 100 ft. 2 inches. The property is owned by former Judge Palmieri, who has offered to dispose of it at private sale to the city, and a separate report will be made thereon.

Lot No. 35 is known by the No. 201 Hester st, the size of the lot being 25x100 ft. There is situated thereon a 5-sty brick building. The property is owned by Emil H. Kosmak, who has offered to dispose of it at private sale to the city at a fair price, providing condemnation proceedings are first authorized, in order to eliminate the lease of the premises, which provides that if condemnation proceedings are authorized that the lease will become void.

Lot No. 36 is known by the No. 203 Hester st, and has on it a 3-sty frame building with a brick building in the rear. The owner is represented by Davis & Kaufman, and after negotiations it appears that the price asked for the property is excessive and condemnation proceedings will have to be resorted to in this instance.

Lot No. 37 is known by the No. 205 Hester st, and has on it a 3-sty brick and frame building, the size of the lot being 25x49.9. The property is owned by Mr. Augustus Sbarboro, who has offered to dispose of the same at private sale to the city, and a separate report will be made thereon.

—Under the title of "The Responsibilities of Directors," and with special reference to the control and regulation of trust companies, Frederick Phillips, secretary of the Lincoln Trust Co., has issued a booklet which cannot fail to prove of interest not alone to those immediately concerned, but to the general public, who have a very hazy idea of what is really meant by a "trust company." He discusses in a comprehensive manner the purposes, methods and limitations of such concerns, with special emphasis on the safeguards that are placed around their operations in this State.

We have a reputation of forty years of unequalled accuracy to maintain.

CONSOLIDATION OF THE RECORD AND GUIDE BUREAU OF INFORMATION AND THE REAL ESTATE DIRECTORY.

The maintenance of two real estate services by the brokers of New York, charging a double price, being under a double expense, and neither giving the broker all the advantages of co-operation, which is the aim of such a bureau, made a consolidation necessary. It is obvious that the larger the subscription to the Bureau the more efficient and expensive a service can be obtained. A subscriber should realize that it is not his subscription fee alone that gives him the benefit of an expensive plant, but the combined subscriptions of all brokers. If you want this benefit, don't try individual system or partial systems—the best is the cheapest.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE REAL ESTATE INFORMATION BUREAU

"Covenants to Pay Water Rates."

PROBABLY nowhere in all the delicate handling of leases by agents, or tenants directly by landlords themselves, do so many troublesome delays, refusals and misunderstandings arise, as in these cases of covenants on the part of the tenant to pay the water rates assessed on the premises which he occupies, and for the water supply which he himself consumes, and not the landlord.

Yet will he dicker and grumble over the making part of the bargain of his hiring of a house the payment by him for the water, to be used, presumably, in assuaging the thirst of his infant family (the elders of the family generally being presumed to satisfy themselves with tea and—milk) or in making up that cleanliness which is next to godliness.

This reluctance on the part of the tenant to pay for water to be consumed by himself in some form on the premises, while perfectly agreeing, if, indeed, the question were ever raised, that he and not the landlord should pay for the gas used thereon, is unquestionably due to the fact that the canny framers of our city's ordinances provided that the water rate should fall on the lot as an annual tax, and if not paid by the tenant or the owner, yet pile up as an eventual lien with high penalty, to be some day collected, when circumstances or a sale should force the clearing up of title, and the payment of all encumbering liens and taxes thereon.

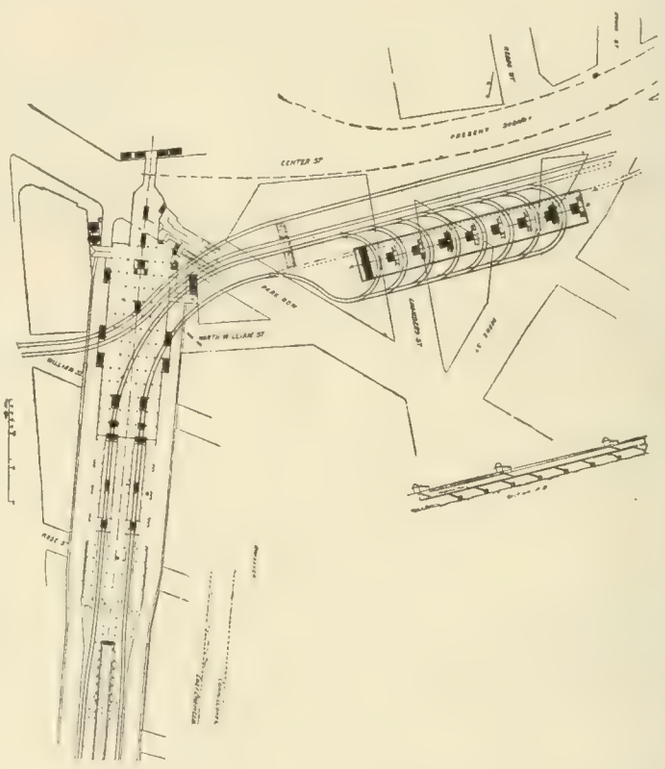
This, then, makes the supply of water an apparent appurtenance of the premises leased, and like a neighbor's telephone, a good thing to be appreciated and used freely; but paid for—well, no—"we never thought you expected any such thing as that," and the like.

In the smaller cities on our outskirts, like Yonkers, Mt. Vernon, Jersey City and others, where the borrowing capacity of the municipality is not sufficient to float bonds at 3 per centum capitalization, for current tax delinquencies, while charging 7 per cent., and doing a neat little sinking fund banking business of a clear 4 per cent., in passing, the municipality has to collect each quarter to meet its water bond requirements, and if the tenant does not pay, off goes the water as the gas, and water-gas becomes a dry or burning question.

But things are as they are, with us at least, in the good city of Gotham, and landlords will continue to try and get tenants to pay water rates, while tenants will seek to drink at the expense of the landlord, so long as these tax lien conditions exist; and a pawnbroker may sooner be expected to go out of business than the city give up a little side-racket of finance, by which it nets from 3 to 4 per cent. annually on nothing.

The form of covenant by which the tenant agrees in private-residence leases to pay the water rates is familiar to all our readers, but the agreement when several lettings divide up a loft or factory property is not quite so familiar, and we will quote the usual provision: "And also pay any rent or charge which is or may be assessed or imposed according to law, upon the said premises, for the Croton water on or as the same may become due and payable by meter measurement or otherwise, in each year during the term, and if not so paid the same shall be added to the month's rent then due."

In one case arising under the clause, the city officials refused to make out and present separate bills, or specify the quantity of water used by each tenant separately, but made a general charge against the landlord, conveniently saving much trouble, and as there was no means save by meter of accurately fixing the amount consumed by each tenant without a meter, and this refused by the city, it was held that no charge had ever been assessed or imposed for water within the purview of the covenant of the lease, and thus again the tenant escaped the snare of the landlord and went free.



But at last one sagacious landlord, and he came of those who earn and keep their money by the expenditure of gray matter, hit upon the device of putting in meters for each loft or store-letting, and patiently went even up into the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court against adverse holdings all the way, for his final reward. And he got it, at last—the Appellate Division reversing the lower court judgments, and holding that while in previous cases under a similar covenant the landlord could not recover an arbitrary portion of the whole water rent, there being no separate meters employed by which the correctness of the apportionment could be determined, yet it was for that reason alone, so held, and not as held in the lower courts in the present case, because the city officials would not make out separate bills or specify the quantity of water used by each tenant separately, "and that therefore no charge had ever been assessed or imposed for the water used by the defendant (tenant), and that the contract between the parties as made, did not provide for the payment by the defendant (tenant) of a charge for the just proportion of the water used by him, when accurately measured and ascertained, but only when actually assessed or imposed as a seperate and distinct item by the city authorities."

Would that our lower courts were not so hidebound by precedent, that in following earlier decisions blindly, they work injustice, and apparently make law, which only the few have the courage to go further for redressal of, and the re-establishment of common sense.

Plans for Brooklyn Bridge Terminal.

For the permanent reconstruction and enlargement of the Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge the general scheme is to transfer the present trolley car stands on the bridge by means of a subway connection to subsurface stands west of Park Row on property recently acquired by the city, thus making it possible to provide eight pockets in the space occupied by the present terminal building for the seven lines of elevated trains now crossing the bridge.

For quick relief it is proposed to extend the structure across Park Row, which can be built in six months from the time of letting the contract. This temporary structure must of necessity be removed before the permanent plan is carried to completion. The officers of the operating company have said that this will permit them to operate six-car elevated trains without change at Brooklyn. The plan for the temporary station over Park Row is annexed.

This plan for the remodeling of the Manhattan terminal is one submitted by a commission consisting of Professor William H. Burr, William Barclay Parsons and Ira A. McCormack, appointed by the Commissioner of Bridges to examine plans which had been proposed for increasing the facilities at the Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge, and to make recommendations for the improvement of the existing conditions. The estimated cost of the changes proposed is $3,150,000, including 10% for engineering and inspection and contingencies.

The trolley roads, as already stated, are to be carried to an underground station on the site already in process of acquisition by the city. This will separate the trolley passengers from those using the elevated roads. Should a new four-track subway be built in Centre st, there would be room for two of these tracks to be carried west of the new trolley station and down William st, while the two remaining tracks could connect directly with the trolley tracks leading into this station, requiring only the removal of the loops to make them continuous. If the Brooklyn Bridge is to be reconstructed with two levels for elevated railroad tracks, these tracks could be readily connected with those in the proposed terminal without material changes.

The Chief Engineer of the Department of Bridges has upon request subdivided the estimate of cost and given his estimate of time within which the various changes could be made. These are as follows:

Temporary extension over Park Row and Centre st, including track and platform changes; estimated date of completion, Aug. 1, 1907; estimated cost....	$100,000
Widening roadways at the Manhattan end of the bridge; estimated date of completion, Aug. 1, 1907; estimated cost	200,000
Subway connection to the east side of Park Row; estimated date of completion, Nov. 1, 1907; estimated cost	235,000
Lowering the grade of William st; estimated date of completion, Aug. 1, 1907; estimated cost.....	100,000
Lowering the bridge promenade; estimated date of completion, Nov. 1, 1907; estimated cost.....	125,000
Subway trolley terminal; estimated date of completion, Jan. 1, 1908; estimated cost	1,000,000

CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a. G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed considertion, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given

5th.—The figures in each conveyence, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers, that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only, the the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

February 1, 2, 4, 5, 6 and 7.

BETTER USE OURS

It costs a dollar a mile to go to Chicago in a Special Train, but only a few cents a mile on the Empire State Express. The same is true of the RECORD AND GUIDE QUARTERLY. Each subscriber receives for Twenty Dollars a year a service that would cost him thousands of dollars.

A system of records is as necessary to a real estate broker as the "ticker" to a stock broker. Conceivably a man might get along without either, but he would suffer immensely both in person and estate.

By means of the RECORD AND GUIDE QUARTERLY, which occupies only a few square inches on a shelf or a desk, the real estate man is put in possession of a system of records in which he could find any particular transaction, be it conveyance, mortgage, auction sale or lease, as easily as he can find the name of one of his clients in the telephone book. It is permanent in form, ever ready and available. It does not go "out" like the office boy, or make mistakes like the stenographer.

The annual number of the RECORD AND GUIDE QUARTERLY contains ALL the legal records for the past year concerning real estate and projected buildings, arranged alphabetically and numerically, with invaluable annotations.

These are supplemented by tables of important transactions, with typical prices, covering the past quarter of a century or more, accompanied by expert comments.

STOCKS this week have moved a little and that has been in the way of advance rather than retrogression. Prices are low and, measured by actual values, never lower. As has been previously remarked in this paper, the persistent agitation against railroads is having its effect by preventing the construction of new ones. Not a dollar of money is likely to be found in the world to go into a new railroad enterprise while this present unreasoning attack on that form of investment continues. The result is obvious. Existing railroad systems in their respective territories will become residuary legatees of the country's growth, and must therefore consequently increase in value. Without wishing it and in spite of themselves, President Roosevelt and his imitators are really bequeathing to the present lines of railroads a virtual monopoly by frightening capital. The Aldrich bill reported to the Senate this week will probably be passed because of the adroit manner in which it is introduced as an amendment to a House bill already passed. Its passage ought to be worth ten points to the stock market because it contains financial remedies which go to the very heart of the weakness of our currency system. Real estate and building interests have a vital concern in the success of the bill, and already it appears that many persons are writing to their Congressmen and Senators to stiffen some invertebrate backbones. The spectacular feature of the market was the crossing of 300 by Anaconda, even going beyond its former highest record of Feb. 13, 1906. There are those who say that nothing can prevent the stock's mounting to a much loftier figure. There is also some evidence, according to brokers' reports, that Washington is beginning to buy stocks. When orders come from the national capital they are presumably based on knowledge of Congressmen and Senators as to the course of legislation and consequently gladden the hearts of Wall Street men. What is known as the public has certainly made no sign as yet of coming into the market and no one is rash enough to predict when that "consummation devoutedly to be wished" will eventuate. Neither call nor time money has been a considerable factor in the market this week, whereat borrowers rejoice and say, "for this relief much thanks."

THE diminution in the amount of activity in real estate, which the records of the current year show as compared to the records of the corresponding period last year, is very extraordinary. It is not confined to any one of the three larger boroughs, and it evidently due to general rather than to special causes. Thus, in Manhattan the number of transfers of real property recorded during the first five weeks of the year amounted to only 1,603, against 2,616 for the corresponding period last year. This decrease amounts to about 35 per cent. and is more remarkable in its volume than the increases which the records exhibited last year and in 1905. In the Bronx the decrease in the number of conveyances has been equal to 25 per cent., and in Brooklyn a diminution in about the same ratio must be registered. When we turn to the building filings the proportion falling off of recorded activity is even larger. During the same period plans have been filed for only 75 new buildings to be erected in Manhattan at an estimated cost of $4,381,000, whereas the totals for the corresponding period in 1906 were 229 new buildings and the estimated cost over $19,000,000. Thus the amount of money to be invested in projected Manhattan buildings is scarcely one-fifth of what it was during the early part of 1906. In the Bronx this proportionate decrease is much smaller, while in Brooklyn there has been in this item an actual and a substantial decrease. The two causes which have coöperated to bring about this falling off in activity are, of course, the money market and the diminished speculation in tenement houses and in flats. It is true that $54,000,000 has been loaned on Manhattan real estate during the first five weeks of this year, against only $32,000,000 during the corresponding period in 1906; but this increase is only apparent. Last year whenever real property was transferred, existing mortgages were, if possible, left untouched, so as to escape the mortgage tax, whereas, now existing mortgages are, if possible, recorded again so as to obtain the benefit of the mortgage recording tax. On the other hand the great part which the diminished speculation in tenements has played towards the reduction in the number of transfers is shown by the figures published in the Record and Guide, exhibiting the comparative value of the property transferred in the two years. During the first five weeks of 1907, 109 conveyances were recorded for expressed considerations and their aggregate price was $7,342,000. During the same period in 1906 the 148 parcels transferred under similar conditions brought only $5,341,000. Thus the average value of each parcel transferred in 1907 was $67,300, whereas the average value of each parcel transferred in 1906 was only $36,000. The same story is told by the aggregate assessed valuations of the parcels transferred for nominal considerations. The average assessed valuation of each parcel so transferred during the first five weeks of 1907 was $47,000, against only $34,000 as a similar average during the corresponding period in 1906. It will be seen, consequently, that the smaller activity at present is taking place in property much higher in grade than the greater activity of last year.

THE purchase of the old Everett House at Seventeenth Street and Union Square by a syndicate of operators for eventual improvement, has a double significance. It indicates that the old ill-equipped and poorly decorated hotels can no longer compete with the handsome modern buildings which are being erected up-town, and it indicates also, that the demand for mercantile buildings is likely to be as active to the east as it is to the west of Broadway. So far, in spite of the many new loft buildings that have been built north of Fourteenth Street and west of Broadway, the district north of Fourteenth Street and east of Broadway has been comparatively neglected. The east side of Union Square, in particular, has not received the attention it deserves, and if the Court House is not erected on the site proposed by the Commission, there can be little doubt that in the course of time, the three blocks included in the site, will be covered with mercantile structures of the usual type. Sites on Union Square would afford the best light and air attainable by tall buildings in New York City; and the same statement is substantially true of Fourth Avenue. This avenue is exceptionally broad; and during the next few years will obtain, between Seventeenth and Thirty-second Streets, much more attention than it has obtained during the past few years. A good deal of speculative buying has taken place on Fourth Avenue north of Twenty-third Street, because it is believed that the New Haven Railroad will eventually have a station on the site of the Metropolitan car barns, but even in this case, it does not look as if Fourth Avenue would be available for improvement with anything except loft buildings. The retail trade is likely to cling to locations farther west. The situation on Fourth Avenue on the east side is similar to that of Seventh Avenue on the west side. Both of these avenues are so central, and consequently so convenient, that they will necessarily be devoted in the course of time to much more important business purposes than those to which the avenues are now devoted; but on the other hand it is the intermediate avenues like Fifth, Sixth, Broadway and Madison which will be selected as sites for the kinds of business which depend most on popular support. As for Union Square, the days of its availability for retail purposes are over, and the mercantile buildings which will be erected on the square and in its vicinity will be devoted to the wholesale trade. Even the Court House, should it ever be built from Fourteenth to Seventeenth Street, could not alter the manifest destiny of this neighborhood. The only wonder is that the process has been so slow.

WHATEVER the Board of Estimate decides to do about the site of the Court House, public opinion should not permit the erection of an office-building which would provide accommodations both for the municipal departments and the county courts. Such a combination of court-house and skyscraper might be economical, but it would, none the less, constitute a gross architectural and civic impropriety. A Court House is one thing and an office-building is another. There is no reason in the world why the city departments should not be housed in an ordinary skyscraper, built with the utmost economy and decorated with the utmost simplicity. Business is business; and the business of the city need not be transacted in marble halls or under gilded domes. If it were so transacted one would be tempted to compare the city's offices to those of a life insurance company; and the city could not afford such a comparison. New York fortunately possesses a time-honored and a very beautiful City Hall, which affords the Mayor an official habitation appropriate to the dignity of his position; and there is every reason why the other city officials should be accommodated in offices similar to those inhabited by plain business men. But the courts are a very different matter. The law is not a matter of business. Judges are not men of affairs. The building in which our State laws are expounded should be as dignified as the building in which our laws are made. The American people have always made every effort within their means to symbolize the solemn and vital function which the courts perform in our civic life by bestowing on them architectural surroundings of analogous solemnity and dignity; and for the richest city of this country to house its judges in an office building would be a confession of the reign of commercial standards in this community, to which its more enlightened public opinion should not submit. Moreover, the incongruity between an office building and a court house is not merely a matter of architectural appearance. It is also a matter of practical convenience. An office building is necessarily a noisy structure, full of bustling people, and located on a business street. A court-house should be situated in a place which is at once quiet and central. Its halls should be spacious. Its rooms should be of large dimensions and of corresponding height, and every architect knows that it is difficult to obtain rooms of unusually large dimensions and height in a modern office building, particularly when it is also desirable that these rooms should be beautiful in design as well as high and spacious. The columns of the steel structure must pierce the interior at regular intervals, and these columns break up an apartment in a manner, which for a court-room, would be both ugly and inconvenient. If the Board of Estimate decides to convert the County Court House of New York into a business caravansary, the judges and lawyers of the city should not fail to make an emphatic and conclusive protest. The impropriety would not be any more gross in case the official residence of the President of the United States were situated in a big Washington hotel.

WHAT must always be an interesting question, viz.: consecrated ground versus real estate values, has again come up in connection with the proposed sale of the Catholic cemetery at Eleventh Street and First Avenue by the trustees of St. Patrick's Cathedral. Twenty years ago the proposition to dispose of it proved unsuccessful. Among the reasons now given for the surrender of the property to commercial uses are that the neighborhood of the Eleventh Street cemetery is devoted to business purposes and is not therefore conducive to the reverence due to the dead. The trustees of the Cathedral say further that East Eleventh Street is a region in which there are all sorts of people, and few of them have any respect for the cemetery. Rubbish is thrown over the fence and the place is littered with refuse which no amount of reasonable effort is sufficient to prevent. Sooner or later the removal will have to come and the trustees believe it would be better to be done now because twenty-five years hence practically all the relatives of those buried there will have passed away. There are in the cemetery 3,000 graves, which it is proposed to move to Calvary Cemetery. The neighborhood of Twelfth Street and First Avenue is included within the boundaries of the church of the Immaculate Conception, one of the most populous of the Catholic parishes in this city. The plot covering the Eleventh Street cemetery is 413 feet long by 205 feet wide. It includes thirty-three city lots and the city's valuation of the plot (the valuation of the Commissioners of Taxes and Assessments, is $400,000. The probable marketable value of the thirty-three city lots is $600,000.

Tenement House Restraints.

BRONX ASKS FOR SEPARATE AUTHORITY, AND FOR EXEMPTION FOR THREE-FAMILY DWELLINGS FROM TENEMENT CLASS.

AS appeared from the communication in the Record and Guide of last week, which was signed by the representatives of taxpayers' associations, there is an urgent desire in the Bronx to have certain amendments made to the Tenement House Law, to facilitate the construction of small dwellings, especially 3-family houses. Incidentally, it is proposed to have a "separate and independent branch of what is known as the Tenement House Department" in each borough, to be presided over by a borough or district president, or other official having power in local matters, and empowered "to act independently of the Mayor of the city." This manifestation of impatience with the restraints of a centralized authority springs from the belief generally held among Bronx builders and owners that existing conditions in the Bronx were not fully comprehended by the Legislature when the Tenement House Law was passed.

Another amendment provides that at the head of each separate branch shall be a superintendent with one deputy-superintendent, each to be duly qualified by ten years' of business experience as an architect or practical builder. He would, according to the measures now proposed, have "power to modify the letter of the law in all matters where it is impracticable or impossible to follow the law to the letter, or where the mode of construction submitted by an owner or his representative is equally good and answers the same purpose. But he shall not have power to diminish the areas of courts or shafts, nor to interfere with the percentage of lot covered, nor in any matters relating to sanitary measures."

Inspectors would be qualified by an experience of six years as an architect's or builder's assistant, or by that length of time in "some branch of trade connected with the mechanical part of buildings"; and "one-third of such inspectors shall have been engaged in the plumbing trade as employees, or at least five years as journeymen." (The plumbers seem to have friends at court!)

An important provision is one which takes 3-family houses out of the category of "tenements" altogether. It reads:

"But a house which is constructed, rented, leased, let or hired out to be occupied or which is occupied as the home or residence of only three families, being one family on each floor above the cellar, and each family having separate conveniences, including separate water closets and fire escapes, and each living room having a window to the open air, either to the street, yard or upon an outer court no less than three feet wide, measuring from lot line to wall and running from street to rear yard, and which house does not occupy more than sixty-five per cent. of the lot surface, shall not be classified as a tenement house."

If the foregoing should be enacted, there would follow great building activity in this line in the Bronx and Brooklyn.

Evils of Installment Assessments.

During the year 1906 assessments amounting to $5,248,595.34 were apportioned and advertised in the City of New York, as against $4,131,608.43 in 1905, an increase of $1,116,986.91. The actual confirmations in 1906 amounted to $3,619,362.52, as compared with $3,596,976.45 in 1905. There is a large amount now on hand apportioned and advertised, upon which hearings are being held, and which will be confirmed within a short time.

During the year 425 claims for damages caused by changes in the grade of streets, under the provisions of the charter, affecting fifty-four assessment lists, were disposed of by the Board of Assessors. These claims amounted to $614,400, and awards thereon amounting to $31,340 were made. The property affected was situated in all parts of the city, and in each case where a legal claim was shown to exist the board visited and made a personal inspection of the damaged premises. In such cases hearings were held and testimony taken as to the amount of damage, while in many cases where the claims were subsequently disallowed testimony was taken upon the question as to whether or not there was a legal claim.

Many claims arising under special statutes for damages alleged to have been caused to property by the construction of bridge approaches and other structures in the streets are filed with the Board of Assessors. At hearings thereon the claimants appear by attorney and the city is represented by an Assistant Corporation Counsel. During the past year two or three days a week were devoted to such hearings, and the board has visited the property for which such claims were made. Many of these claims have been disposed of by the making of awards—as many as the attorneys representing claimants and the Corporation Counsel's office could conveniently present. This branch of the work, which has grown up during the last three years, requires much of the board's attention and takes up a considerable portion of its time, as well as that of the office force. The claims are frequently for large amounts, much testimony is taken, real estate experts are introduced as witnesses by both sides, and the matters require careful consideration.

We note from the Annual Report of the Board of Assessors that there are five assessments in which it is necessary, under the provisions of special laws, to lay an installment each year, as follows:

Thirty-first Ward improvement, to be laid in forty installments.

New Utrecht assessment, to be laid in fifty installments.

Eighth Ward improvement, to be laid in ten installments.

Prospect Park assessment, to be laid in forty installments.

Long Island City improvement, to be laid in twenty installments.

In the Long Island City improvement assessment 15,119 parcels are affected, necessitating 30,238 entries in the assessment lists after the computations for each parcel have been made. These assessments are all based on special laws, passed upon the theory that it helps property owners to pay their assessments. "As a matter of fact," say the Commissioners, "the system seems most effective in saddling a long series of unpaid installments upon unsuspecting buyers, who, thinking the improvements have been paid for, give more for the property. These laws invariably contain a provision that the installment for each year shall become a lien only in the year for which it is levied, and a search does not disclose the fact that these impending liens exist. Furthermore, many of these installments are for such small amounts—thousands being for less than one dollar—that it is doubtful whether the return to the city compensates it for the expense and trouble of keeping the accounts. The twenty-ninth installment of the Prospect Park assessment has been laid, leaving eleven remaining. A bill has been introduced in the Legislature, we understand, canceling the remainder, probably in recognition of the idea that it is scarcely equitable or worth while to continue the imposition of the annual installment.

"This system of installment assessments, it seems to us, is wrong in principle and bad in practice, and any future attempts to provide for them by legislative enactment should be carefully watched."

The Home Builders' Exposition.

The arrangements for the Home Builders' Exposition, to be held at the Grand Central Palace, Manhattan, beginning May 1, 1907, under the auspices of the Long Island Real Estate Exchange are attracting wide attention, and, judging by the support which the directors are receiving, success is assured. Among the exhibits will be a miniature Long Island, showing the new and proposed transit connection with Manhattan, as well as the bridges, towns and villages. In speaking of the exposition, Otto Kempner, the president, remarked: "It will be the first exhibition of its kind held in this country, and by its attractiveness and importance we mean to arouse the attention of the whole nation. The interest it is certain to kindle will bring visitors from the remotest sections of the United States. As President Roosevelt is so pronounced a champion of the American home, we have reason to expect that he will accept our invitation to open the exhibition."

It is proposed to exhibit a full-sized cross-section model of the proposed Long Island Boulevard, which is to run the length of the Island, and a similar model of the proposed motor parkway. Among other exhibits contemplated will be miniature model relief maps of residence and suburban home tracts, in which lots are offered for sale to the public, together with miniature models of the houses built or to be built thereon, open to purchase by the public; The Home Beautiful, typified by a modern dwelling richly and artistically furnished with every modern convenience and luxury; The Home Economical, to be exemplified by a modern dwelling of the more modest type, completely equipped for housekeeping, showing how cheaply, yet comfortably, such homes may be built and furnished; The Home Magical, a modern dwelling equipped with all the latest electrical housekeeping inventions, and The Cottage By the Sea, a type of a modern seaside summer cottage, furnished with the latest devices for the comfort of the summer resident.

The following proposed classification of exhibits indicates the possibilities of the Exposition: 1—Architects' supplies. 2—Bricks, terra cotta, stone, marbles. 3—Builders' auxiliaries and builders' hardware. 4—Building contractors. 5—Building papers, roofing and materials for insulating. 6—Cement and cement products. 7—Conservatories and greenhouses. 8—Detached dwellings, model houses. 9—Decorative interior work in plaster, stone and wood, wall papers, tapestries, upholstery, fabrics, leathers. 10—Electrical equipments. 11—Engines, elevators, dumbwaiters. 12—Farming. 13—Fireproofing materials. 14—Garden equipments. 15—Gardening. 16—Gas fixtures, gas machines. 17—Gymnasium equipment, steel lockers. 18—Home site developments. 19—Heating equipment, furnaces, ranges, radiators, boilers, hot water apparatus, laundry machinery. 20—Lighting apparatus, gasoline, acetylene, etc. 21—Paints, varnishes, shingle stains, oxide of zinc, white lead, enamels, technical and fireproofing paints, and other painting supplies. 22—Plate glass, decorated glass and leaded glass. 23—Plumbing. 24—Pumps and pumping machinery. 25—Real estate promotions. 26—Refrigerators and refrigerating machinery. 27—Sewering, paving, road building. 28—Stable equipment. 29—Steam and water specialties. 30—Structural and ornamental metal work. 31—Transportation and transportation facilities. 32—Tiling, Mantels, mosaic, flooring, roofing. 33—Ventilating, equipment, screens, skylights, window guards. (See advertisement, page III.)

Slander and Special Damage.

A case which, if rightly decided seems to rest on law that at least requires explanation to coincide with common sense, to say nothing of the "perfection of human reason," was one recently decided against an Italian in the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court.

Being decided on purely law points before it got to the jury, the case was thrown out of court without the sympathy (and substantial redress) which would have surely been awakened in the breast of any ordinary layman sitting on a jury.

The facts on which the case arose were as follows:

The defendant in the presence and hearing of many persons spoke of the plaintiff the following: "These men Cassale have paid their arrears for the purpose of cheating the Society."

Without an intimate knowledge of the law one would feel that some damage was done when such words were spoken of him in the presence of his neighbors and acquaintances, and that anything further than proof that the words were so spoken would be unnecessary.

The rule of law, however, is that unless defamatory language is actionable per se, that is, carries with it implied damage that renders other proof of the damage wrought unnecessary, that then the plaintiff must prove some actual damage to have come from the use of the defamatory language.

And on this rule the plaintiff in the case in question, having shown no special damage to have resulted to him, other than what the use of the words concerning him would carry with them, was thrown out of court.

The judge writing the opinion of an appeal had says of it: "The plaintiff insists that the words complained of import the commission by plaintiff and his son of the crime of conspiring to cheat the Society, and that they are therefore actionable without an allegation of special damage. As seen, neither the name nor the nature of the Society, or the relation of the parties litigant thereto, is disclosed. It is therefore difficult to see from the meagre allegations how the plaintiff could or did defraud the Society by the mere payment of arrears."

Now, as we have said, it is with the justice of this rule of law that, if it justified such a decision, we may in reason find fault.

It is not from the man or the mad dog running amuck that the individual requires protection so much as from the courts. He, himself, or some bystander with a club or a revolver may meet the occasion as it arises, but from the poisoner using the subtle and silent but far more dangerous poison of drug or tongue.

Were the actual damage wrought by the impure or dangerous drug necessary to be proven in each case, instead of implied from its well understood nature, there would be little use of the fight in Congress for the passage of a pure-food law; nor need the nocuous manufacturer much care whether such a law stand upon the statute books or not.

And yet such words as in this case, which any sane man knows in his heart must, if spoken of him widely before his fellowmen, do him great, though perhaps unprovable damage—such words can, if this decision be just and expressive of the law, be spoken of him broadcast, and perhaps with impunity, by any ill-wisher or detractor.

Westchester County Assessment Rolls.

The assessment rolls of Westchester County, which are now in the hands of the Board of Supervisors, show a gain of $30,000,000 over last year, which is the largest increase on record.

Yonkers heads the list, with a gain of more than $10,000,000, and almost every other town in the county shows a big increase. In New Rochelle, which comes next to Yonkers in its total increase, the assessments were raised by putting the method of assessing property on the block system. The figures of the wealthiest towns follow:

Yonkers	$49,232,905	$60,019,752
Mount Vernon	25,675,719	27,216,795
New Rochelle	18,355,660	24,064,170
White Plains	10,163,968	12,659,255
Greenburg	31,051,703	36,437,554
Rye	15,146,110	16,766,935

THE REALM OF BUILDING

Otis Elevators for the Singer Tower.

After careful consideration as to the type of elevators best to be used in the lofty Singer Tower Building, now under construction on lower Broadway, the contract has been awarded to the Otis Elevator Co., of No. 17 Battery pl. This whole installation will consist of sixteen elevators, nine of which will be in the tower proper. Elevators Nos. 1 and 2 will run from the basement to the thirteenth floor; Nos. 3 and 4 will run from the ground floor to the thirteenth floor, Nos. 5, 7, 8, from the ground floor to the thirty-fifth floor; No. 6 from the ground to the fortieth story, and No. 9, a shuttle elevator, from the thirty-fifth to the thirty-eighth story. One elevator will run the whole length of the tower, and thus make the highest run of any elevator in the world. The elevators will be of the Otis direct traction type, which was introduced to the public last year. They will, however, embody new features in the way of solving the elevator service problem in high buildings. The cables are to be installed in an unusual but simple manner. One drum is to be driven by a direct-connected motor situated at the extreme top of the tower shaft. This layout is just reverse from the general plan of other elevators, and will do away with a large quantity of unnecessary cables heretofore used, and which served as a counterbalance. It is also understood that the safety conditions will be decidedly increased with this type of elevators over similar ones in high structures.

More Pennsylvania Improvements.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. has a new scheme of improvements to the Jersey City terminal station, which calls for an annex building 120x620 ft. in size, just north of the slip used by the 23d st ferryboats, now occupied by Pier D. Sixty feet will be added to the north end of the present lobby in the station to connect it with the new part. The principal feature will be a large immigrant waiting room, 160x120 ft. wide. The addition will be 2-stys except the west end; this will be 3-stys. The necessity for improving the Jersey terminal is remarkable in view of the fact that great numbers of commuters from all points along the Pennsylvania will reach Manhattan through the McAdoo tunnels, entering the underground as far west as Newark. That the company, despite of its own improvements and the McAdoo tunnels, has to extend its old station is an interesting indication of the future transportation needs of Greater New York. The Pressed Steel Car Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., is busy constructing the first of 250 all-steel cars for the underground service. The Carnegie Steel Co. has the contract for the steel rails to be used in the terminals and tunnel. The Westinghouse Co. has been awarded the contract for the motor and air-brake equipment, and the Oliver Iron & Steel Co. is making the bolts with which the seams of the tunnel are connected.

No Immediate Plans for the Everett House Site Improvement.

4TH AV.—The Century Realty Co., 111 Broadway, now owners of the old Everett House property at 4th av and 17th st, northwest corner facing Union Square, informs the Record and Guide that no immediate plans have yet been prepared or architect selected for the improvement of the property. Mr. Daily of the company said: "The purchase as an investment was made subject to an existing lease on the hotel, which has three years yet to run. At this expiration we will no doubt replace the old hotel with a high office structure, but we have no definite plans yet." The plot has a frontage of 142 ft. on 4th av, and about 128 ft. in Union Square, in all about 16,500 square feet. Its proximity to the 14th st express station of the subway, the 18th st local station, the Broadway surface lines and the 18th st station of the "L," renders the location most accessible. It was reported on Thursday that a petition numbering about thirty of city authorities had signed in favor of the proposed Court House site, which latter extends from 14th to 17th sts, and from Union sq east to Irving pl.

Building Up Woodlawn Heights.

236TH ST.—Fred G. Lax, 111 West 125th st, will erect seven 2-family frame houses in 236th st, 150 ft. west of Keppler av, Woodlawn Heights. Each house will measure 21x56, will stand detached on a 25-ft. lot, and will contain 13 rooms and 2 baths. No contract has yet been let. Bids will be received by the owner at the address given. Plans and specifications can also be seen there. Fred Hammond, 943 Washington av, is the architect. About 25 dwellings are now under construction at Woodlawn Heights, with the prospects of many more to come during the year. William Stuber, Woodlawn Heights, will build on the north side of 240th st, 205 ft. west of Katonah av, two frame dwellings, 22x50 ft., from plans by Wm. S. Irving, 779 East 174th st. Anette Olsen, 234th st, will also build a 2-sty dwelling on the north side of 234th st, 485 ft. west of Katonah av.

Form of Contract for Bridge Loop.

The form of contract for the subway loop between the bridges, made public this week, permits the open-cut method. As required by law, the Rapid Transit Board will hold a public hearing on the form of contract on Feb. 28. The contract now made public is for only part of the route. The invitation for bids for constructing this line will be the first the Rapid Transit Commission has issued in which construction and operation are kept apart. Operation does not enter into the invitation at all, but the road is to be built along practically the same lines as the proposed Lexington av subway. The plan contemplates four tracks in Centre st and two in Walker st, and provision is made for a spur turning into Canal st at Centre. Pipe galleries are to be constructed at the same time, but the bids for this work are to be put in separately.

Plans for Two Fifth Avenue Residences.

5TH AV.—Designs for two handsome residences will soon be ready for contractors, to be erected on 5th av north of 69th st. C. P. H. Gilbert, 1123 Broadway, is at work on plans for a mansion for Charles Steele, of the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., to be erected at the northeast corner of 5th av and 92d st, immediately opposite the new residence of Mr. I. Townsend Burden. The plot measures 100.8½x102.3 ft. No building contracts have yet been awarded or estimates taken. Plans are also being prepared for the improvement of the Lenox Library site on 5th av, between 70th and 71st sts, a plot measuring 200x125 ft., on which will be erected a magnificent residence for Henry C. Frick. Details are still unsettled. No estimates have yet been taken.

Contract for James Butler's Stable.

68TH ST.—Thomas J. Brady Co., 1123 Broadway, has obtained the general contract to build a 5-sty addition, 50x95 ft., and adding 1-sty to the 4-sty stable building on the south side of 68th st, 32 ft. west of Amsterdam av, for James Butler, the grocer. Plans are by William Gompert, 2102 Broadway.

High Store and Loft Building for West 4th Street.

Manufacturers of plumbing supplies and those connected with the building trades hold somewhat different views regarding the outlook for spring trade. Manhattan builders are not disposed to be very optimistic, pointing to the large amount of construction in recent years as well as the high prices for all kinds of material, which will mitigate against new buildings. At the same time the outlook for funds is not at all reassuring. Manufacturers of plumbers' supplies see nothing but a bright future, yet many of them are inclined to be conservative in spite of these views.

As the result of a favorable agreement between a committee of the Board of Estimate and the Pennsylvania-Long Island R. R., respecting the operation of trains over the Hell Gate bridges, in the Borough of Queens, the officers of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. are ready to proceed with their Manhattan terminal plans. It was reported this week that the railroad company bought the town site from the Metropolitan Street Railway Co. at $2,500,000.

With the exception of the northwest corner of 5th av and 33d st, these projects mark the advent of the modern business building on the block in question.

At the present time both sides of the street between the avenues mentioned are somewhat disfigured by make-shift alterations in dwellings now used for business purposes. On the northerly side half of the dwellings have been partly altered, and on the southerly side but two have been subjected to remodeling in transitu.

Heretofore practically all of the side street building operations in the 34th st section have been confined to the territory west of 5th av, but with the diminishing number of available plots it is now conceded that the field of activity must necessarily extend across the dividing thoroughfare. It is known that one of the three parcels just sold has been on the market for some time. Recently the southwest corner of Madison av and 33d st was sold to a 5th av business concern for its own occupancy.

While it is generally admitted that property in this part of the street has not figured in the conveyances to any extent, it is largely accounted for by the fact that present owners are asking extreme prices for their holdings, due, it is said, to the probability of the street becoming one of great importance owing to the likelihood of a station of the crosstown tunnel at Park av, and the building of a terminal to the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. on the 4th av car barn site, which latter now seems a certainty. Discerning speculators are inclined to reason that from now on 33d st realty will attract that degree of attention to which it is justly entitled.

The Park Avenue Section.

Park av will be re-established between 45th and 56th sts with openings in central parkways to furnish light and air for the underground roads, and the cross streets intersecting the avenue. Depew pl and Vanderbilt av (the latter to be doubled in width) will extend to 45th st. These improvements, with the widening of 42d st, in front of the Grand Central depot, will no doubt lead a new stream of traffic to Park av. A number of first-class apartment houses are in course of construction in this section, and also some private houses. Many well-to-do families are seeking homes on Park av, which, besides being free from surface cars, will also be relieved of cinders and smoke, owing to the change in motive power from steam to electricity on the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad.

Nearing completion at the southeast corner of Park av and 57th st is the new 12-sty apartment house, to be known as the "Mayfair," which will be of a very choice type. The building covers a plot 100.5 on the avenue and 90 on the street. It has two eight and one seven-room apartments to each floor. At 64th st and Park av, on the southeast corner, is the dwelling of Ernest E. Lorillard. On the southeast corner of the same avenue, at 71st st, is the private dwelling of the Hon. Elihu Root, which is leased to Mr. Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life. George Gordon Knox Bell lives at the southwest corner of 72d st, and directly opposite, on the northeast corner, is the home of J. Edward Davis.

Regarding values a broker said: "Between Park and Lexington avs, in the Sixties, prices average $50,000 for old 20-ft. houses, excepting in 69th st, where as high as $75,000 has been paid for such a dwelling. In 70th st, between the same avenues, values average $60,000, in 71st st, $60,000. The average width of a lot in 73d st is 18.9, and values there approximate $45,000."

Star Expansion Bolts.

Headed under the Structural Hardware section of the 1907 Edition of Sweet's Index of Building Construction is catalogued a unique and simple builders' product in the way of the Star Expansion Bolts and Anchors. These anchors and bolts are manufactured by the Star Expansion Bolt Co., 147-149 Cedar st, Manhattan, to meet the ever-increasing demand for an economical and efficient anchor; intended for fine work in marble, tile and granite; and are in constant use by builders, iron and steel workers and others having occasion to fasten fire-escapes, fire-doors, and all kinds of fixtures to brick or stone. These bolts are quickly installed and labor saving. They are approved by the National Board of Underwriters.

—The Rapid Transit Board has granted permission to complete the Pennsylvania tunnel under 32d and 33d sts, between 5th and 7th avs. The work in 33d st is to be done during the day time, and on the remaining sections it is to proceed at night. No material used in the tunnel work is to be stored in the streets, and the company further agrees to repair any injury to buildings and to assume all liability for damages.

The Interborough's Application to Close Streets Through the Site Purchased for Repair Shops North of 218th Street.

A LETTER FROM MR. J. ROMAINE BROWN TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOROUGH—IMPORTANT LOCAL INTERESTS AND OBJECTIONS DISCUSSED — MR. BROWN'S VIEWS AS TO THE ADVANTAGES TO THE DYCKMAN TRACT AND TO WASHINGTON HEIGHTS IF THE COMPANY SHOULD USE ITS SITE AS PROPOSED.

The following letter is self-explanatory:

Hon. John F. Ahearn, President of the Borough of Manhattan, New York City:

Dear Sir—Having, as you know, for many years been a resident of Washington Heights, and since the Dyckman tract was first divided into lots in the year 1870, been interested as an owner and otherwise therein, I have watched with unusual interest the proceedings of the Local Board of the Washington Heights District relative to the application of the Interborough Metropolitan Company to close 9th avenue, from 218th street to Broadway and 218th, 219th and 220th streets from Broadway to 9th avenue, to enable it to build thereon a shop for construction and repairs, offices for some of its employees, the remainder to be used for track space for inspection, minor repairs, making up trains, etc. As it seemed to me, when first informed of the nature of the company's application, that if the property should be so used, the advantages to the locality would be very great, I have not hesitated to freely express my views to many owners of land in the vicinity, and to attempt to point out to them the utter absence of any reasonable ground of objection on the part of any owner. As the application was withdrawn on Tuesday last (the newspapers stated because of the unexpected opposition of many owners), without any statement by the company as to what action it proposes to take hereafter, either as to the closing of the streets or to using its property, the letter of Mr. Minturn Post Collins in the Herald of Thursday last, stating the grounds upon which he charges the company with attempted "highway robbery" and "grab," has induced me to write to you, in the hope that hereafter any similar proposal of the company, if made, will receive more mature and calm consideration, and, I trust, approval.

The situation now is that the company owns, and can use as it pleases, all the site except 218th street and 9th avenue. It may use it solely as a storage yard, or erect thereon such shops or structures as it pleases, without the consent of any person or authority other than the Building Department. Obviously the property in the locality would be greatly more benefited by the much more important use which the company would make of the site, if the streets should be closed. I may add that it is a matter of record that when application was made by the Van Nest estate, the owner, in 1900, of the site to rescind a resolution adopted in 1900 to open 219th and 220th streets, the Board of Public Improvements on Feb. 27, 1901, granted the application which stated "That there is no public necessity for opening 219th and 220th streets, and no public accommodation to be accomplished thereby, and the parties interested in said estate do not desire it to be done, FOR THE REASON THAT THIS PARCEL OF LAND MAY BECOME MORE VALUABLE TO SAID ESTATE FOR A USE THAT WOULD NOT REQUIRE STREETS, AS FOR INSTANCE, A TERMINAL OF THE UNDERGROUND RAPID TRANSIT ROAD." (City Record, June 6, 1900.) Now that the company has purchased the land, paying for it its greater value for the purpose stated, owners in the vicinity, who made no opposition to the discontinuance of the street opening proceedings in 1901, most vigorously object to the company's making such use of the property, as the record shows it might justly assume would receive the city's as well as their approval.

Mr. Collins in his letter apparently confines his objection to the closing of 9th avenue, omitting all reference to the cross streets, but as he and other owners at the several meetings of your board objected to closing the streets as well as the avenue, I shall, I think, make it clear that the objections to closing 9th avenue are as equally groundless as those urged to the closing of the streets. I shall briefly answer his objection to the closing of 9th avenue.

1. Mr. Collins says that the closing of 9th avenue would cause greater "congestion" of traffic in Broadway north of 218th street. Ninth avenue turns into Broadway south of the bridge, so that the "congestion," if any, from this turn northerly now exists. The closing of the avenue north of 218th street would give a longer distance on Broadway for such united traffic and thus to a great extent reduce the "congestion." As 9th avenue, however, extends solely northerly from 201st street (south of which is Sherman Creek) and is not a continuous longitudinal avenue of the city, is but 75 feet wide and has no tributary streets, its traffic will never be noticeable when it reaches Broadway at any point. At present there is not a house or business structure upon it except the storage barn and power-house of the Third Avenue Railroad Company. Its grades north of 218th street are such that any business traffic thereon going northerly would naturally be diverted to Broadway before reaching 218th street, for the grade rises 20 feet in a distance of about 450 feet to Broadway, making about a 4½ per cent. grade, whereas by crossing to Broadway south of 218th street and thence to the bridge the grade would be practically level.

2. Mr. Collins refers to the fact that owners on 9th avenue have been assessed for its opened to Broadway, and hence it would be "immoral" to close it in part. The street closing law entitles the owners to damages, if injured, and hence whether the company was or was not willing to repay the assessments, they would be entitled to repayment and also to any greater damage, should they be able to show it. As the company has offered to repay the assessments with interest, the objection "on the moral side of the question" is eliminated. The assessment for the opening was, however, comparatively trivial, amounting south of 216th street to about $2 a front foot.

3. Mr. Collins speaks of "handing 9th avenue over to the Interborough Company would ever after prevent this avenue from being used as an outlet to the Bronx." The merest glance at the map of the district will show that as the avenue starts at 201st street (a block north of the Sherman Creek Basin), has no southerly connection, is there distant 2,770 feet from Broadway, and turns into Broadway at about 220th street, there is not the slightest possibility that it will ever be used as "an outlet to the Bronx." It was not laid out so as to be capable of such possible use, and has never been included in any one of the many plans for northerly transportation. If extended from 220th street, thence to the Ship Canal, no bridge therefrom could be built, for on the opposite side of the canal are the long marshy land and bed of the Harlem River. The wide basin at Sherman Creek and the high hills southerly thereof preclude the possibility of its ever forming part of any line of transportation to the Bronx.

4. Mr. Collins states that the absence of actual improvements in the Dyckman tract is "because the city authorities would not open streets and construct sewers so that builders could improve their property." It is sufficient to say that although numerous streets through the tract have been opened and graded for years, and many sewers constructed, nevertheless fewer buildings have been erected therein than in any other section of the city. Although within the last five years 1,091 conveyances have been recorded, which included approximately 11,600 city lots, only 12 building permits have been issued for buildings to be used for dwelling or residential purposes in the same period for the whole island north of Dyckman street, from the Harlem River to the Hudson River, and of these but 5 have been followed by construction at an estimated cost of $140,000.

Additional sewer construction would not, in my judgment, induce builders to construct buildings for residential purposes, because the land east of Broadway and north of Dyckman street is mostly a marsh or meadow, the streets have very low grades, that of Academy street, east of Nagle avenue, is but 6 feet above highwater line, and 9th avenue, from 201st street to 220th street, but 10 feet. The sewer outlets at the Harlem River are generally 3 feet below highwater line; in some places much more, as at 216th street and 201st street, where they are 4 and 4½ feet respectively below highwater mark. The backing up of the sewerage and drainage upon the inflow of the river waters at each high tide for the greater part of every day of the year (in some places as far west as Broadway) would present conditions preventing construction except for purely commercial purposes. More than ten years ago I called the attention of the Commissioner of Public Works to the fact that the sewer system as planned by the city would be worthless if the property should be used for residential purposes. No change was made, I assume, because it was considered that the land would never be improved for other than commercial purposes. If the present owners contemplate the sale of their property for improvement by the erection of buildings for residential purposes, such as tenements or apartments, the established grades of all the streets and avenues would have to be raised, in my judgment, so as to permit of changing the plans adopted for sewer construction, the streets regraded and a new system of sewers constructed. This, however, is practically impossible in view of the time it would take and the expense which would be involved.

So much for Mr. Collins' objections. As to the actual advantages, first to the immediate locality, and secondly to the whole of the Washington Heights district there can be, when calmly considered, no difference of opinion.

The company, as I am informed, proposes not only to build a large repair and construction shop, but an office building, both three stories in height, with sufficiently attractive or unobjectionable fronts upon Broadway, wherein the number of skilled mechanics and officials daily employed will probably exceed 1,500 persons. Its cars are to be taken by way of 218th street to the rear of the buildings at 9th avenue and there shifted to the shops when repairs are required. The river front is to be used for taking in all the supplies which construction and repairs may require. The remainder of the space is to be used, to the height of the first story of the shop, for the storage of cars for inspection and repairs which may be made, without transferring them to the shop; for the making up of trains required by the emergency of daily traffic, and for the reservation of a sufficient number of cars to meet the ordinary schedule requirements of the company upon Manhattan Island in the event of the opening of the drawbridge at Broadway over the Ship Canal.

It is only reasonable to assume that out of the great number of employees, many will reside in the vicinity, if sufficient or suitable accommodations can therein be found, and that therefore owners will be induced to construct apartment or tenement houses, stores, cottages, etc. These will bring others, and for the first time in over thirty years a substantial basis will exist for actual improvements. Such a beginning will, in my judgment, naturally result in increasing the present ACTUAL VALUE of the property in the vicinity.

The nature of the structures proposed by the company differs so greatly from those which its predecessors erected at 98th street, between 3d and 4th avenues, and between 144th and 146th streets, 7th and 8th avenues, as to eliminate the latter as examples of injurious effects upon property in the vicinity. Both the last mentioned structures, erected at a time when few improvements existed in their neighborhood, in fact resulted in inducing substantial improvements which at the time were suitable to the vicinity.

To the owners and residents of Washington Heights important advantages must necessarily result, if the plans of the company are carried out, which a location elsewhere such as in the Bronx or in Brooklyn would not bring about. The necessity of adequate facilities to enable the company to furnish constant and rapid transportation, aside from that of making repairs, is obvious. There is no available water frontage near any of the routes in Brooklyn or in the Bronx. It must have sufficient space at the northerly end of Manhattan Island and south of the Ship Canal for this purpose, for if located north of the canal the daily stoppage of traffic by the opening of the drawbridge would cause numerous and vexatious delays in both the express and local service. The records of the Department of Bridges show that during the year 1906 the drawbridge was opened 1,922 times, to allow 2,325 vessels to pass, of which the highest number in any month was 270 in May, and the lowest 103 in December. The traffic through the canal will undoubtedly increase from year to year.

It is apparent that if the operation of the road should be subjected to these delays, the subway would be of comparalively little service to residents north of 137th street, and that if by any accident the closing of the bridge should be prevented for any unusual time, the system would for such time be paralyzed. The several associations of owners who have been holding public meetings to compel the company to give better service should have been the first to aid it in securing complete facilities to enable it to do so. If the company had such facilities and did not give adequate service it might be justly criticized and condemned.

The above are the main reasons which have induced me to approve of the application of the Interborough Company. I believe that if all the owners in the Dyckman tract will carefully and calmly consider the situation, that with few, if any, exceptions they will agree with me that the use to which the company intends to put its land, if permitted by the city authorities, will be of the greatest benefit to the locality, and incidentally to the whole of Washington Heights. I have no hesitation in having you submit a copy of this letter to any owner interested.

Very truly yours,

J. ROMAINE BROWN.

Twelve Acres of Offices in New Skyscraper.

The magnitude of the City Investment Company's edifice is beginning to break through the public mind. It will be the largest office building in the world, a 32-sty skyscraper, providing 12 acres of rentable space. It is being erected at the corner of Broadway and Cortlandt st, and will be ready for occupancy early in 1908. Site and structure will represent an outlay of $10,000,000.

Massive in size and imposing in design, the new building will be a notable departure from the usual style of skyscraper. The architectural treatment leaves a deep recess in the face of the building, thus separating it into two wings, each of which rises to a height of 25 stories. The main structure, 32 stories high, with its ornate gables, will be a picturesque ornament to the sky line.

The feature of the interior will be an arcade extending 304 feet, the whole length of the building. The arcade will be 32 feet wide and 40 feet high, with a vaulted ceiling elaborately designed in frescoes. At each end will be arched passages leading to the 21 elevators required to handle the 10,000 tenants who can be accommodated in the building.

More than 13,000 tons of steel are to be used for the support of this structure and the total weight of the building will be 86,000 tons, and some of the steel columns and girders will weigh more than 200,000 pounds each. Every inch of steel will be encased in hollow tile bricks, and two and a half million square feet will be used. Floors and partitions will be of porous terra cotta.

Importance of the 138th St. Section.

Inquiries for floors in loft, factory and storage buildings, also for offices and desk room, are very numerous in 138th st. If capitalists would erect such buildings there would be no trouble in getting tenants. Flats are also eagerly sought for, as the railroads employ many men in this proximity. The existing houses are approximately all filled. Those interested in the J. L. Mott Iron Works own considerable real estate in this district, but will put no price on it. An offer of $22,000 for the plot, 40x100, in 138th st, abutting the northwest corner of 3d av, was refused.

Mr. W. J. Kellum, of 2557 3d av, said that a larger sum would have been paid for this parcel, but as no disposition on the part of the owner to sell was manifest, negotiations failed to mature. About one hundred different presons are seeking such improvements as heretofore stated. Their visits have become wearisome from the fact that practically no progress has been made toward improving the situation. The easterly side of 3d av, between 138th and 139th sts, is mostly for sale, although only open to offers. Between 137th and 138th sts, on the east side of Lincoln av, which intersects 3d av at this point, the whole block front is for sale (excepting 25x100 ft. at the southeast corner of 138th st), the asking price of which is about $15,000 a lot. The remaining plot covers a total area of 175x100 ft. There is also a large water-front area on the Harlem River, near the Madison av bridge, which can be leased only.

Leaving the west, to travel east through 138th st, in search of further light on the development of this thoroughfare, we find nearly a solid mass of five and six-story houses, both old and new-law structures, with a few private residences intervening. After passing Cyprus av, we are confronted with many whole squares of vacant land to the north, also considerable to the south.

Running into Port Morris we discover a new city in itself so to speak, and also an entirely different class of industry, such as the great machine shops of De La Vergne Refrigerating Machine Works, covering about three blocks oblong, also the great Union Gas Company's plant together with other important grades of manufacturing and mechanical industry, which employs a large army of men.

NEW LAW HOUSES FILLING UP.

Mr. Urquhart, of the firm of Kirkpatrick & Urquhart, with an office in 138th st, near Southern Boulevard, said that the new-law houses in his vicinity were filling up before completion, the statement of which was borne out by ocular proof. The rents of apartments having all modern improvements average $4.50 a room. A majority of the new tenants are locally employed in the industrial institutions already mentioned, and totalize a membership of eight to ten thousand people.

Mr. Urquhart said that poor transit facilities was a hindrance to more speedy development of this section, and he related that it was a common occurrence to be detained a half hour at the evening rush hour before being able to board a trolley car. The tracks of the Harlem division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. are being elevated through Port Morris. There will be six sets of tracks, and together with the electrification of the road the improvement in transit facilities should greatly enhance the value of property in this neighborhood.

Manhattan Bridge No. 3.

Mr. Justice O'Gorman on Friday last, the 9th instant, appointed George Gordon Battle, Charles J. Leslie and former Senator John C. Fitzgerald, Commissioners of Estimate and Appraisal in the proceeding to acquire property for the Pike Street Bridge, from Monroe Street to the Bowery.

Mr. Battle was the Chairman of the Commission in the Oliver, Oak and James Street school site proceeding, and Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Leslie have frequently served as commissioners in other proceedings.

The improvement runs through the heart of the Lower East Side, and breaks up one of the most congested districts in the entire City of New York where very high values prevail.

—Brick prices are in such an advantageous position for building now, it would pay anyone contemplating large construction in the future to buy great quantities and stack them up. No one can expect to beat present quotations within the next few weeks, while it is very doubtful that with the increasing cost of production and handling they will ever be as low again. Along about the year 1898, when business had resumed a normal tone after the panic of '93, we remember hearing an old builder say: "Gentlemen, now is the time to buy property; you will never see it any cheaper." It was a wholly impartial remark, made in a social circle, and the builder was last year called to his fathers. He had had fifty years' experience with building values; he had seen the country rise from one plane of living to another, and he perceived with the eye of experience that a step higher was certain, from which there could be no descending. Values in some sections may be inflated to some extent, but it will be found when the final reckoning comes that the legitimate minimum price of property everywhere is permanently fixed on a higher level than in the previous decade.

PRIVATE SALES MARKET

On account of the holiday, this was a short week in the real estate market, and the private sales reported numbered only 120. Whatever advantage might have come to suburban brokers from the holiday, was lost on account of the extreme cold which kept buyers at home. The auction market was interesting in several particulars. At the Keane estate sale on Thursday every item was sold, and none bought in—a matter which is sometimes important enough to mention. Altogether the auction sales of the week amounted to $952,391. Private sales included none of exceptional significance.

Price, $1.50.
A book just published that shows how city values are made and the basis upon which real estate appraisements should be made.

Twenty Dollars instead of Hundreds

It costs many hundred dollars a year in materials and labor to keep up, maintain and operate a system of real estate records, for immediate reference.

Twenty Dollars is all the work costs if you subscribe to the Quarterly Record and Guide, wherein you obtain all the records arranged so that any of them may be referred to as easily as a word in a dictionary.

All the big brokers and Financial Institutions are subscribers. Send for [illegible] RECORD AND GUIDE, 11 to 17 Vesey St.

SUBURBAN.

Olcott C. Colt and George H. Mills sold for the Slater estate at Yonkers, N. Y., 65 acres of land for development purposes to a Mr. Johnston, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., for over $100,000; also negotiated a mortgage of $50,000 covering a portion of the property. George H. Mills and Olcott C. Colt resold the property for Mr. Johnston at an advanced figure to Mr. Tasker, who is president of a large development company in this city, who will develop and sell the property.

STATEN ISLAND.

The Tully farm, of 20 acres, and the Snyder farm, of 10 acres, on the Manor road, Middletown, S. I., were sold by Cornelius G. Kolff and the South New York Investors to Benjamin Sicklick and Leo Berman, of Brooklyn. The purchasers intend to develop the property.

Mr. Kolff also sold the Kessner property, of 12 acres, on Huguenot av, near Huguenot Park, for C. M. Hunter to William Humphreys, of Manhattan, for $1,600 an acre; also 4 lots on lower Bement av, near Richmond terrace, for $600 each; also a house and lot belonging to the Braniss estate, on Montgomery av, Tompkinsville, to a Manhattan buyer for $2,500.

Pierrepont Hotel Site Sold at Auction.

William H. Smith sold at auction in the Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange the site of the old Pierrepont Hotel, at the southeast corner of Montague and Hicks sts, a plot 200x78, extending through to Remsen st. The property was sold for $96,100, to Simon F. Rothschild, of Abraham & Straus. Mr. Rothschild says he represented Mr. Abraham Abraham, who is the real purchaser of the parcel, and the purchase was made as an investment. It was generally supposed that the parcel would sell for more than $100,000. The property was owned by the Brooklyn Heights Realty Company.

It was the purpose of this company to erect a large apartment hotel on the site. After the old Pierrepont House was demolished difficulties arose, and the sale was the result of foreclosure proceedings brought against the holding company by the Kings County Trust Company.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

F. A. Curry has been elected a member of the Real Estate Board of Brokers.

E. Nelson Ehrhart has opened a branch office in White Plains in the Brandes Building.

Parsons & Holzman, real estate operators, have removed their office from 25 Pine st to the Beard Building, 120 Liberty st, Suite 800.

Morris Barron is the buyer of 428 Water st and 29 Oak st. These sales were reported about two weeks ago. This is the first transfer of this property in 50 years.

The firm of Seymour & Riley has been dissolved, and Mr. E. G. B. Riley has opened offices in the Bristol Building, 503 5th av, under the firm name of E. G. B. Riley & Co.

In our Want and Offer page a young man, thoroughly familiar with Manhattan real estate, will find a possible opportunity. An advertiser wants a Bromley Manhattan atlas.

Mr. Erastus Hamilton, of 252 West 138th st, attributes the vacancies in flats and tenements in that neighborhood to inflated rents. Good apartments and private houses are flourishing.

E. G. B. Riley reports leasing the northeast corner of 6th av and 42d st for Henry Corn to the United Merchants Realty & Improvement Co., 111 Broadway, for ten years, at an aggregate rental of $155,000.

Fredrickson & Co. have removed their office to 3603 3d av, near the 169th st elevated station. He believes that the coming spring will bring forth an increased amount of realty transactions over last year.

Mr. Harry E. Baer, secretary of the "R. I. W." Damp Resisting Paint Company, of New York, has purchased through Cooley & West, 223 Westchester av, Mount Vernon, a detached dwelling on plot 50x100.

It is announced that about 350 members and guests will attend the annual banquet of the Manhattan Real Estate Board of Brokers to be held next Monday night at the Waldorf-

Astoria. The committee in charge have made elaborate preparations.

Mr. Wm. Brown, of the firm of R. I. Brown's Sons, 3428 3d av, Bronx, said that he managed to keep busy, and is having numerous inquiries on the part of clients who are desirous of purchasing property.

According to Colonel Francis, at the 5th av office of John N. Golding, property in 45th st, between 5th and 6th avs, is held at from thirty-five hundred to five thousand dollars a foot front, almost all of which can be bought.

One of the first customers of the Record and Guide was Mr. William H. Goetting, now residing and doing business at 732 East 138th st, Bronx, who opened negotiations as a subscriber the first year the paper was started, in 1868.

The boxes in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria for the annual dinner of the Real Estate Board of Brokers Monday evening, will be sold at auction at 1 o'clock to-day in the board room, 158 Broadway. Joseph P. Day will be auctioneer.

See our Want and Offer page for Broadway offices to let to May 1, 1907. Safe, atlases and office fixtures for sale. Particulars are also wanted of business property for sale or lease between 8th and 42d sts. Also a suite of large and commodious first-floor offices in Wall st to lease.

It is said that the Church st terminal station will be the heaviest structure on Manhattan Island. The structural steel necessary to hold up the buildings will weigh more than 24,000 tons, and the twin buildings constituting the terminal will have a "living and dead load" of 200,000 tons.

David Stewart, commenting on the condition of Washington Heights real estate, remarked that Broadway in that section was coming along, and while present owners are holding out firmly, there are plenty of moneyed people looking to purchase property in this neighborhood, and he believes there will be an active spring market.

It is said that the City Investing Company has secured an option of purchase on 97 Liberty st from the Iselin estate. In the event of the company exercising its right the whole block bounded by Liberty and Cortlandt sts and Church st and Broadway would be under the control of this company, with the exception of the Singer interests.

Mr. Kennelly had a very successful trustees' sale on Thursday, with a large attendance and equitable values. The dwelling 113 East 34th st brought $71,000. The southeast corner of Clinton and Stanton sts, two 2-sty tenements, with stores, Nos. 36-38, but occupying plot only 100x25, brought $89,000. All the parcels were sold at prices which speak well for the auction market. (For full record of the week's sales, see another page.)

Louis Becker, owing to the increase of his real estate brokerage business, has had associated with him since Feb. 8, Edward O. A. Glokner, as a co-partner. Mr. Glokner has been connected with one of the largest financial houses in the city for over twelve years, and is in a position to handle large loans and mortgages, Mr. Becker taking charge as heretofore of the sales and other branches of the business. The firm will be known as Louis Becker & Co., and will continue as Mr. Becker has heretofore, at the old stand, 2003 Amsterdam av, near 159th st.

The West End Association elected the following to membership at the meeting of Feb. 4, 1907: David B. R. Chapman, 150 West 83d st; Joseph O. Dorland, 251 West 87th st; Noel B. Fox, 49 West 75th st; F. Spencer Halsey, 108 West 74th st; Charles Griffith Moses, 141 Broadway; N. Taylor Phillips, 250 West 74th st; Ira C. Place, 268 West 77th st; Frank Wade Robertson, 411 West End av; Henry Ruhlender, 24 Pine st; F. Spiegelberg, 36 West 76th st; W. H. Van Steenbergh, 26 West 82d st. Resignations of C. F. Bostwick, George Chapman, David Lamb, H. M. Toch, Max Wolff, T. C. Wood, accepted. Adjourned to Monday, March 4, 1907.—G. B. Sheppard, Secretary.

Chas. J. F. Bohlen, engaged in the real estate and insurance business for the past five years at 16th st, corner 1st av, has moved to the Fifth National Bank Building, 23d st, southwest corner 3d av, where he has taken larger quarters in order to meet the increased demands of his business. He makes a specialty of the management of real estate, and in connection therewith has a department for general insurance. He is president of the 18th Ward Taxpayers' Association, which office he has filled for four years, and he has been active in all public improvements advocated by this association. He was born and resides in the district and is thoroughly familiar with real estate conditions on the East Side.

City Sells Church Street Police Station.

The police station property at the northeast corner of Liberty and Church sts, was sold, as previously advertised in the Record and Guide, at public auction on Thursday to Pres. Robt. E. Dowling, of the City Investing Co., who made the only bid of $330,000, the upset price. The lot is 118.7 on Church st and 22.8 on Liberty st. By the purchase the City Investing Co. completes its ownership of the whole block front on the easterly side of Church st from Liberty to Cortlandt st. The plan of the city is to erect a modern police station at 156 and 158 Greenwich st, running through to 163 and 165 Washington st, a plot containing $10,000 sq. ft., which was recently purchased by the city from Mr. Dowling. The Church st parcel was appraised for the city at $330,000.

As soon as the weather permits the construction of twenty-five more houses will be immediately commenced by the company, besides a number of others to be built by resident purchasers of lots.

Residents of Garden City Estates will enjoy all the privileges afforded by the magnificent public buildings of Garden City. The present railroad time to Long Island City is thirty minutes.

Mr. Tarbell, the new President of Garden City Estates, has tendered his resignation as Vice-President of the Equitable Insurance Co., to take effect March 1. His salary with the Equitable was $60,000. Mr. Tarbell has full confidence in the continued prosperity of real estate interests.

Purchases on the Palisades.

The Columbia Investment & Real Estate Company has just purchased from the Day Land Improvement Company a tract at Hudson Heights, New Jersey, directly opposite 79th st, New York, comprising about 50 lots, which they will add to their other parcels at Hudson Heights and improve and develop for the market this spring. This makes their Hudson Heights holdings aggregate 675 lots. The same company also purchased a tract of land approximating 100 lots from the Hudson River Realty Company. This tract is situated at Morsemere on the western slope of the Palisade district, opposite 125th st. This parcel will be added to the remainder of the holdings of the Columbia Company at Morsemere, and developed this spring with all improvements.

5th.—The figures in each conveyence, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers, that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only, the the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.
